WASHINGTON Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—President Coolidge tonight ordered a sweeping investigation of the army and navy aviation policy. The inquiry was ordered at the suggestion of Acting Secretary of War Dwight Davis and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur as the result of Col. William Mitchell's sensational charges against the administration of military aeronautics.

Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America and former chief of staff of the army.

First Meeting Thursday.

The first meeting of the committee will be at the white house next Thursday morning, September 17.

The official white house announcement was in the form of a letter to Secretaries Wilbur and Davis as follows:

"Gentlemen:

"Your joint letter stating that 'for the purpose of making a study of the best means of developing and applying aircraft in the national defense and to supplement the studies already made by the war and navy departments on that subject, we respectfully suggest that you, as commander-in-chief of both army and navy, appoint a board to further study and advise on this subject,' has just been received.

"Your suggestion is one that already has received executive approval. As far back as last spring, I had consulted with parties as to the desirability of taking such action so that a report might be laid before me for my information and also for the use of the incoming congress. I am therefore asking the following named gentlemen to meet me at the white house on Thursday next at 11 o'clock in the

An Illinois Town Is Struck By a Near Cloudburst

LINCOLN, Ill., Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—High winds accompanied by rain, hail and lightning, ripped through Lincoln early tonight.

Property damage was estimated at several thousand dollars. Several persons were injured by wind-dirven debris.

Two and seven-tenths inches of rain fell in one hour. Deer creek and Salt creek went out of their banks, washing away crops and flooding basements in the business district.

Railroad, electric and telephone service were paralyzed temporarily.

SCARBOROUGH, England, Sep. 12.—(I. N. S.)—After heated debate between moderates and radicals, the Trades Union congress today ended its sessions with partial victory for the radicals.

The congress, by a vote of 3,082,000 to 79,000, passed a resolution pledging itself to oppose British "imperialism" and to support "the right of all people of the empire to self determination, the right to choose to separate themselves from the empire."

This marks the first time that the Trades Union congress has gone on record as directly opposing "imperialism," and it is regarded as a signal victory for the radicals within this movement.

New Record For Dry Enforcement Is Set In Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—A new record in prohibition enforcement in Chicago was set this week with the arrival here of E. C. Yellowley, "ace" of federal prohibition agents, a citywide survey revealed tonight.

Three hundred cabarets, pool rooms, restaurants and drug stores were placed under temporary injunctions during the week for alleged violation of the "dry" law.

Yellowley, who has become federal prohibition director for the Chicago district, on his arrival here asked for the full cooperation of local enforcement agents and got it.

Nearly half of the restraining orders granted this week were on evidence obtained by police.

Approximately 120 restraining orders will be issued next week, authorities said.

LINCOLN SCHOOLS TO OPEN MONDAY

Lefler Announces J. R. Paplow to Be New Industrial Arts Director.

All departments of Lincoln's school system open Monday morning for the fall term, Superintendent M. C. Lefler said Saturday, and an increased attendance is expected. The full staff of teachers, with a few exceptions because of serious illness, is ready for the opening, he said. Buildings have been repaired, added to and renovated during the summer and the physical plant will be sufficient to handle enrollment.

The high school has been thoroughly renovated for the first time, and is in the best condition since it was built, Mr. Lefler stated. It is certain to have a larger enrollment than last year, he declared, and before the year is over the figure will probably be 2,500 or more.

Four new rooms at Hartley are ready for use, and the territory east of Thirty-third and south of Holdrege has been assigned to the Hartley district to fill these rooms, assistant Superintendent W. W. Curfman said. The new buildings in the Sheridan and east Randolph districts will not be ready for occupancy before the middle of the year, so there is not any great change in the physical plant since spring.

At Hayward the annex is not yet ready, but the rooms in the old section have been remodeled and are ready.

The instructional staff is virtually the same. The figure given by Mr. Lefler, 460, is slightly smaller than at the end of the last term, Mr. Curfman said, but will probably reach the same mark through the usual additions of the year. The high school faculty will number about ninety, all told, Mr. Lefler estimated. These figures are exclusive, he pointed out, of the custodial and maintenance forces. If anything, it was said, the teaching force will be stronger than last year.

PLAN ACTION TO ELIMINATE TAX DODGING

New Revenue Bill to Kill Incentive For Avoiding Levy On Incomes To Be Chief Objective of Administration.

TO BENEFIT SMALL TAXPAYER IS CLAIM

Plan to Establish An Economic Rather Than Political Basis — May Suggest Cut In Revenue to Next Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(I.N.S.)—The government has declared war on the big tax dodgers.

It was stated officially at the treasury tonight that among the administration's chief objectives in the new revenue bill would be one to kill the incentive to dodge federal taxes as well as to eliminate the methods by which big incomes can escape the collector.

It is by the correction of this evil—that of tax dodging—that the small income taxpayer will benefit chiefly, according to officials. They pointed out that as long as the great incomes, controlling the principal wealth of the nation, are able to legally escape their share of the tax bill, the load must be carried by incomes ranging downward from $25,000.

"Tax avoidance should be curbed indirectly by the enactment of a law which puts taxation on an economic rather than a political pasis," a high official said. "The burden should be lightened on the professional man, the man making his fortune, the man initiating new projects and the man keeping in business or adventuring on new enterprise."

Expects Big Return.

In conection with the study of taxation Under Secretary of the Treasury Edmiston announced that the first collection of the new fiscal year, beginning June 30, is expected to yield the government between $325,000,000 and $350,000,000.

Payments will be due on or before September 5.

Should the collection exceed the estimate it may be possible to suggest to congress a cut in revenue over the $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 now contemplated.

The September collection will turn a deficit of about $60,000,000 into a material surplus. It is anticipated a surplus will be maintained after September 15, which on June 30 probably will amount to from $350,000,000 to $400,000,000.

Income and corporation taxes for the year ending June 30 totaled $1,761,0, of which $916,00,000 was corporation tax. Eestimates for the new year put these taxes at $1,500,000000.

Officials said that Mellon's plan to cut the surtax on big incomes to 15 or 20 per cent coupled with the move to curb issuance of tax exempt securities will have a tremendous effect on re-adjusting the tax burden.

FIVE INJURED AT CROSSING

Mother and Four Children Badly Hurt When Auto Engine Dies On Track and Train Hits Car — All Expected to Recover.

(Special to The Star)

YORK, Neb., Sept. 12—Mrs. Martin Sandall, wife of a farmer living two and a quarter miles north of York, and their four children, were seriously injured Saturday afternoon when the car in which they were driving to York to do some shopping was struck by a Burlington freight train at a grade crossing a quarter of a mile south of their home.

The injured are:

Mrs. Martin Sandall, arm broken.

Margaret Sandall, aged 12, leg broken.

Jean Sandall, aged 10, bruised.

Lawrence Sandall, aged 3, bruised

Howard Sandall, aged 14 months, bruised.

The freight train was coming eastward and the automobile southward at the time of the accident. At this point the track runs right through a cut making it difficult for one coming south to observe a train coming from the west. Mrs. Sandall, whose husband was at home working in the field, drove onto the track, when her engine died, and before she and the children could leave the car it was struck by the locomotive.

The automobile was a total wreck and the injured people, all unconscious, were picked up and brought to York, where they were sent to the Lutheran hospital. They were attended by Drs. H. O. and J. S. Bell and later regained consciousness.

It is not thought that there are any internal injuries and that the victims will be able to leave the hospital in a comparatively short time.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—In one grand sweep, post office inspectors, aided by Buffalo city and railroad police, tonight arrested a gang of men who are alleged during the last three years to have looted parcel post mail at the postal transfer terminal here with losses that are reliably reported to aggregate $100,000.

Eight me, all employed as laborers in the terminal, were taken into the round-up. All are reported to have made confession.

PINCHOT HEARS OWNERS' SIDE

TO ENTERTAIN HEAD OF MINERS MONDAY

Result Of First Interview Not Made Public; Executive to Get Workers' Views From President Of Union.

MILFORD, Pa., Sept. 12—(I.N.S.)—Governor Pinchot heard the anthracite coal operators' side of the coal strike controversy this afternoon from Maj. W. A. Inglis of Scranton, chairman of the anthracite operators' wage scale negotiating committee.

They were together for about four hours at Grey Towers, the governor's home, during which they dined and talked about the coal strike situation in Pennsylvania.

The governor will have as his guest here Monday, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, when he will hear the miners' side of the controversy. The governor declared that his interest in the strike is on account of the large number of people affected directly by it.

Refuses Statement.

"I have no statement to make," he said. "We have agreed that what I said to the governor and what the governor said to me shall be kept confidential."

"Major Inglis and I have just finished a very interesting and informative conversation," Governor Pinchot told newspaper men. "I appreciate very much his willingness to come to Milford in order to assist me in posting myself on the anthracite situation.

"My interest arises from the fact that the state of Pennsylvania is concerned. The miners, the operators and the people of the anthracite region are directly affected. In addition, millions of people outside of the state, the consumers of anthracite, will be affected for good or evil. For these reasons, it is necessary the governor of Pennsylvania should keep himself informed.' "

Dubuque Victim May Be Missing Dutch Anderson

DUBUQUE, Ia., Sept. 12.—(U.P.)—What police and Coroner Edwin Streuber believe may be the body of George (Dutch) Anderson, notorious gunman and alleged murderer of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hance, near Muncie, Ind., last month, lies in the morgue here.

Comparisons of descriptions of Anderson sent out in a circular from the postoffice department at Washington, has revealed that the dead man's hair, teeth, height, weight and individual markings are identical with those of the gunman.

The body was found near a highway at the edge of town several days ago by tourists. Death is believed to have been due to acute alcoholism as no marks of violence were found on the body.

Muncie Unconvinced.

MUNICE, Ind., Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—Reports that the body of George "Dutch" Anderson, notorious "revenge slayer' and pal of Gerald Chapman, "prince of bandits," had been found near Dubuque, Ia., were given little credence here tonight.

Mussolini Seeks American Aid to Stabilize Money

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Premier Mussolini will shortly undertake the stabilization of the lira with the aid of American bankers, according to a dispatch tonight to the Sunday Times.

After stabilization has been accomplished, according to the Times correspondent, there will be a new issue of currency in which the lira will have four times its present value.

Italy will then attempt to return to the gold standard.

STATE LABOR MEETING HERE

SIXTY DELEGATES EXPECTED TO ATTEND

Business Sessions Devoted Largely to Discussion of Labor Legislation — New Officers to Be Elected.

The Nebraska Federation of Labor will hold its annual convention at the Labor Temple here beginning Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The sessions will probably last for three days, or until business, largely of a nature to promote labor legislation, is cleaned up. I. S. Betzer, president of the local and a vice president of the state federatiton, said Saturday. Harmony is to be the convention keynote.

About twenty-five delegates will be present from Lincoln, it was estimated, and probably twenty-five or thirty from other points in the state, chiefly Omaha. Each delegate body is entitled to one delegate at the state convention, and all local unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor to one delegate for each hundred or fraction of a hundred members.

Mayor Frank C. Zehrung will be asked to give the welcome address Monday morning, Mr. Betzer indicated Saturday. Governor McMullen, whom he characterized as a "friend of labor," was to have been asked to deliver the address, but that plan was abandoned because of the death of his father. Rev. Henry Smith of the Second Baptist church will pronounce invocation, and the meetings will be presided over by President N. W. Stewart of Omaha.

The first day will probably be taken up by committee appointments and deliberations and the convention will get down to business Tuesday. New officers will be elected before the meetings close.

C. P. Birk of Grand Island is secretary. O. F. Smith of Lincoln is on the legislative committee of the state body.

A number of locals are not sending delegates, it was said by Lincoln union members, because the notice of the conventiton came too late for legal election. Nevertheless the attendance is expected to run between fifty and sixty. The convention two years ago, also held in Lincoln, brought about seventy-five delegates, but the number fell off at Hastings last year.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Declaring firmly that she had no intention of seeking a divorce from her famous husband, Mrs. Rodolph Valentino, on the passenger list under her stage name of Natcha Rambova, sailed for Paris today aboard the French liner France.

Mrs. Valentino again denied reports that she and her husband are separated, stating that they are simply enjoying a "marital vacation." She was vague as to what she would do about rejoining her husband upon her return.

"It depends upon my work," she said. She said she would join her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hudnut, in France.

SEND GUNBOATS TO NICARAGUA

Political Turmoil Since Withdrawal Of U .S. Marines Leads To Step.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. — (I. N. S.)—The gunboats Tulsa and Denver, of the special service squadron, now in Panama, have been ordered to proceed to Nicaragua and await further orders, it was reported here today.

Although lacking confirmation, news of the reported departure of gunboats did not occasion surprise in Washington as the Nicaraguan political situation has been continually in a state of turmoil since the United States marines were withdrawn several weeks ago.

WARNING NOTES SENT W. C. T. U.

Letters Charging "Meddlesome" Activities Follow Mrs. Cook's Slaying.

New Witnesses Are To Be Questioned In Probe Of Iowa Woman's Death.

VINTON, Ia., Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—Self-styled champions of personal freedom are seizing upon the opportunity afforded by the supposed assassination of Mrs. C. B Cook, temperance crusader, to warn the Women's Christian Temperance union that its activities are "meddlesome."

Since Mrs. Cook was shot as she sat writing a temperance paper before the window of her home here Monday night, local authorities and members of the county W. C. T. U., of which she was president, have received scores of "scoff law" letters from throughout the country.

Another, signed "Norman Lolly," Camden, N. J., says in part:

Prohibition Described.

An unsigned note from Boston, Mass., describes prohibition as "a brotherhood of fools, murderers, bootleggers, thieves and fanatics."

John B. Hammond, Iowa dry crusader, said all letters would be turned over to the postoffice authorities for investigation.

The theory that Mrs. Cook was assassinated because of her stand against prohibition law violators, however, lacks material support, authorities now believe.

The long and secret coroner's inquest has gone over until Monday when Mrs. Cook's husband will be questioned further. Thus far he has merely told of his movements before and at the time of the murder, explaining that when his wife was killed he was at Grundy Center, 40 miles from here.

Coroner C. L. Modlin said he had new clues and new witnesses to investigate next week, but refused to reveal the nature of the clues or the identity of the new witnesses.

Find Woman's Body Near Wisconsin City

RACINE, Wis., Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—Discovery of the body of a woman, partly buried under mud and water, in a ravine south of here tonight presented authorities with a murder mystery.

The body was well clothed. There were no marks on the clothing to give the police any clue as to the victim's identity.

A razor nearby, authorities believed, scouted the suicide theory.

Superficial examination revealed that the body had lain in the improvised grave about three months, according to a coroner's physician.

Poor Farm Charge Inherits Fortune

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Sept. 12.—George Lawrence, a charge at the county farm here, has fallen heir to the snug sum of $20,000 through the death of a brother in Wisconsin, and Attorney Lloyd Crocker of this city has filed a petition in county court asking for the removal of G. L. Mumford of this city as guardian. Lawrence has been brought to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvert where he is receiving medical care. He is nearly eighty years of age.

A WHIRLWIND FRENCH DRIVE IS CONTINUING

Adversaries of Abd-El-Krim In Morocco Reach All Objectives In What May Prove Decisive Battle of Long Conflict.

FEZ, Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—French troops, driving against the savage Riffians of Abd-El-Krim in what may prove the decisive battle of the war in Morocco, reached all their objectives tonight.

At dawn both wings of the French line swung into action in a drive over a wide area between the Ouergha and the Sra, and on toward Amjoy, a towering mountain held by the tribesmen.

Complete success was reported at French headquarters here.

Riff Fighters Beaten Back

ABD-EL-KRIM.

Smashing attacks by French troops in the Moroccan war, Saturday drove the savage warriors of Abd-El-Krim far back and enabled the French to reach all their objectives. Complete success was reported at the Fez headquarters of the French in what may prove to be the decisive battle of the war.

French Unhalted.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—French troops continued their whirlwind drive against the Riffs today taking all of their objectives without serious resistance from the tribesmen, according to reports reaching the war office.

In leaps and bounds the French offensive has swept forward, at one time reaching a speed of three miles in four hours, re-occupying many posts which were captured by the Riffs earlier in the campaign.

Artillery continued to pour shells into the Riffian lines, and airplanes are maintaining a constant bombardment. Behind this curtain of steel, French infantry and cavalry sweep onward in fan-like formation the attack spreading between Tafrant and Taounat.

Fog Only Obstacle.

Fog has been the only serious obstacle that the French invaders have encountered for it has hindered artillery range finding, but at the same time it has acted as cover for the infantry scaling the rocky ridges through olive and fig groves which naturally afford but little cover. Entrenched tribesmen from the top of the rocky ridges poured unceasing rifle fire upon the French.

On the west wing, the French now have re-established their line at one point in territory which has been held by the Riffs ever since the imbroglio started.

Krim's greatest defense appears to have been created in the center of the attack where strong defenses on high slopes make the offensive most difficult, since there is little in the way of natural cover for the advancing troops

Airplanes Active.

MADRID, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Spanish airplanes and warships continued to rain shells on the Moroccan coast between Cape Quilates and Sidi Driss today. Ammunition was unloaded at the position already held by the Spanish.

The successful landing of troops, it was believed, would increase the defections of wavering tribes who stayed with Abd-El-Krim as long as he was winning

Meantime, according to the statement of General Jordana member of the directory, the Spanish situation has been improved in the western zone, the scene of active fighting even before the Albucemas bay operation started.

Krim Forced To Flee.

MADRID, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—So intense is the Spanish drive on Ajdir that Abd-El Krim has been forced to flee from his stronghold there and take up headquarters about ten miles to the southward, according to an official communique issued here.

"The Spanish troops are advancing in good order in the Albucemas zone, and disembarkations are continuing," the communique said.

CLAIMS FARMERS ARE PROSPEROUS

Banker Testifies Agriculturalists Can Pay Railroad Rate Increase.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—The first week of the special interstate commerce commission hearings here on the request of western railroads for a freight rate increase of 5 per cent concluded with presentation of evidence designed to show that farmers can afford an increase.

Albert H. Denton, president of the Home National bank of Arkansas City, Kas., summarized the banking opinion when he said:

"The farmer now has his feet on the ground. Nineteen twenty-four was a good year for the farmers. They made material progress, paid off many of their debts, and their general condition, from a financial standpoint, is satisfactory. The deposits of the Home National bank are now higher than ever before and this is a direct reflection of the farmers' condition, as agriculture is the backbone and foundation of Kansas.

"You will find our farmers adding a little more land to their farms, improving their property, and in aword, they are now on a sound and wholesome basis."

The hearings will continue next week.

CROWD GIVEN THRILL.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Thousands who lined the board walk tonight to witness a display of fireworks three miles at sea in connection with the national beauty pageant were treated to an unexpected thrill when a series of premature explosions occurred on one of the six coast guard cutters which were staging the pyrotechnics. A small fire followed the explosions. No one was seriously injured, however.

DELAY PARIS HOP-OFF

ETAMPES FLYING FIELD, France, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Three attempts by the Aviators Cotes and Thierry to get away on their attempted flight from Paris to Bagdad in two hops failed today. Wind conditions and the heavy load their airplane carried prevented them taking off. The attempt will be made again Sunday.

An Elephant Hunt Is Under Way In Arkansas Woods

TUPELO, Ark., Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—An elephant hunt was on in the woods near here tonight.

One hundred men pursued three and a half ton Tex, titanic terror of the tent, who lifted his jungle voice in jubilant freedom and uprooted saplings, tossing them over his back as he ploughed through the timber lands.

Tex broke away from his trainer yesterday after severely injuring him. He is 65 years old and is said to have killed nine men.

The posse is equipped with powerful rifles and has orders from the circus management to "get" the animal dead or alive.

Gets No Credit On His Fine For Staying In Jail

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., Sept. 12. — Found guilty of the illegal sale and possession of intoxicants, and fined $200 and costs taxed at $48.50, Garrett Snyder, a young farmer living in Otoe county, informed County Judge F. C. Radke that he could not pay and that he would "lay it out" in the county jail. This evidently did not please the judge, and he advised the prisoner he would get no credit for "laying" in the jail, but rather that just as long as he chose to stay there his menu would be of 'that amount of bread and water to sustain an idle man" only.

The judge advised Snyder that if he chose to go out and work on the roads of the county, at hard labor, he would allow him $3 for each day's labor performed and that he would be properly fed at the jail. At last accounts Snyder had made no decision and was in jail. Snyder's wife appeared in the court and stated the services of her husband were needed to support her and their five small children. Judge Radke referred the woman to the Otoe county officials.

Snyder was picked up at a picnic recently held at Cook, in this county, where he was charged with selling hooch.

An Aviator Falls 1,000 Feet From Plane And Killed

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(N.S.) Traveling at a height of 1,000 feet, Al Johnson, 30, an aviator from Roosevelt field, fell from an airplane to his death today. His body landed in a field near Mineola.

Also in the plane at the time was Louis Meyers, the pilot. He tried to grab Johnson but failed.

Johnson leaned over to talk to Meyers. Just at that moment the airplane struck an air pocket, precipitating Johnson out of the machine.

Road Conditions

The following report on highways in this vicinty was given out Saturday afternoon by the Lincoln Auto club.

Road construction throughout the country is being rushed through to completion before the winter season stops work. Many detours have been eliminated in other states the past week, and many will be taken off between September 15 and 25.

C. H. No. 9 north to Fremont, dirt to Ceresco, good. Graveled roads in good condition to Cedar Bluffs, loose gravel into Fremont, but very passable. Roads on the C. H., No. 9 to Oakland, fairly good. Poor from Oakland to Homer, via Walthill and Winnebago.

S. Y. A. No. 11, use D L D cut off which is graveled to Seward. Gravel being placed to York, in good condition York west to Grand Island fair to good. Grand Island west on No. 6, some construction work in places, but generally good to North Platte and Cheyenne. Wyoming roads are reported good.

Seward to David City, to Columbus, slightly rough in places. Columbus north fair to good, mostly gravel to Norfolk. Fair to good to Yankton. Yankton to Mitchell, S. D. Graveled partly, Mitchell west on the Custer Battlefield highway to Chamberlain to Rapid City and the Black Hills, unusually good. Good to Sheridan.

Meridian Highway No. 4, Columbus south to Kansas line, very good. Slightly rough through Kansas in spots. Heavy rains through western Kansas, around Dodge City, are reported.

East O No. 11, small detour, roads generally fair to good. Rains reported around Nebraska City, Auburn and Falls City, into Kansas City, Saturday morning. Roads will be rough today.

K. T. No. 5, from Omaha south, good to Nebraska City, North of Omaha, fair.

Harding highway east from Nebraska City, one or two small detours ,and some rain reported. Will be good in a few days.

To Florida: No. 7 to Chicago Heights then south on the Dixie highway. Road conditions generally fair to good. Detour which was being made between Corbin and Barbourville, 17.3 miles is now opened and paving is being used.

To Los Angeles, the National Old Trails via Denver are recommended. Rough and choppy stretches are reported between Flagstaff and Winslow, then fair to California pavement.

The Southwest Trail or extreme southern route to California which will probably be used after November 1, is being improved. Contracts have been let covering eleven miles of hard road between Holtville and El Centro, and 6 miles of paving over the sandhills between Yima, Ariz., and Holtville.

The New Mexican state commission advises that a new road has been added to the state system, to be known as New Mexico 26. Is is described as follows: Road is located in extreme southern corner of state and enters New Mexico just southwest of Blue Springs, then northeast through Carlsbad and Pearl to Lovington, then east to the Texas line. This would indicate that preparations are being made to serve the winter tourist trade.

Wire for Aerial Conductors.

Stranded phosphor bronze cable is best for aerial construction ,as the stranded wires present a greater surface for a given weight of wire than one solid wire and the high frequency wireless currents travel only a short depth below the surface of the conductors. Iron wire alone for aerial conductors should be avoided, as the iron will cause an electro-magnetic reaction on the oscillating current in the wire, tending to choke them and diminish their strength.

Ford Runs 57 Miles on Gallon of "Gas"

A new automatic and self-regulating device has been invented by John A. Stransky, J-541 Stransky building, Pukwana, South Dakota, with which automobiles have made from 35 to 57 miles on a gallon of gasoline. It removes carbon and reduces spark plug trouble and overheating. It can be installed by anyone in five minutes. Mr. Stransky wants distributors and is willing to send a sample at his own risk. REDUCE STATE'S EXPENDITURES IN LAST BIENNIUM

State expenditures of Nebraska were reduced more than 2 1-2 million dollars during the fiscal biennium ending June 30, 1925, as compared with the preceding two-year period which terminated June 30, 1923. Figures compiled by the state finance department show that total disbursements for the later period were $23,245,848, as against $25,839,593 for the former.

The reduction in governmental costs during the last biennium averaged more than $100,000 per month. It made possible a decrease in state taxes from 2.3 mills three years ago to 2 mills in 1923, and a further cut to 1.8 mills in 1924.

All departments of the government contributed to the lessed expenditures, with the single exception of the judiciary. The following tabulation is a comparative exhibit of the disbursements for each biennial period:

Expending Agencies	2 Yrs. End. June 30, '25	2 Yrs. End. June 30, '23
Legislature	$ 187,862	$ 188,508
Judiciary	754,919	740,518
Exec. depts.	703,888	774,616
Code depts.	2,522,822	3,044,904
Sundry depts.	2,626,613	2,880,962
Special app'ns.	114,648	149,280
Education	7,882,799	8,220,674
Penal and charitable institutions	4,522,565	4,799,313
Road and bridge defic. (1921-22)	467,202	....
Road and bridge construction	4,949,668	5,202,292
Claims and defic.	42,721	....
	$23,245,848	$25,829,593

Road Deficiencies Widen Gap.

It will be noted in the forgotten statement that the old highway deficit of more than $400,000 incurred in 1921 and 1922 is charged to the 1923-4 bienniums, because it was not paid until after the legislature of 1925 had made a special appropriation for that purpose. This amount should properly be deducted from the total of the latter biennium and charged to the former.

The real difference in gross expenditures between the two bienniums is about $3,000,000 in favor of the one last past, and the saving actually was at the rate of $150,000 per month if all bills had been paid as they were incurred.

Even the decreased rate of expenditure, it cost the state almost a million dollars each month to carry on all its governmental activities, and provide for necessary buildings and other improvements.

The state of Nebraska is no piker when it comes to paying out money. During the last biennium its outlay for salaries and wages of officers and employes reached the handsome total of $7,526,552, and on top of that it $501,268 more for "temporary services" of persons not on its regular payroll.

Over Half Million For Fuel.

To operate power plants and furnish heat at the different institutions the state ran up a fuel bill of $501,076 in the two years. Food for the inmates and administrative forces at the penal and charitable institutions cost $1,024,789, while the outlay for wearing apparel was $227,070.

Postage paid for by the state in carrying on correspondence and sending out parcel post packages and printed matter aggregated the sum of $99,234, or over $4,000 a month. This was enough to have mailed out 200,000 letters every month, each bearing a 2-cent stamp.

Telephone and telegraph charges came to $46,887; freight, express and drayage, to $57,485; water, heating services, and electric light, $288,864; printing, photographs, etc., $160,719.

The state paid railroad fare of its officers and employes to the amount of $146,837, while bills for automobile hire and miscellaneous means of transportation added $96,175 more. Board and lodging for officers, inspectors and other employes while traveling caused drafts to be made on the treasury for a total of $193,052. Miscellaneous other traveling expenses paid out of public funds were $20,019.

Buildings and office space rented by the state during the biennium cost $23,888, and $7,647 was paid for land used mainly in raising crops at state institutions.

Hastings Notes

Dean D. E. Weyer announced from his office Friday that the present enrollment for the fall term is 475 students. Other students Other students have not completed their registrations, and still others will arrive in Hastings later, and Dean Weyer expects that the enrollment for the semester will reach at least 500. This is the largest enrollment which the college has ever had, and does not include registrations in the conservatory of music. Last year's enrollment during the week following the registration was 460.

Classes and instruction in the conservatory of music will begin Monday of this week. The registration in that department is especially large this year, and Hayes M. Fuhr, director believes that the total enrollment will exceed that of any previous year.

Tryouts for the Hastings college orchestra are well under way. Under the direction of Prof. Frank Noyes, head of the violin department, a large group of students are having personal tryouts for places on the orchestra. The college authorities expect a larger and better orchestra this year than ever before because of the large number of students from which selections may be made, and the ability of Prof. Noyes. Mr. Noyes is recognized as an artist and instructor of ability and he has had considerable orchestral experience. He studied under Max Bendix, Scipioni Guidi, and Frederick Fadkin. He played a season with the American Orchestral society of New York City, and during two seasons was concertmeister, soloist, and assistant director of the Shubert Symphony orchestra. Orchestra rehearsals will start this week following the selection of the members of the organization.

Pres. Calvin H. French attended the meeting of the Hastings presbytery at Nelson Thursday and Friday last week. He was accompanied by Rev. J. W. Pressley of Omaha, Presbyterian synodical superintendent of missions, who visited chapel on Thursday morning. Hastings college conferred the honorary degree of doctor of divinity upon Mr. Pressley during the commencement week last June.

STOCKS REGAIN LOSS IN PRICES

Industrial Move Higher After Moderate Declines Of Preceding Two Weeks.

Wheat Price Drop Due To Liberal Estimates Of Other Countries' Crops.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Industrial stocks have regained all of the losses in prices sustained in the moderate decline which took place in the preceding two weeks. The market, although active, has been extremely narrow and speculative activity was largely confined to the "pets" of the professionals and pool traders.

Motor stocks have advanced to the highest level of the year.

The industrial and financial developments of the week were favorable. A flurry in call loan rates at the beginning of the week attracted a good volume of funds from the outside points and the rate settled back to 4 per cent for over week-end loans.

MOTOR STOCKS LEAD.

As in the preceding two or three weeks, stocks of the motor companies continued to lead the upward procession. Chrysler Motor started the week with a 10-point boost, but Studebaker, General Motors and Willys Overland common were in the forefront of a vigorous upward movement at the close of the week. A few of the high priced market leaders in the industrial and specialty stocks joined the upward movement late in the week, but railroad stocks were held back by lack of special developments in the rate hearing and consolidation matters and the failure of the Southern Railway directors to increase the dividend on the common stock to 7 per cent.

CURB INDUSTRIALS SPURT.

Both the public utility stocks and the industrials in the curb list sold at higher price levels this week, but industrials made a slightly better showing than the utilities. Trading in the industrials also broadened considerably among the motor, radio, tire, refrigerator and coal company shares. After early irregularity, the utility stocks recovered most of their losses and were again ready to advance to higher price levels. The oil stocks held their ground.

WHEAT DROPS—COTTON ADVANCES.

The heavy decline in wheat prices this week was due to more liberal estimates of Canadian and Argentine crops and the possible clogging of some of the important export markets.

Cotton spurted in a lively fashion as a result of the publication of the crop report, showing a decline of about 250,000 bales in probable yield as compared with the estimates issued two weeks ago.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Call money rose to 5 1-2 per cent this week, but only a small volume of funds was loaned at that rate and offerings were abundant at 4 per cent on the exchange and 3 3-4 per cent in the outside market in the last two full days of the week.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the decline in the pound sterling to the lowest rate since the return of England to the gold basis.

Bank clearings for the week aggregated $7,023,612,000, the 17.7 per cent decline being due to the holiday on Monday.

Find Lifeless Body Of Youth After a Cave-In at Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—The heart of Chicago's west side tenement district was broken this afternoon as the lifeless form of 14-year-old Thomas Zygield was found under tons of gray clay that entombed him when a bank on which he was playing caved in Thursday afternoon.

For nearly forty-eight hours rescue workers, equipped with all the machinery that a sympathetic city could provide, had pushed back the clay in a vain and desperate hope that the boy would be alive.

Hope had been abandoned, however, many hours before a motionless white arm was uncovered and the pulse was found to be still.

Hundreds from the tenement district surrounded the workers during the long hours and had to be kept back from the pit by a squad of police reserves. In the center of the throng was Thomas' father, Joseph Zygield, and his two sisters, Julia and Amelia.

When the boy's arm was sighted a groan went up from the crowd and scores surrounded the grief stricken father and sisters, attempting to comfort them. Tears fell freely from eyes that were accustomed to suffering.

Thomas was playing in the clay pit of a brick company with two other boys when a huge bank gave way and dropped them over the brink. The others escaped before the final cave-in buried Thomas.

This region's council will meet in Lawrence, Kas., in a few weeks to plan the year's work. Miss Gillet's particular department will have to do with industrial questions. Miss Gillet has been active in Y. W. work at Wesleyan. Last year she had charge of the freshman commission which trains the new girls in the work of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Lois Martin, '24, is music supervisor and also has high school work at Diller.

Bankers Life Insurance Company,
Lincoln, Nebraska.

Gentlemen:

Received your letter of August 11th instant with my policy approved as fully paid up insurance, also settlement of $558.70.

The settlement is very satisfactory and promptly made. The total premiums I paid was $1,008.00 less settlement of $558.70 makes the net cost of the $2,000.00 fully paid up insurance policy of $449.30 which is very low rate of premium.

I cannot praise the Bankers Life Insurance Company of Nebraska too highly and cheerfully recommend it to anyone desiring life insurance. If I could not, I would not have taken out another policy with them. My only regret is, that I did not take out $10,000 when I took the $2,000 policy. It would have been the best investment possible for me to have made at that time.

Yours truly,

HAWAIIANS PAY HONOR TO NAVY PACIFIC FLIERS

mander Rodgers was reacting more slowly to treatment than his comrades because apparently he had borne the brunt of the long watches abroad the PN-9 No. 1 during the nine days she had drifted helpless in the tropical waters of the mid-Pacific.

On Monday "Cold Nerve" John and the commandant of the Fourteenth naval district will visit the PN-9 No. 1 to make official measurements and readings from the instruments.

A source to continued wonderment to all who have come into contact with the rescued fliers is the splendid way in which they are bearing up. Their exploit apparently means nothing to them.

All In A Day's Work.

"All in the day's work," seems to be their matter of fact attitude.

"Ready to go any place again at a moment's notice—and like we did this time, we'd get there, too."

Tobacco was what the fliers missed most. While at Lihue cleaning up preparatory to go to bed, one of the five brave men said that what he considered his real grief was that his supply of the weed had completely gone out on him.

Another flier observed that h hoped "my car in Honolulu had not been sold after hope had been given up that we would not be found."

Before today's visit to Governor Farrington, Commander Rodgers sent the following message:

"Sorry to be late keeping my appointment with you last Monday. Suggest Saturday, any time you set for our calling at capitol. Doctor has advised us spend night in hospital."

After their twelve hours sleep, the five heroes had another good breakfast and then turned to newspaper files to see what the world had been reading about their marvelous adventure.

"It doesn't look as if they had much hope," one of them remarked as he read articles speculating on how the plane had gone down.

Fliers Says They're "All Right."

The fliers to a man maintained they were all right. "We don't have to be treated like invalids," they said. "We are perfectly capable of taking care of ourselves."

Morale of the five castaways aboard the derelict plane was always at a high pitch. The men had great faith in the PN-9 No. 1.

"She is a great plane," they declared. "She is capable of maintaining herself upon the surface of the ocean in ordinary weather almost indefinitely. We never gave up hope."

The men pointed out that the San Francisco-Honolulu flight was to be a non-stop affair only in the event that favorable winds develop.

"In event such winds did not come up, we were prepared to refuel ourselves at a guard ship and then continue the flight," they explained.

Everything would have been all right if only the plane had found the guard ship Aroostook, ninth ship in line, 1,800 miles from the Golden Gate.

"That was the ship at which we were going to re-fuel," the aviators said.

Rodgers Praises Navy.

Commander Rodgers was warm in his praise of the way in which the navy handled the entire flight project.

"I wish to say," he declared, "that as Hawaiian flight commander, I was fully supported by all units of the navy."

Literally thousands of citizens gathered in the historic capitol grounds to witness the governor and army, navy and municipal officers receive Commander Rodgers and his men.

After a reception on the capitol steps, the party adjourned to the old bandstand of King Kalakaua. After Governor Farrington had led in three rousing cheers for the "nine day wonders," each airman individually told the story of the epic journey.

Rodgers spoke humorously amid the laughter and handclapping of the crowd.

"I wish first to express appreciation for the wonderful reception given us by the people of Hawaii. It has been typical of their well known generosity and hospitality.

"Let me say that while lost in our plane we were drifting continuously. At no time did we have sails up and neither did we have a man steering the PN-9 No. 1.

Never Lost Hope.

"We all felt that in spite of the fact that our food was out and our water low, if we managed to keep the old boat afloat somebody would come along and pick us up. Either that or we'd make port.

"However, as it turned out somebody came along.

"My great worry was whether at the end of our journey, we'd get court martialed for losing our boat. It's a great pleasure, indeed, to return and find the country satisfied that we are alive."

Lieut. Byron James Connell, pilot and second in command of the P N-9 No. 1, was the next speaker.

"Let me tell you," he said, "how very thankful we all are that we had a man like Commander Rodgers with us. He was up three or four times every day and the same number of times at night taking observations.

"Commander Rodgers knew at all times just where we were and I believe he stablished a record in naval history by bringing our boat 400 miles to safety when we had absolutely no power on control."

Pipe Speaks Next.

Skiles R. Pope, second pilot, followed Connell.

"I am not a speech maker," Pope said. "The only thing I can think of is to say how thankful we are to be here and how we appreciate your wonderful hospitality."

Radio man Otis Gilbert Stantz and William M. Bowlin, the airplane's mechanic, told the audience how thankful the crew of the giant seaplane was that they had Commander Rodgers in charge.

Coast Girl Denies She's Engaged to Com. John Rodgers

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Miss Jean Vaughan, a beautiful Los Angeles girl, denied today she was engaged to marry Commander John Rodgers hero of the illfated Hawaiian trip of the navy seaplane PN-9 No. 1.

"We are very good friends—that's all," Miss Vaughan declared. "Our families have been friends for a long time, but who said we were engaged?"

"Some day, of course, we might be but right now we are not, and don't dare say I said we were."

"I'm so happy about it all, but this silly business of our being engaged will spoil everything."

Saturday morning a general faculty meeting at the high school auditorium was conducted by Superintendent Lefler and in the afternoon principals of the schools held meetings of each faculty group.

Mr. Lefler introduced Will French, new principal of the high school, who comes from Winfield, Kas., at the Saturday morning gathering; Paul Campbell, assistant high school principal who was formerly principal at Okmulgees, Okla.; Harvey Long, director of physical and health education in the city system, and Dr. R. B. Adams who has assumed the position of school physician.

Announcement was also made by Lefler of the appointment of J. Mr. Paplow of the Milwaukee vocation schools as director of industrial arts in the Lincoln system. His appointment will come up for approval at the regular board of education meeting Tuesday along with those of a few "fill-ins" who are taking the places of several teachers who are unable to be on hand for the opening of school.

Mr. Lefler also met separately with the group of new teachers, about thirty. The "turnover" is small in Lincoln's school teaching force, Mr. Lefler commented, and i. especially so this year.

In his address to the entire faculty of the schools Mr. Lefler emphasized the effort to establish professional service in the schools, the new building program, the board of education's health education program, discussed in detail a summary of facts of a statistical nature developed in the past year, and stressed the necessity for constant economy in both administration and operation of the schools.

The speaker called attention to the fact that the board of education closed the last fiscal year without a deficit in any fund for the first time since 1907. It will be necessary, he said, to practice economy because the total assessed valuation, upon which school support depends has not increased over [illegible] years. A conservative set of estimates has been placed in the new budget, Mr. Lefler declared, and it will be sufficient to operate the schools if everyone connected with the schools realized the necessity of living within it.

Officer Guarding Dawes On Coast Injured In Crash

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12. — (I. N. S.)—Vice President Charles G. Dawes' introduction into the motion pictures through the medium of a tour through the leading studios was brought to a climax late today when Motorcycle Officer Gus C Hoore, a member of the official police, was run down and seriously injured in a crash with a speeding automobile.

Halting his chauffeur, the vice president leaped from his car and rushed to the injured officer who lay sprawled in the middle of the highway. He was followed an instant later by Mrs. Dawes, who knelt in the roadway and tenderly lifted the accident victim's head.

Assuming command, the vice president ordered back the crowd streaming from the sidewalks and aided later in lifting the injured officer into a hastily summoned ambulance.

Dawes shook the hand of the injured officer as he was started for the hospital where later it was said his injuries were not believed to be fatal.

Americans Buying More Goods Made In United States

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—Announcement that organized labor, through an educational campaign, will encourage a policy of purchasing "made in America" goods in preference to those of foreign manufacture, calls attention to the fact that this movement is already well under way.

Government figures show that the percentage of manufactured articles in our imports is decreasing steadily. This, of course, means that Americans each year are buying more articles of American make and less of foreign manufacture.

It may be double if the tendency continues.

The present tendency is the result of economic developments and of the successful efforts of American manufacturers to compete with those abroad rather than to any definite effort on the part of the consumer to buy American made articles.

Queen Elizabeth Of Belgium Has Her Hair Bobbed

BRUSSELS, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.) — Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, is Europe's first and only shingled queen.

It is reported that when the queen broached the subject of having her hair shingled to her court ladies, some of them protested on the grounds that it was undignified.

"I fear, mesdames," the queen replied, "that your hair is longer than your views," and straightway the queen had her hair shingled.

COMMITTEE OF NINE IS NAMED BY PRESIDENT

forenoon, when I shall suggest to them that they organize by selecting their own chairman and proceed immediately to a consideration of the problem involved so that they can report by the latter part of November."

(The names were here inserted.)

Writes To Members.

The president had sent the following letter to the members he has designated as members of the board:

"Enclosed is a copy of a communication which you may have seen in the press. I request that you serve in the capacity indicated and I would like you to meet me at the white house on Thursday, September 17, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon and lunch with me at 11 o'clock. I feel that your efforts will result in bringing out the good qualities of the air service and in suggesting what action can be taken for their improvement."

While former army and navy officers have places on the investigating board, the majority will be civilians, chosen by the president because of their special knowledge of the problems presented and because he believed that the country would have confidence in the conclusions reached.

It is the president's plan to have the board start its inquiry at once so that a report may be ready by the last of November for transmission to congress in December.

Letters Not Made Public.

The letters of Secretary Wilbur and Davis suggesting the investigations were not made public. Davis' views on this question were made known at the war department on Thursday and the following day he made the suggestion to the president at the cabinet meeting. At that time Wilbur did not favor the investigation, having stated publicly that he did not think a further probe of military aeronautics was necessary. The white house announcement tonight, however, indicated that his views changed after he discussed the problem with the President and Davis, who also called Secretary of Commerce Hoover into the conference.

The aircraft controversy which has been raging in the capital since the destruction of the dirigible Shenandoah and Colonel Mitchell's slashing attack on his superiors in the army and upon officers of the navy bureau of aeronautics increased in intensity instead of subsiding when the president's announcement was circulated tonight in army and navy circles.

Friends of Mitchell pointed out that he had demanded such an investigation and that the president's action could be looked upon as a partial vindication for the "flying general," now stationed in San Antonio as a colonel because he refused to remain silent on matters affecting the equipment and operation of military aviation.

Superiors' Backers' Confident.

Supporters of Mitchell's superiors, however, declare that the investigation would merely demonstrate to the satisfaction of all concerned that the army air service and the navy bureau of aeronautics had been conducted efficiently and that Mitchell's charges would all be proved false.

The investigation by President Coolidge's commission, however, will not halt the proceedings now being instituted against Mitchell, who is due to be courtmartialed for alleged insubordination and probably asked to resign from the army.

Official papers in the case were enroute tonight to the war department from Maj. Gen. Ernest Hinds, commandant of the Eighth corps area at San Antonio.

Upon the basis of Hinds, report, Acting Secretary of War Davis will probably order Mitchell placed on trial.

Prior to announcing his plans for an independent investigation, the president conferred with one member of the board of inquiry, Howard E. Coffin, of Detroit, president of the National Air Transport. Coffin supported the contention of Colonel Mitchell that a comprehensive federal aircraft policy should be formulated immediately.

Mitchell Satisfied.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 12.—(I.N.S.)—"President Coolidge has made a very, very wise move to appoint a monpartisan board such as he named to investigate the war and navy departments and the deplorable conditions existing in our anr service,' 'declared Col. William M. Mitchell when first informed that the president had ordered a sweeping probe as a result of his charges.

Colonel Mitchel refused to comment on the personnel of the board but said that President Coolidge's action was directly in line with what he had been working for months to bring about.

"We want action and at last it appears that the wheels have been set in motion," the "stormy petrel" said.

"The personnel of the board is a steondary matter, for this is not a political question, but one which vitally concerns the entire country. In the end, the American people are the only judges. All the evidence must be brought before this board and made public before the people must know what is going on," he continued.

Colonel Mitchell was obviously pleased with developments in Washington and made no effort to conceal his elation over the appointment of the investigating committee.

The colonel was in the saddle, following a pack of baying hounds on a wolf hunt, when he learned of the president's action.

The news was the one thing more important to the air critic than the chase.

After hearing the news of the board's appointment and silently considering the individual members as they were read off to him, Colonel Mitchell made his brief comment and smilingly rejoined his hunting party.

MUNICIPAL POOL TO CLOSE SUNDAY

Filtration Plant Costing $15,000 To Be Installed During Off Season.

Sunday marks the end of the 1925 swimming season at the Municipal plunge, it was anounced Saturday by Commissioner Trev Gilespie, head of the park department. When the doors close Sunday night they will not be opened again until the season of 1926, he said.

When the pool opens agan many changes will have been made in the equipment. According to Gilespie as soon as City Engineer D. L. Erickson can spare the men, he will start changing the drain pipes in the bottom of the tank, preparatory to the installation of a filtration plant which, it is anticipated, will be ready before spring. Some repair work is also necessary and this will be done by the engineer. Appropriation of $15,000 was made by the council in the 1925-26 budget to build the plant.

Installation of the filtration plant in the opinion of Commissioner Gillaspie, will increase the attendance and make swimming in the pool a greater pleasure than heretofore. The water will be kept at an even temperature and a complete change will take place at least twice every day.

The plant is to be installed to relieve the strain on the water department which furnishes the water. It will also relieve Commissioner Schroeder of the expense of sinking a well near the pool, which he had intended doing.

Attendance at the pool during 1925 established a record, in the opinion of Harold Browne, manager.

City Briefs

To Discuss Gas Tax—A resolution claiming exemption on 5,527 gallons of gasoline used in municipal motor cars, passed a week ago by the city council, will be discussed by the commissioners Monday afternoon. It is anticipated at the city hall that a move will be made to reconsider. Although the propriety of the city claiming exemption has been questioned by state officials and business interests, Commissioner Duncan, father of the claim, said Saturday that he is not receding from his position.

Cars Collide—Automobiles driven by C. L. Travelupe, 226 North Twenty-sixth street, and Miss N. Broadwater, 2753 Dudley street, collided at Twentieth and O streets Saturday night. Travelupe stopped suddenly and his car was struck from the rear, according to police. The damage was slight.

Gallaghers to Make Home In Lincoln

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gallagher, recently of Casper, Wyo., are back from a two months' trip by automobile which covered 10,000 miles and took them first to New York, then down the Atlantic coast to Florida, returning by way of Atlanta, Nashville and St. Louis. They have decided to make Lincoln their home and Mr. Gallagher will have decided to make Lincoln their home and Mr. Gallagher will engage in legal practice here. He formerly lived at O'Neill, was deputy county attorney there for a time, and represented Holt county in the 1923 legislative session. Mrs. Gallagher is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Fenton.

Commenting on the Florida real estate boom, Mr. Gallagher said that people are flocking thither from all over the country with the idea of making speculative fortunes but there is nothing substantial on which permanent prosperity could be based. Everybody who buys land does so with the expectation of reselling it to northerners who come in later, at a big advance. Purchasers who have acquired real estate with the idea of holding it are few and far between.

"The huge reclamation projects we hear so much about up here are largely in the talk stage as yet," Mr. Gallagher said. "Much of Florida still consists of forests, jungles and swamp lands."

A severe drought in the two Carolinas and Georgia has dried up the grass and the leaves on the trees, Mr. Gallagher reports, while the cotton crop in those states is almost a complete failure.

BIG CORN CROP.

BEATRICE, Neb., Sept. 12.—Corn in this section of the state is maturing nicely and will be ready to gather in a few weeks. Gage county will produce the biggest crop in years. Chinch bugs have done some damage to the crop, but farmers say that the cool weather and rains of Friday will have a tendency to drive them out of the fields.

State's Industrial Progress Seen in Sugar Manufactures

Those who argue that a great manufacturing industry will never be built up in middle western states such as Nebraska, are simply arguing against the old saying that the mountain will not go to Mohammed.

Residents of the plains are compelled to send their produce to far distant markets but that does not blind them to the fact that manufactured goods made in a nearby town or city can be bought cheaper than those freighted back from the far away metropolis. Much of the manufacturing here is concerned with turning out those articles which citizens of Nebraska use in every day life.

Another class is that in which bulky goods found or grown on the plains are turned into finished products before being sent away to consumers all over the country and in foreign lands. In this class may be placed butter, as we have in this state the largest butter center of the world. Corn products, canned goods, flour and a score of others could be named.

The production of beet sugar is virtually consummated on Nebraska's farms. The mills are located in the center of the sugar beet producing districts, aiding in the upbuilding of such centers as Scottsbluff, Gering, Mitchell, Bayard and Grand Island.

By-products of beet raising and of beet sugar manufacturing, such as the plant tops, wet pulp, dried pulp and residual molasses, are converted on the farms into beef and mutton.

The beet sugar industry has played no small part in the splendid growth of the irrigated districts of Nebraska which in water and soil facilities for producing this staple are unexcelled by any other portion of the United States.

Nebraska Self-Sufficient in Sugar

State produces on irrigated lands in northwestern counties more than enough beet sugar to supply annual requirements of all its people.

Nebraska's manufacturing resources are nowhere better illustrated than in its production of sugar, a leading food staple.

At present five large, modern mills in the North Platte Valley of the state annually make more sugar than is consumed within Nebraska's borders.

The export of a portion of the 200,000,000 pounds of Nebraska-made beet sugar brings into the state annually millions of dollars of wealth. The use by loyal Nebraska residents of their home-produced beet sugar keeps in circulation within the state other millions of dollars.

PROUD OF QUALITY

Nebraskans may fairly take pride in their own beet sugar ... it is made to fit the highest standards of purity known in the sugar industry.

It is the only widely advertised GUARANTEED sugar available to the housewife ... an unqualified guarantee through the grocer that the sugar must give complete satisfaction for every purpose, particularly for canning, preserving and jelly making.

Great Western Sugar has been made in Nebraska for fifteen years and among the intelligent, experienced buyers of sugar bears an enviable reputation for the highest quality.

LECTURER SPEAKS AT LOCAL CHURCH

W. D. Kilpatrick Addresses Christian Scientists Here Friday.

Explains Bible Teachings of Mary Baker Eddy to Lincoln Audience.

Killiam D. Kilpatrick, C.S.B., a member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, at Boston, Mass., spoke at the first church here Friday evening.

H. W. Schafer who introduced the lecturer said;

"In these times of almost world-wide unrest, when to human sense there is so much discord and inharmony; when in our own country and state the daily reports of accidents and crimes are quite appalling, and there is dismay on the part of many people at the apparant failure to find a remedy, it is reassuring to contemplate such gatherings as this and to realize that there are increasing multitudes deeply interested in the realities of life: earnest seekers after Truth, for a better understanding of God, 'To know whom is life eternal.'

"Many thousands have found in the study of the Bible, as illuminated by the writings of our beloved leader, Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science, satisfying answers to all of their questions and solution of all their problems, and do not doubt but that if the same principles were honestly applied to the problems of the state and nation, equally satisfactory results would follow.

"William D. Kilpatrick, C.S.B., of Detroit, Mich., member of the board of lectureship of the Mother church, in Boston, Mass., who will presently address you, will unquestionably be able to throw much new light on this wonderful subject, enriching and elevating the thought of each of us, and through us improve the thought of our community."

An excerpt of Mr. Kilpatrick's lecture follows:

"The question as to why mankind is gradually turning its gaze towards Christian Science finds its answer in the fact that because Christian Science is a return to the simple teachings of Jesus the Christ it is giving to poor, sick, suffering humanity some hope of release from its sorrows, its poverty, its sickness, and its sordidness. It is saying to the world today in the loving words of the Master, 'Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.' It is saying to you who are sick, you who are bowed down with the sorrows and cares of the world, you who are bound by the fetters of sin, you who are struggling with the specter of want or misfortune, in the words of Isaiah, 'Ho, every one that thirsteth come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.'

Christian Science Revolutionary

"Christian Science is revolutionary. It is revolutionary to just the extent, in the same way, and for the same prupose, that the teachings of Jesus were revolutionary. Christian Science, in line with the purpose of the teachings of Jesus, is turning the thought of mankind away from a material basis and directing it to the spiritual. As Jesus lifted the human concept of God from the material to the spiritual so does Chirstian Science. As Jesus lifted the human concept of man and the universe from the material to the spiritual so does Christian Science. Hence, the first step in gaining a pure understanding of Jesus' works and teachings and in gaining a demonstrable understanding of God, man, and the universe in the light of Jesus' teachings is to dematerialize our sense of God and His law in our thinking.

* * *

"Taking the Bible for our sole authority we find God to be Truth, Life, Love, Spirit, Principle, and Mind. And thus, with the aid of the Bible, we have dematerialized completely our sense of God and find Him without a single material or bodily accompaniment or part. And we find Him available right here and now in just the proportion that we express or reflect Him as His image and likeness in our individual thinking. We begin to govern our own lives and experiences by spiritual thinking. In the operation of latterday radio contrivances we extend our material aerials in a way that our receiving instruments record messages which fill the air, even though we are not physically conscious of the presence of these messages. Their presence is made manifest and audible to us through the aid of the aerial and the receiving instruments when properly adjusted. So in our thinking. Our mental aerials determine what our bodies, our receiving instruments, record—good or ad. If our mental aerial be one of hate, superstition, fear, worry, envy, lust, criticism, sin, discouragement, pride, greed arrogance or any one of the myriad forms of evil thinking, then our receiving instruments, our bodies and our lives, become subject to the many forms of evil which constantly lurk in the shadows of mortal ignorance, and these forms of evil are in turn recorded in discordant bodily conditions, such, for example, as sickness, disease, sorrow, sinful habits, poverty, misery, and the like. But let our mental aerials be those of love, compassion, trust, tenderness, thanksgiving, charity, gratitude, humility, forgiveness, sweetness, and the like, then our lives are filled with the gentle influence of ever present divinity, hallowing our every experience and blessing us with health happiness, freedom, peace, and plenty."

Arrest Aged Pair Under Charge of Operating Still

CHESTER, Neb., Sept. 12.—Officers working on clues for the past three weeks located a big still in operation and discovered a truck load of mash and bottled hooch just south of here in Republic county, Kansas, and placed A. Tischke and his wife, well known farmers of this vicinity, under arrest, charged with ownership and operation of the still.

Tischke is about sixty years old, and has lived on the place where it is said he was running the still for many years. The aged couple own three eighties of land about one mile south of the state line. They live on one 80, and one-half mile from the home, on one of the others, an old dilapidated house stands.

Officers had located a still in this house, but Tischke had denied ownership and it was several days before the officers from Belleville, Kas., could connect the couple with the still. They stated that they had gone to the house upon a few occasions to "do kitchen work." One hundred forty quarts of hooch and a truck load of paraphernalia are said to have been confiscated, and the couple are held in the county jail at Belleville, awaiting trial.

CALIFORNIANS THANKFUL.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)— million people here tonight poured out their thanks for the rescue of Com. John Rodgers and his four companions on the Hawaiian flight adventure. Final festivities of California's diamond jubilee, celebrating the state's seventy-fifth birthday, were turned into a mammoth thanksgiving pageant in honor of the daring heroes of the air.

Pacific Airmen Complimented By Colonel Mitchell

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—Col. William Mitchell, critic of the American air service, took another fling at the army and navy departments' conduct of the service in a statement issued here today complimenting the heroic actions of the crew of the PN-9 No. 1 in escaping death on the recent attempted flight to Hawaii.

Coupled with praise for the rescued airmen, Mitchell charged "administration inefficiency" was causing the death list among air men to mount to 40 per cent of the commissioned personnel of the army annually.

Distinguished service medals should be awarded Com. John Rodgers and other crew members of the PN-9 No. 1, Mitchell said, adding that "the tenacity, good judgment and supreme physical endurance of the crew are worthy of the highest type of American manhood.

"I have had my say, it's now up to the war department to do something about it. We want action," he declared.

SEWARD NOTES

SEWARD, Neb., Sept. 12.—The funeral of W. A. Atwater of Lincoln, who passed away here at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. T. Jones will take place Sunday afternoon from the home of Mrs. Jones and will be conducted by Rev. S. Mills Hayes of Lincoln. Mr. Atwater was 78 years of age and leaves a widow, a son, James, of Phoenix, Ariz., and a daughter, Mrs. Jones of Seward. Mr. and Mrs. Atwater had been spending the summer here during the absence of their daughter and family at their summer home in Minnesota.

While he was operating an ensilage cutter at the home of Henry Renkle Thursday the machine exploded, a piece of metal striking Clarence Bishop in the head, cutting a deep gash that a surgeon was required to sew up. The tongue of a cultivator forty feet away was broken by one of the pieces of metal.

As Ed Parker of Milford was driving the spokes from an old wheel one of them flew with such force that it penetrated his leg to the bone.

Henry Wampler of Beaver Crossing is exhibiting an apple grown by him that is 14 3-4 inches in diameter and weighs 1 1-4 pounds.

Frank Beckord and Harve Woodworth, have gone into the scientific raising of foxes at the Vrbka farm near Utica. They start with two pair of silver black fox that cost $4,000.

Miss Leola Horner of Beaver Crossing was married to LaVerne James of Crawford, Wednesday. The bride is a graduate of the Beaver Crossing high school, and was a teacher in the Crawford schools. The groom is a rancher near Crawford.

Lawrence Eisenbarth of Beaver Crossing was recently married to Miss Nellie Mitchell of McCook. The groom travels for a wholesale grocery firm.

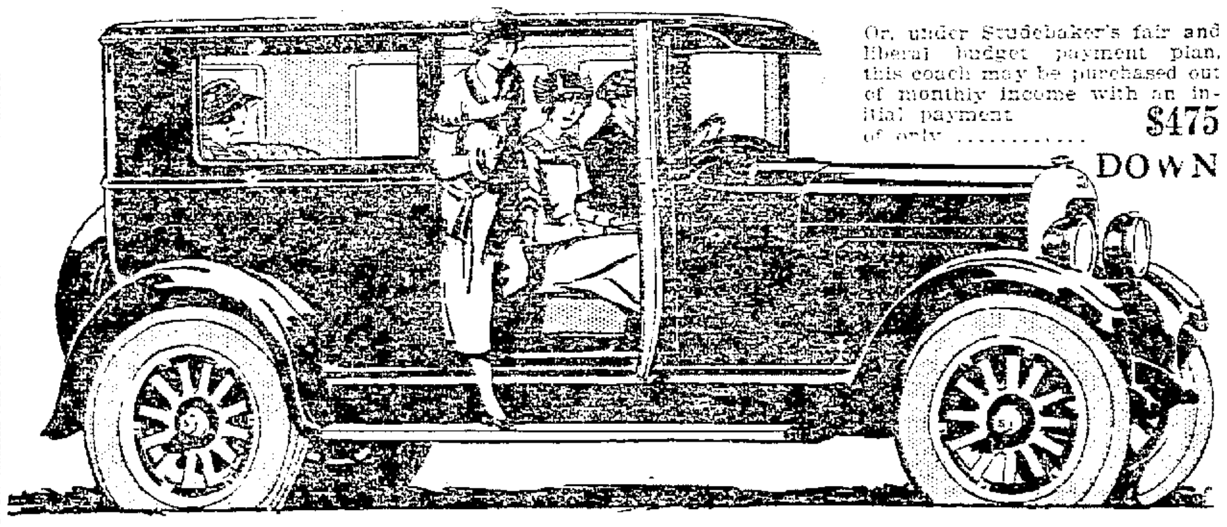
Studebaker Standard Six Coach, $1,475.00 Delivered in Lincoln



Or, under Studebaker's fair and liberal budget payment plan, this coach may be purchased out of monthly income with an initial payment of only .... $475 DOWN

One-Profit Value Unit-Built Construction

Make Studebakers Bargains in Quality

BECAUSE Studebaker builds for Studebaker cars all bodies, all engines, all axles, clutches, differentials, steering gear, springs, gear sets, gray iron castings and drop forgings—it is possible to give purchasers two advantages:

1. A price advantage: Because Studebaker eliminates extra profits which all other manufacturers (except Ford) must pay to outside parts or body makers. Thus Studebaker is able to use steel of extra toughness, fine northern white ash and hard maple, wool upholstery, plate glass, painstaking workmanship to precision standards, and extra equipment, such as gasoline gauge, clock, stop light, etc.—yet charge no more than competing cars.

2. A construction advantage: Because all parts are not only designed to constitute one harmonious unit, but are Unit-Built in Studebaker plants. Being built as a unit, every Studebaker functions as a unit. This results in years longer life, scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation, greater riding comfort, minimum repair costs and, finally, higher resale value.

There are others in our general price field who also build quality cars. But for models that are at all comparable their prices are higher.

Truth in Advertising
A reader of The Saturday Evening Post wrote the editor questioning the truth of a Studebaker advertisement. Read our reply on page 71 of the current issue of "The Post."

Others, who once built quality cars, have made material sacrifice in order to secure superficial price advantages. These cars are good value for the man or woman who wants that kind of a car. But if he wants a bargain in quality there is only one answer—Studebaker.

Consider, for instance, the Standard Six Coach, illustrated above. It has wool upholstering; plate glass; fine trim to hide all tacks; heavy, ornamental hardware; clock; gasoline gauge on dash; automatic windshield cleaner; stop light; locks on ignition; steering gear, door and spare-tire carrier all operated by a single key.

Slam the door and the sound says "quality." Swing on the door. Run one wheel up on the curb and note how the doors still open and close. Sit on the firm, heavy fenders. Try the steering gear. See how easily it handles the full-size balloon tires. Test the comfort of the deep rear seat. Its genuine wool upholstery covers two layers of washed, quilted cotton, one layer of genuine curled hair and extra long springs closely held together by small coil springs.

Run the engine—the most powerful in any car of this size and weight, according to the ratings of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Come in and see this bargain in quality—the lowered price closed car ever sold by Studebaker.

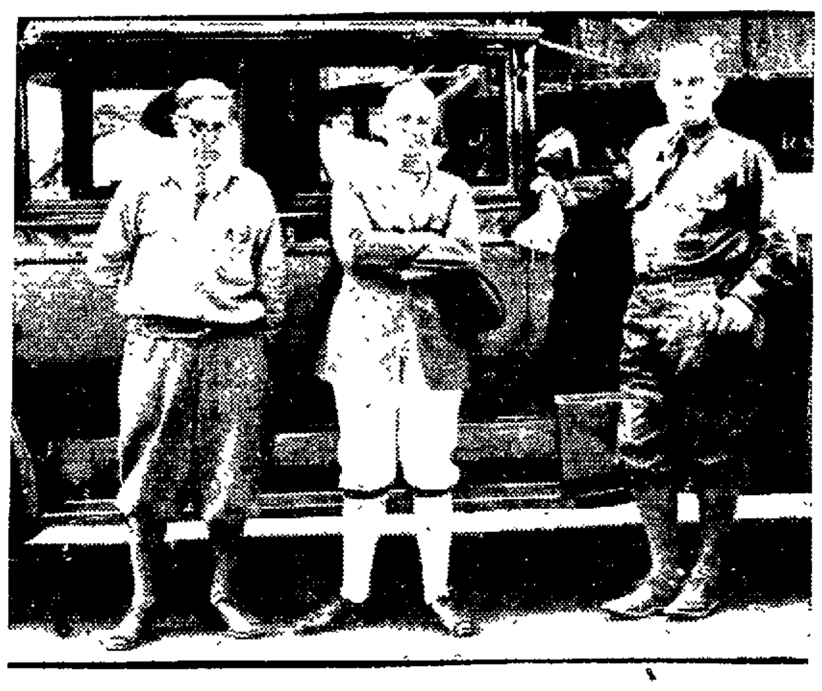
Officials on 8,000 Mile Trip



Above are shown E. C. Coons of the Cadillac Motor company, Thomas Henry, president of the American Automobile association, and Ernest M. Smith, general manager of the association, who passed through Omaha Tuesday in an attempt to travel more than 8,000 miles by auto within thirty days.

"According to our schedule," Mr. Henry explains, "we are on the road twenty-two hours a day. The car is so equipped that two members of the party may sleep while the third one is driving.

"Each morning we stop at some city and eat our big meal of the day. Supplies are bought for the other two meals and eaten en route.

The party left Washington, D. C., Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and expect to reach San Francisco this Sunday afternoon, one week after the start.

COAST TO COAST RUN A SUCCESS

Endurance Driver Unable to Stand Strain—Quits Half Way.

In seven days the United States has been crossed by a closed automobile, establishing a feat of significance to two industries—the automobile and the moving picture. Actual running time for 3,370 miles was 96 hours, 15 minutes. The car was a stock model Studebaker Standard Six coach.

A remarkable feature of the run was that a trained endurance driver, a vegetarian living on California fruits, gave up the drive at Kansas City when his home state products ran out, and the rest of the run was made in record time by an amateur who never had attempted such driving.

This, with the fact the car was a stock model Studebaker Standard Six coach taken off the sales floor at Los Angeles, made the record run more nearly akin to the experience of the average motor car driver than any similar run ever made.

Mike H Newman is the man who brought the coach from Kansas City, where it was two hours behind schedule, into New York City two hours ahead of running time after having rested 15 extra hours in Philadelphia.

The coach carried the first prints of a Christie moving picture comedy, "Seven Days," for a preview showing in New York. Along the route time was taken for a number of preview showings in the larger cities, and this is expected to open a new era in motion picture exhibition.

New Feature For Movies

Heretofore these first showings were made only in Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York. The rest of the country had to wait until the film had made its premier runs in these cities, not seeing the best films for several weeks later.

As a result of the success of this run, particularly with a driver untrained in endurance driving, the Christie company plans to open the rest of the country to premier showing of their more important films hereafter, so that almost every principal city of America will have opportunity as soon as New York or Los Angeles, to see these previews before the film gets into general circulation.

Thus the films will not be "old" by the time they reach the principal centers of population, and the moving picture business will have a larger number of "first showing" centers which will result in increased patronage.

To do this by rail transportation would mean employment of a number of crews, whereas the automobile has been shown by this run capable of doing this work with one crew, moving when and where it will.

Trouble-free Trip.

The car left Los Angeles on August 26 on the shot of the starting gun fired by Mayor George Cryer. An immense crowd cheered the drivers on their way.

Mr. Newman arrived at the Colony theater, New York City, at 12:30 noon, day-light saving time, September 2, making his cross-country run accord with the name of the film, "Seven Days."

No mechanical difficulty of any kind was experienced on the trip. Though it was a brand new Studebaker coach, an average of 16½ miles to the gallon of gasoline was achieved. The car arrived in New York in perfect condition. As did the driver, who enthusiastically proclaimed the Studebaker coach the "sweetest running car" he had ever seen.

AUTO NOTES.

Most skidding accidents are caused by drivers who try to stop too quickly.

If there is an occasion to remove the headlight rims, see that the drain and vent hole are down when replacing.

A cross (X) on a battery post indicates positive, and a dash (—) indicates negative. The largest post is always the positive.

When it is difficult to place a nut in a tight place, force the nut on the end of a hardwood stick, leaving one or two threads free.

A spare tire will give much longer service if put on one of the wheels and used for a while. Spares allowed to stay on the carrier, either under or overinflated for long periods, will deteriorate rapidly.

Motor and Chassis Cleaned With Steam

Positively the only thing of its kind in the city. Come in and look it over. You will see the advantage of having this done with a regular car wash.

OVERLAND SEDAN PRICE REDUCED

Willys - Overland Company Announces a $60 Drop for New Model.

A startling price reduction on the Overland standard sedan from $655.00 to $595.00 is announced by Willys-Overland, which brings the price of this sedan to the lowest figure ever made on a full-sized sedan with sliding gear transmission.

The price reduction on the standard sedan follows closely on the heels of a general price reduction announced last month which affected materially every model produced by Willys-Overland.

Willys-Overland officials point out that the tremendous success of the Overland standard sedan in conjunction with improved and increased production facilities for this model are responsible for the $60 drop in price, bringing this full-sized, five passenger sedan to a new low price level that has never been attempted in the industry for a car with sliding gear transmission.

In making the new announcement, Willys-Overland also announces that several important features have been added to the Overland standard sedan that materially increase its value. The latest in one-piece windshields now comes as standard equipment on this car, giving a maximum of vision and ventilation. Wider and deeper seats and cushions add to the comfort and riding ease of the car, while the radiator and head lamp rims are now available on all Overland standard sedans in nickel finish. Despite the fact that this car made its public appearance less than three months ago, it has grown in popularity by leaps and bounds, factory records reveal, because of its meeting a special demand in the two door body types.

Long narrow windows, giving the maximum of vision and ventilation, also provide safety facilities for the small family, while the arrangement of the specially folding front seat backs permit free and unencumbered access to the rear seat. Willys-Overland dealers declare the sedan is the fastest selling car the company has produced, and the volume of business at the record-breaking low price of $595.00 is expected to treble that established since the Overland standard sedan was introduced.

HUDSON-ESSEX MAKING RECORD

Increased Production Makes Substantial Price Cuts Possible.

The number of new Hudson and Essex cars on the street is proof of their popularity, says J. C. Higgins of the Lord Auto company, Hudson and Essex distributors. Even without the stimulation of new models, Hudson-Essex business is maintaining a record pace of activity.

The remarkable record of cars sold in this city, it is declared, is simply in line with business done all over the United States—a business which has placed Hudson-Essex as the largest makers of six cylinder cars in the world.

"Nearly a year ago, motorists began to recognize the outstanding values in Hudson and Essex," said Mr. Higgins. "Now this knowledge has become far more widespread with the result that Hudson-Essex is doing a volume of business nationally, which is thousands of cars a month, larger than that of any other maker of six cylinder cars. As Hudson-Essex volume has increased the public has been given the benefit of constantly lowered prices, so that now our cars sell for the lowest points in their history and at less than half their "peak" price. It is no sure thing that prices can be maintained at so favorable a level.

Depends On Public.

"Such a program does not make for a radical series of ups and downs in business, but rather results in a consistent and steadily growing volume. It depends on the public coming gradually to realize that Hudson and Essex offer and advertise "value for the money."

"Sometimes we are asked, "What is the reason behind Hudson and Essex economies and lowered prices? What are the distinguishing features of Hudson-Essex manufacturing economy?" How can prices be cut and quality improved?

"First, as we said, Hudson-Essex is the largest manufacturer in number of cars made. Secondly, it is a specialist in inclosed cars, 90 per cent of its entire production being in the popular Hudson and Essex coaches. Thirdly, overhead expense is light and it is divided over the combined totals of Hudson and Essex. Fourthly, Hudson-Essex originated the coach, has made over 300,000 of them and naturally knows how to build them well and economically. Hudson and Essex sales leadership all over the United States is proof that motor car buyers know and appreciate these facts."

Futile to Expect CADILLAC 90° V-Type Qualities In Lesser Eights

The reason for the world-wide supremacy of the Cadillac 90 degree, V-Type Eight, is the fact that no other type of eight can perform on the same level with Cadillac.

Mechanical laws are inexorable. You cannot wish them away—nor can you evade them and escape the result of the evasion.

Intrinsically and inherently the Cadillac 90 degree V-Type Eight is superior to any other type. Mechanical law is the basis for that superiority.

Because of that great truth Cadillac this year invested $2,500,000 in jigs, tools and dies—just to carry into effect the improvements and refinements that are so patent in the new Cadillac of today.

On the basis of mechanical principles and laws—there is no other type of eight that can equal the Cadillac 90 degree V-Type Eight in all the qualities that are needed to make a really fine car.

Here are the Mechanical and Performance Reasons for Cadillac Leadership

In the short Cadillac engine the fuel mixture to the various cylinders is more uniform. On the V-Type Cadillac the maximum distance between carburetor and any cylinder is only about ⅙ the corresponding distance of an all-in-line engine.

The V-Type Cadillac is more efficiently cooled, because of the more uniform temperature of water around the various cylinders.

A simple mathematical demonstration proves that the 90 degree V-Type Eight such as Cadillac builds assures regular firing intervals—which is not possible with 60 degree V-Type Eights. This results in a more uniform torque, and even application of power, and greater smoothness particularly at low speeds.

In the Cadillac 90 Degree V-Type Eight the "Vee" between cylinder blocks is wider, and consequently much more accessible for valve or carburetor adjustments.

Last, but by no means least, is the inescapable fact that only the 90 degree V-Type Eight can utilize the natural compensating principle which is the root and source of the elimination of vibration.

The V-Type Eight is shorter and more compact than any all-in-line engine of the same number of cylinders. More than that, it is shorter than any other engine with the same piston displacement having four or more cylinders. And bear in mind that piston displacement has a direct bearing on power and flexibility.

In the V-Type Eight the crankshaft is shorter, more rigid and requires fewer bearings. In the all-in-line types of eights from 7 to 9 bearings are needed—and with so many the alignment is difficult.

The crankshaft of a V-Type Eight is much less subject to twist, thus eliminating torsional vibration. That is why a vibration dampener is unnecessary on a V-Type Eight.

HUSKERS IN LINE FOR GRID SPORT

Candidates for Nebraska Eleven to Toe Mark Next Tuesday Morning In the Season's Inaugurating Drill.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Candidates for the University of Nebraska's Cornhusker football eleven are on the mark, all set and ready for the starting pistol, scheduled to be fired next Tuesday morning on the university campus.

Forty or more Husker athletes, garbed in moleskins, staged an informal workout Saturday morning on the commons north of the social sciences building and a count of noses disclosed that most of the Husker candidates destined to battle for places and preferment on the first-string lineup were in suit and "pulling on the bit" in anticipation of next Tuesday's first formal practice session.

Captain Ed Weir was there, as were several of last year's varsity regulars, and for a two-hour period or more the Huskers gave the pigskin a right thorough thumping in kicking, catching punts and handling forward passes.

Coach Bearg in Chicago.

Head Coach Ernest Bearg was missing, as a matter of course, as Missouri Valley conference rules forbid the presence of the coaches at pre-season workouts. As a matter of fact, Bearg was several hundred miles distant from the scene. The head mentor of the Huskers departed Friday evening for Chicago to be present at a meeting of middlewest officials and football coaches for a general discussion and agreement as to interpretation of changes in the 1925 rules.

Bearg is due to return to Lincoln either Sunday or Monday in ample time to take charge of the inaugural practice Tuesday. During the present week, which is to be devoted to registration at the university, the football men of the varsity squad will be put through two daily drills. The freshmen, however, will not start their workouts until the following week.

Equipment for Three Hundred.

The average football squad at Nebraska in former years has been hampered by a shortage of football equipment—a handicap which positively will not pertain to the Cornhuskers of 1925. Herb Gish, acting director of athletics at Nebraska, announced yesterday that the store room under the east wing of the Cornhusker stadium was fairly packed to the roof with uniforms and othre gridiron paraphernalia and that the athletic department is prepared to suit and completely equip not less than 300 football men this fall.

That interest in the Cornhuskers is growing by leaps and bounds in all regions of the state has been manifested during the past week, when the sale of stadium tickets for home games was formally inaugurated by the athletic department.

Sale Tops All Records.

John K. Selleck, treasurer and business manager of athletics at Nebraska, announced yesterday that the sale of season books for the home games had already surpassed all previous records in the Cornhusker camp.

Particularly brisk, however, is the demand for seats for the Nebraska-Notre Dame game, scheduled for Thanksgiving day in Lincoln. Many thousands of the Turkey day pasteboards already have been marketed to eager buyers and Manager Selleck predicted Saturday that every stadium seat for the Nebraska-Notre Dame conflict would be snapped up a week or more in advance of the game.

Even before the practice season is under way the Nebraska management is negotiating for the erection of two special bleacher sections on the north and south ends of the gridiron, while additional seating capacity will be prepared by the construction of parkade sections in front of the east and west stadium wings.

Predicts Forty Thousands.

"I shall not be surprised," Manager Selleck said Saturday, "if we have a crowd of forty to forty-five thousand spectators at the Nebraska-Notre Dame game. All parts of the state have been sending in remittances for tickets to all home games and the sale is so far ahead of previous seasons that I am confident my prediction as to the Thanksgiving day attendance will

HUSKIES PLAN TO WORRY HUSKERS

Washington Uni. Grid Team Cooking Up Suprise For Nebraska.

Coast Crew Is Scheduled To Show Goods In Lincoln Saturday Oct. 17.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 12. — Husky will meet Husker when the Universities of Washington and Nebraska clash in the first home game of the Nebraska football season at the Nebraska memorial stadium in Lincoln, October 17.

From the Pacific coast will come the boys who have put themselves in trim for a hard football schedule by working in the lumber camps of Washington this summer, to invade the camp of the boys who have worked in the corn fields of Nebraska. Over mountains and prairies will roll the train that brings the Washington Huskies to Lincoln to meet the Nebraska Cornhuskers on the day when dads and sons will sit side by side in the Nebraska stadium to witness the first football contest of the season at the Nebraska state capital.

On Camp's Second Team.

Headed by Elmer Tesreau, captain and fullback, one of the most popular athletes in Washington football history, and George Wilson, Walter Camp's selection for his second all-American football team last year, the boys from the far west will come. They will come with a reputation of being a topnotch team on the Pacific coast and one of the heaviest teams to meet the Huskers this season.

If present indications work out, Tesreau and Tesreau will be in the backfield, for Louis Tesreau, brother of Captain Elmer, is a candidate for the halfback station not assigned to George Wilson.

Weight in Backfield.

Captain Tesreau weighs 187 pounds, Wilson weighs 185 pounds and Louis Tesreau weighs 195 pounds, making up a trio of backfield men for the Washington varsity that will be hard to stop on sheer weight and speed alone.

While the possibilities in the backfield are bright, the situation on the Washington line is not so flourishing. Graduation last spring left holes in the Washington line that will have to be filled in the month intervening between the start of practice here September 15 and the Nebraska game October 17. Seven of the regular linesmen—in other words, the entire line—were removed from the list of Washington regulars last spring when the University of Washington seniors collected their diplomas.

Ten Other Lettermen.

Besides Wilson and Tesreau, ten other lettermen will be ready for the gong next Tuesday. It is around these men, however, that the Washington Huskies of 1925 will be formed. Wilson, without doubt, is the premier of the halfbacks in the Pacific Coast football conference. Not only was he one of the shining lights of the 1924 season, but he is recognized as one of the best backfield men to play football in the far west in several years.

Tesreau won his spurs two years ago in the game with the Navy at Pasadena. He was given a wonderful send-off by Robert Edgren after this game. The Washington captain is not only an athlete of note, but he is a man with a pleasing personality, active in all student activities and one of the best students in the institution.

Eight in Second Year.

Among the remaining ten lettermen on the 1925 varsity are five backfield men and five linemen. Four of the backs have had but one year's experience, as is also the case with four of the linemen.

Mike Hanley, halfback, younger brother Dick Hanley, the Haskell institute coach, is the only other second-year backfield candidate. Hanley is 22 years old and weighs 170 pounds.

Harold Shidler, Seattle, halfback; "Bill" Charleston, Ballard, fullback; George Gutlormsen, Everett, quarterback, and Harold Patton, Cashmere, halfback, are the backfield

DOPE POINTS TO PIRATE VICTORY

Buccaneers Better Club Than Giants, Who Lost to the Senators Last Year By Mere Eyelash.

It seems to be Pittsburgh versus Washington for the highest honors in balldom next month.

Who'll it be—when the final "play ball" has sounded over the fields of 1925 world seriesing combat?

Well—

The Pirates fairly annihilated the Giants this season; outplayed them in league battling against rival clubs and then pounded them into submission when they met in one or another of their "crucial" series.

That makes 'em stack up as a better ball club than the Giants, doesn't it?

Won By Mere Eyelash.

Washington whipped the 1924 Giants in the brawl for the championship of that year—whipped them, however, only by an eyelash, or, rather, by two freakish bits of luck.

Based on team play, with the "breaks" discarded as factors, the Giants of 1924 stacked up as a better combination than the Senators. Yet an improved Giant team this year was vanquished without much effort by the Pirates.

"That would make the Pirates of 1925 seem a far better club than the Senators of 1924. And the Senators of this season do not seem to have the same zip and power and driving force of last year. All of 'Lucky' Unlucky.

Johnny Rawlings—they call him "Lucky John" in the big leagues—who has been shining so that he forced Eddie Moroe, regular second sacker of the Pirates, to the outfield, is out for the rest of the season. He suffered a broken ankle, and, if the Pirates win the pennant will view the world's series from the bench.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The moleskin warriors of Lincoln high school will assemble at the oval Monday morning for the opening practice of the 1925 grid season. Coach Harold Browne of Lincoln high in announcing the first call for football candidates came to the front with the statement that the Red and Black squad will get down to business from the start.

In an effort to round the squad into condition for the opening game the first week in October, Coach Browne will send his men through morning and afternoon workouts Monday and daily wokouts each school day with the probability that the squad will also hold forth at the oval Saturdays.

Five Veterans Back.

"With but five letter men back this fall, we are up against the real thing this season and must look to the new material to furnish the men to close the gaps left by spring graduation," says the capital city high school skipper.

The Lincoln high schedule includes an attractive list of home games this fall. Creighton Prep of Omaha will open the schedule here October 2. Other high school elevens to display their wares on the Lincoln gridiron this season include Omaha Central, Hastings, Grand Island and St Joseph Central.

The Red and Black gladiators will make three short trips according to present plans, the schedule calling for Lincoln's appearance at Omaha Tech, York and Beatrice. Lincoln high, however, is open for a game November 25 or 30, the Thanksgiving date being left open so that all concerned can witness the Nebraska-Notre Dame classic in the Nebraska Memorial stadium.

Bauer Captains Team.

The quintet of veterans expected to answer the Monday call include three linemen and two backfield men. Captain Harvey Bauer, center, Lawrence McCarthy, end, and Ernie Tindall, rated as one of the best tackles in Nebraska high school circles last year.

The backfield vets are Bud McBride and "Dutch" Witte, ranked as two of the classiest ball-luggers

AMATEURS CLASH FOR TITLE TODAY

The 1925 Lincoln amateur baseball title will be at stake this afternoon when the Shogo Lithias and Varsity Cleaners, finalists in the recent amateur tournament meet at Landis Field. The game is scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p. m.

The Shogos and Cleaners tangled two weeks ago in an effort to settle the title, but darkness halted the game at the end of the ninth inning with the score 5-all, both teams having battled through the semifinals earlier in the afternoon.

A fast game is in the prospect for this afternoon, both teams having kept in tip-top condition during the past two weeks.

Norton Not With Cleaners.

The Cleaners will be weakened somewhat by the loss of Norton, who is teaching school out in the state. Glen Ullstrom will fill the keystone position. Another shift involves the transfer of W. H. Browne to first base and the return of "Bud" Sweeney to the lineup at third.

Daugherty probably will be Manager Lee Sipe's choice to start the game on the mound. He smothered the City Hall Wildcats in the first round until his arm went lame and he retired in favor of Floth.

Roth and Floth are the other available hurlers on the Cleaner squad. Floth tamed the Woodmen and Roth turned back the Shogos with four hits in nine innings, but weakened in the closing chukkers and was wild.

Bretzer probably will start for the Shogos. He was the iron man two weeks ago that trimmed the Modern Woodmen and returned late in the second game to stop the Cleaners. Lebsack, the other Shogo hurler, is good when right, but failed to go with his customary zipp against the Cleaners.

LINKS AHEAD IN DOZEN FRAMES

Capital City Crew, With Frank Haley At Helm, Takes Rods to Cleaning, 4 to 3, in Twelve Innings.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 12. — Lincoln won a gruelling twelve-inning game from Omaha today, 4 to 3, after the Omaha club had hoisted the 1924 Western league championship flag. The game was played before a meagre crowd and when Governor Adam McMullen could not be here on account of the death of his father and Mayor Dahlman deemed the races more important, Owner Barney Burch acted as master of ceremonies and did the hoisting himself.

The battle for last place went to the Links, thanks to the judgment of Frank Haley, the capital city team's new boss. Frank inserted a pair of pinch-hitters and, in so doing, hit the old nail right on the head.

Krueger Smashes Double.

The Links tallied their first run in the fifth when Krueger doubled, after one was out, and went to third on Shaner's fly to Kirkham. Gottleber beat out a hit to Monroe back of second, "Butch" scoring. Brucker shot a double to deep left. Osborn just missing the ball, but Kelly ran it down and held Gottleber at third. Lee hit Bloodgood with a pitched ball and Vargas then flied to Osborn for the third out.

The Burch Rods hopped into the lead in the sixth, scoring three runs, and a home victory was in sight until the ninth, when the Links were quite mean enough to knot the score.

Brucky Poles Two Baser.

Brucker led off in the ninth with another double. Vargas hit safely to center and Kelly held Brucker at third. Haley then inserted himself as pinch-hitter for Bloodgood and singled to center, scoring Brucker. Christian flied to Kelly and Moore singled to right, scoring Vargas. Haley went out stealing. Cooper, batting for Purdy, knocked Lee off the mound with a single to cetner, Moore holding second. Bailey took the mound and after he had thrown his first ball, Meyers, a rookie catcher from Springfield, Mo., who showed up well throughout the game, snapped the ball down to Monroe and caught Moore off the bag.

Moore Scores Winning Run.

In the twelfth, Bailey walked Moore and later caught him off the bag, but Moore went on to second and made that corner when Hendee, recruit from Marshalltown and another good prospect, threw wide to Monroe. Krueger sent Moore across with a long double to right center. Bailey used sharp judgment in passing Shaner, the clean-up man, Monroe went into right for Gottleber's fly and Brucker sent a high one up to Defate.

Wilder, hitting for Bailey in Omaha's half of the twelfth, singled after Meyers was retired, but Haley nabbed Monroe's hot grounder for an easy double play.

A doubleheader is down on the book for Sunday afternoon. Today's score:

CLEAN SWEEP IN RACQUET SERIES

Tilden and Johnston Capture Five Straight Matches From Frenchmen.

"Big Bill" Near Defeat, But "Little Bill" Made Show Of His Opponent.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Narrowly averting defeat at several critical moments by flashing a brand of superb tennis, "Big Bill" Tilden defeated Jean Rene LaCoste of France in the Davis cup singles match today in five hard-fought sets today. The score was 3-6, 8-6, 7-5, 6-2.

The match was the most gruelling of the series, both players being at the point of exhaustion at the end of two hours and a half of play.

Tilden followed his usual plan of allowing his opponent to take the lead. As LaCoste outplayed the American in game after game, however, it seemed to spectators that Tilden had met his match at last.

Had Tilden on Run.

LaCoste's success in the first part of the match surprised the spectators, in view of his comparatively poor showing against "Little Bill" Johnston in the second match of the series. He played a steady game, forcing Tilden to run all over the court to return well-placed shots.

The Frenchman was aided at the start by Tilden's wildness. The American did not begin to place his smashes effectively until the third set, when LaCoste had victory within his grasp. Four times LaCoste was within one point of victory.

In the first set, LaCoste swept Tilden off his feet, and was leading, 4 to 2, before the American rallied. The Frenchman finally won the set, 6-3.

Long Set to LaCoste.

In the second set, Tilden again rallied after LaCoste was leading, 5-2. A long battle ensued, until LaCoste's side line placements gave him the set at 12-10. During the latter part of this set, Tilden played in his stocking feet.

LaCoste again rushed into the lead in the third set, taking the first four games. This time Tilden's rally checked the Frenchman, although the latter had victory within his grasp. After losing several points because of wildness, LaCoste slumped and Tilden won the set, 8-6.

Then Came Turning Point.

The turning point came in the fourth set. Although LaCoste took the first three games, he could not withstand Tilden's rally when the big fellow cut loose with his best tennis. The Frenchman began to feel the effects of the furious pace he had set and dropped the set, 7-5.

In the fifth set, LaCoste furnished practically no opposition, winning only three points after holding Tilden to a tie at 2-all. Tilden's waiting tactics had again proved successful, although by the smallest of margins.

Easy for "Little Bill."

Jean Borotra, who gave Tilden such a stubborn fight in the opening match of the series, proved an easy victim for "Little Bill" Johnston in the final match. Johnston won in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4, 6-0.

Johnston's speed dazzled the Frenchman, who was helpless except for a brief period in the second set, when he led at 4-3. The final set was a runaway, Borotra appearing to realize that his was a losing cause.

Wary Has Good Squad In Suit At Fairfield Hi

FAIRFIELD, Neb., Sept. 12.—Coach K. W. Wary has a squad of twenty-eight men reporting for football at Fairfield high school and another bright outlook for a winning season, Fairfield being one of the leading teams in state high school circles last year.

The nine letter men back are Pruitt, Turner, Heckenlively, McLaughlin, Bryant, R. Congrove, M. Lewis Doll and Schieffle. Promising new material includes Hedge Woods, Griswold, Hayes, J. Congrove, Peterson, Harris and McKelvie.

The schedule this season will include Clay Center, Grand Island, Edgar, Sutton, Harvard, Nelson and possibly Minden and Exeter.

Winne at Bertrand.

BERTRAND, Neb., Sept. 12.—M. G. Winne will be in charge of athletics at Bertrand high school this year.

Pierce High Coach.

PIERCE, Neb., Sept. 12.—W. W. Norton will be in charge of Pierce high school athletics this year.

Nelson Will Have New Grid Eleven For '25 Season

NELSON, Neb., Sept. 12.—Building the 1925 Nelson high school football team was formally begun this week with the opening of activities. Coach Carroll has mustered about thirty men for regular practice and some fine material is showing up among the first-year men.

Seven veterans were lost to the Nelson squad last spring. Coach Carroll, however, is confident the new men will round out a strong aggregation. The Nelson high schedule:

Sept. 25—Hebron Academy at Nelson.
Oct. 2—Fairbury at Nelson.
Oct. 9—Franklin at Nelson.
Oct. 1—Superior at Superior.
Oct. 23—Hebron at Hebron.
Oct. 30—Chester at Nelson.
Nov. 6—Harvard at Nelson.
Nov. 13—Fairfield at Fairfield.
Nov. 20—Sutton at Nelson.
Nov. 26—Edgar at Edgar.

FIVE VETERANS AT LINCOLN HI

in the high school realm last season. Walter Foss, fullback on last year's squad, may be available this season if he can clear a scholastic barrier this week.

A squad of over one hundred candidates worked faithfully throughout the 1924 season and it is from this group that Coach Browne expects to draw the material to fill the gaps in the ranks. Intensive spring practice uncovered some valuable material and a majority of the candidates have taken on added poundage in the shape of brawn and muscle during the summer months.

Promising New Material.

Promising new men expected to show up well this fall include:

Centers — Frank Denton, Vale Rice.

Backs—Adolph Stroh, Howard Kitchin, Bob Raugh, Dale Kimmel, Morris Fisher.

Floyd Gautsch and I. C. Overman will assist Browne in handling the squad. Gautsch had charge of the reserves last season and Overman is a new addition to the high school instructional force, being a graduate of the American Gymnasts Union Normal school of Indianapolis.

DOPE POINTS TO PIRATE VICTORY

which, according to the charming old dope, would make the Pirates look like copper-riveted cinches in the sweepstakes of balldoom next month.

Pirates Look Like Goods.

So, if form and past performances and things akin, are to be used as a basis for determining who should win the series this autumn, the Pirates must be regarded as THE people.

The old system of taking the seasonal play of one club, and each individual member, and comparing it with that of the other team, and its units, isn't good—doesn't mean much. For what a National league batter smites against a National league pitcher has nothing whatsoever to do with what he'll smite when opposed by an American league baseball bender, about whose cunning and deceit he knows little—or nothing.

Comparing the Hitting.

The Senators have been spanking the horsehide for a team mark around .302, whereas the Pirates have been stepping about six points faster. That then, according to the summing up under the old plan, would give the Pirates the clouting edge. Yet it doesn't. For the Pirates, hitting .308 this year against American league pitchers, would have had an entirely different mark. It might have been lower—might have been higher.

And the same thing goes for the Senators.

"Pitching," it often has been said, "is the REAL factor in deciding a world series conflict."

Pitching Always Vital.

That's about true.

Pitching always will do the deciding.

But when one tries to measure rival pitching staffs result is but a guess, after all.

Remember 1924?

Johnson was expected to be the Gibralter in the Senatorial defense. Not much was expected of Zachary. Yet Johnson lost his first two games and was fluked to victory in his third start, whereas Zachary won his only two starts in clean cut fashion.

And so it has gone, all through the baseball years. The pitchers from whom much is expected sometimes do deliver—yet most always they fail.

Nothing Certain In Baseball.

For nothing is certain in baseball and the most uncertain time of all is when a world's championship is at stake and when stage fright, nervousness and other side elements enter into the scheme of things—and upset all calculations.

The only tolerable plan of comparison, therefore, seems to be in taking what the contesting club have performed against a common enemy. The Giants happen to be the common enemy. Washington of 1924 just nosed out the Giants. Washington has not improved since then. The Giants did. Yet the Pirates annihilated the Giants.

So there you are—or aren't you?

be verified. We shall be prepared to seat that many, at any rate, and I believe the Huskers and Notre Dame will perform before a capacity crowd."

Means Enlarged Stadium.

In view of Manager Selleck's prediction, Cornhusker followers foresee an early working out of plans by the athletic authorities looking to enlargement of the Nebraska stadium—a process which will call for the filling in with concrete and steel construction of either the north or south stadium gaps, thus completing the horseshoe structure originally designed by the Cornhusker athletic department. The completed horseshoe would provide seating accommodations for fifty thousand spectators. That this will come, perhaps within a scant year or more, is considered a certainty in the Nebraska camp. The remarkable growth of interest in the pigskin sport generally and Cornhusker football particularly points unerringly to an enlarged Nebraska stadium at an early date.

Puts It Up to Schulte.

Whether Roland "Gipp" Locke will stay out of football to "save his ankles" for the spring track season or get into moleskins for the 1925 gridiron campaign is a fly in Nebraska's worry box. Locke showed up in Lincoln late last week, coming from his home in North Platte, but informed acquaintances in university circles that he was undecided on the topic of joining the football squad.

"The chances are that I won't turn out for football," Locke said Saturday night, "but I have not definitely decided. I guess I shall put it up to Track Coach Schulte and do as he suggests. Whatever Schulte says, goes with me."

Predicts Brilliant Career.

It is well known in university circles that Schulte expects Locke to develop next spring into the world's greatest sprinter. Locke tied the world's record for the century and 220 dashes last spring and Schulte has expressed himself on numerous occasions as believing that Locke has track possibilities which may make him the king of all cinder path sprinters next year.

Just at present, Schulte is touring the state while holding a series of conferences with high school coaches and officials on the rules interpretation subject. He was in Chadron yesterday and is not due to return to Lincoln until next Saturday. Schulte's intimate acquaintances, however, are confident that he will not take the attitude of advising Locke to keep himself off the Cornhusker football squad.

Bearg Wants Locke.

Appreciating the value of Locke's exceptional speed, Head Coach Bearg has frequently expressed the wish to have Locke on his squad.

"If Locke comes out, I expect to use him as a regular backfield man," Bearg said last week, "and I believe he has the speed and ability to out-Grange Red Grange himself. The Cornhuskers could ill afford to go along without Locke on the first team."

In Line For Cut of Big Melon.

Alex Ferguson, Hal Smith and Bob Veach were gathered into the fold by Clark Griffith in time for them to share in the world's series if the Washington team cops the American league pennant. Ferguson and Veach were waived on by fifteen major league teams before signed by Manager Bucky Harris.

HUSKIES PLAN TO WORRY HUSKERS

Shidler is 22 years old and weighs 168 pounds; "Bull" Charleston is also 22 but weighs 182, Gutlormsen is only 20 and weighs but 155, while Patton is the same age and weighs 162. Gutlormsen, like Captain Tesreau, is an excellent student and a member of the board of control at the university. Patton is one of the fastest men on the team.

Cole Veteran End.

John Cole, the only veteran end on the squad, is the only two-letter lineman on the squad. Cole comes from Seattle, where he played football with the Franklin high school. He has seen 23 summers and weighs 178 pounds.

The four linemen who are playing their second year in Washington moleskins are "Chuck" Rice, substitute center of last year, who is favored for a regular position this year, Jud Cutting, end, another Seattle product; "Bull" McRae, guard, who hails from Sedro-Woorley, Wash., and Egbert Brix, tackle, who played football with Stadium high school, Tacoma.

Rice and Brix are 22 years old. Rice weighs 178 pounds and Brix 157. Cutting is 21 and tips the beams at 163, while McRae is 23 and strikes a balance at 176 pounds.

Freshmen of Promise.

Promising freshmen of last year who will bear watching and are favored to win varsity berths are:

Clarence Dirks, captain and tackle on the freshman team, who weighs 192 pounds and hails from Palo Alto.

Romeo Lauzon, Everett, center.

LeRoy Shuh, also of Everett, 170 pounds, end.

Starts With Green Line.

These freshmen of last year are regarded as the most promising. Washington is beginning the season with a green line and facing the hardest schedule in history. From the incoming freshmen and the returning lettermen, who were not listed on the regular first team eleven last fall, must be developed a line to support the backfield, one of the best on the coast. Although handicapped by lack of experience these new men are expected to replace the graduated Huskies with honor to themselves.

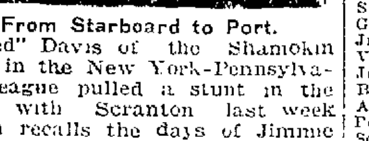
HERE AND THERE IN BASEBALL



From Starboard to Port.

"Red" Davis of the Shamokin team in the New York-Pennsylvania league pulled a stunt in the game with Scranton last week which recalls the days of Jimmie Ryan of Cap. Anson's once-famous team, when he went from his first base position to the rubber and pitched left and right-handed for two innings. He got "by," too, the opposition only getting one hit in two innings.

When Dazzy Vance of the Robins let down the Phillies with one hit the other day he ran up his strikeout record to 201 for the season. He has only passed 63 batters and allowed 105 runs in 29 games.

There seems to be a tendency this season by the magnates trying to find out what has gone into the grab bag. More than the usual number of recruits have given tryouts in the majors. Mark Koenig, formerly of St. Paul, and Simon Rosenthal, with San Antonio during the season, donned the livery of the majors in one game at Boston.

Killed by "Bean Ball."

The "bean ball" seems to be in evidence more than usual. Kenneth Williams of the St. Louis Browns was "beaned" hard enough to be sent home for the remainder of the season. He was on his way to establish himself as the home run king of the American league when he quit. Pitcher Chelo of the Decatur team in the Three-I league who was hit in the head a few days ago, died from the blow.

Bradley of Jackson in the Tri-State league can neither talk nor hear, but this does not prevent him from being a good ball player. When he pitched against Blytheville the other day he rounded out a career of having played every position on the team. To make it emphatic, he shut out his opponents with one hit. He is also the leading batter of the league.

Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, may sell his team. This would be a calamity to the baseball reporters, who have found Barney one of the squarest shooters ever connected with the game. Dreyfuss got the Pittsburgh club on borrowed money. He will retire from the game a millionaire several times over.

Red Failed To Shine In Game With Huskers

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 12.—In his two years of competition, Nebraska is the only team that stopped "Red" Grange of Illinois from scoring a touchdown. Yet the Illini believe that if Grange had been given the ball when Illinois was within scoring distance at Lincoln last year his record would have remained intact. The All-American halfback will get another chance again Nebraska Oct. 3 at the Illinois memorial stadium in the opening game of the 1925 campaign.

Twenty-five touchdowns in 13 games is the remarkable record of Grange in his two seasons. "Red" went through the 1923 campaign with the distinction of scoring against every team he faced. Grange made his debut that season by scoring three touchdowns against Nebraska.

Yes "Red" Was Present.

Although the 1924 Huskers kept Grange out of the scoring column, he played a big part in Illinois' 9 to 6 victory. He made one substantial run, a swing around end for 23 yards; he carried the ball 16 times for a net gain of 116 yards; was held five times for no gain; and once was thrown for a two-yard loss. Red was at his best in returning a punt down the sidelines when he side-stepped his way for 37 yards. Grange also featured on the passing end of an aerial attack which resulted in Illinois' lone touchdown.

Grange gathered 13 touchdowns in the five remaining games he played last year. His touchdown record is as follows:

(Special to The Star.)

OSCEOLA, Neb., Sept. 12.—A fall festival has been voted by the community club of Osceola to be held in this city for three days. Dates selected are October 1, 2 and 3.

Numerous committees have been appointed and active work will start immediately to get a program of events that will please the public. There will be everything usually connected with an affair of the kind proposed, together with a home coming of former residents of the county.

The first day's program will be put on by the American Legion, second day by the old settlers and the third day by the county farm organizations. Speakers and good music will be secured for each afternoon and evening. Merchants will join in making the event a popular one.

Large Attendance At Harlan County's Big Annual Fair

(Special to The Star)

ALMA, Neb., Sept. 12.—The Harlan county fair, which closed here Friday, was one of the most successful in the history of these expositions. Tuesday, the opening day, found the buildings and sheds filled with a splendid display of agricultural products, livestock and poultry, and the art hall very tastefully arranged with fancy work and some very large and magnificent cut flowers, grown here. After a program, consisting of rope throwing, singing by a ttio and a display of fireworks, a pavement dance was held on Main street in Alma, which was enjoyed by between 3,000 and 5,000 people. The Commercial club supplied free hot coffee, doughnuts, wafers, cookies and lemonade. Wednesday was the record day at the fair, the attendance being larger than ever before. All children were admitted free on that day.

Sugar Beet Yield Now Believed To Be Above Normal

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., Sept. 12.—The sugar-making campaign will start here about October 1, and all indications are for a long one unless beets are shipped out to Colorado factories.

Sugar company field men and the growers are agreed that high yields are already made, although the tonnage will be considerably increased by the warm bright days remaining before digging begins. Figures issued by the sugar company last spring indicated that the acreage this year is about normal, and, with high yields, the quantity of beets will be large, if not record-breaking, not only at Bayard, but throughout this valley.

Rain Puts Grounds In Condition For Autumn Plowing

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Sept. 12.—Rain fell over Gage county practically all day Friday and all fields are thoroughly soaked. Farmers say the ground is in excellent shape for wheat seeding now, and a considerable acreage in the county is prepared for planting this fall. The rain amounted to nearly one inch around Wymore and roads today are muddy and slippery. Rain fell all the way to the Missouri river, according to telephone and railway information, and in Washington and Marshall counties, Kas., the fall was about three-fourths inch. One-half inch fell in Cloud county, Kas. Very little rain fell west of Chester and Strang, and west of Red Cloud and Edgar only a sprinkle occurred.

Expurgation Of a Church Cook Book Is Insisted Upon

OMAHA, Neb, Sept. 12—(United Press)—Leaders of the Douglas County W. C. T. U, tonight asked the Satellite circle of the First Methodist church to recall the whole edition of the circle's recently published cook book so that page 74 should be cut.

Mrs. F. G. Othmer, an officer of the W. C. T. U, took the lead in the fight against the offending page 74

"I believe that we should uphold our laws," she said. "Every copy of that cook book should be recalled and that page cut out."

Mrs. Elizabeth Vienola, another W. C. T. U. leader sided in with Mrs Othmer's statement. "It is certainly all wrong to have such a recipe in a church cook book" she declared.

Meanwhile Mrs. Lee Ross Newkirk, wife of a prominent attorney, and authoress of the offending book, defended her work.

"It's an English recipe," Mrs. Newkirk, who came here from England six years ago explained. "I thought it should be kept the way it was in England, since they can't get the rum over here anyway.'

HUMBOLDT, Neb., Sept. 12. —From authentic reports received by the superintendents of the agriculture, livestock and poultry departments of the fall festival and Richardson county fair, to be held here next week, some surprises are predicted, especially in the corn section.

The poultry show will exceed last year which was third largest in the state. The program begins on Tuesday evening with the coronation of the queen. A. J. Weaver of Falls City, has consented to officiate and deliver the address on that occasion. The festival and fair, proper, open at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday and close on Friday.

Roundup at Falls City Productive Of Many Thrills

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., Sept. 12.—Spills galore featured the third program of the Falls City roundup this afternoon. Hugh Strickland, former national champion was pinned under his horse which was thrown by a steer but he was able to continue with his other performances.

Mable Strickland, Ruth Roach, Nowata Slim, Chick Hannon, Slim Gibson and Charlie Johnson also drew big hands. Lloyd Hahn's 50 yard foot race against Mabel Strickland mounted on her pony, postponed last Thursday, was held this afternoon. Hahn had a far better start and won by inches in 5 2-5 seconds.

The roundup will close Sunday afternoon.

Johnson County's Fair This Week

TECUMSEH. Neb. Sept. 12.—Beginning next Monday and continuing for five days the annual Johnson county fair will be held in Tecumseh. The officers announce that the fair is expected to be the best in the history of the association. There will be horse races on four days, fireworks and an abundance of amusements.

Before installing brakes after they have been relined form the band to the drum, and it will be found that they are then more easily adjusted.

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., Sept. 12.—Marie, the 8-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Curtis of this city is rapidly developing into an aquatic star of the first magnitude. She practically commenced her swimming and diving experience this season, but does stunts that stump her elders. She is an expert swimmer and has mastered a number of the swimming strokes, but it is as a diver that she shines particularly.

There are several springboards at the deep water just below the old dam and the little miss takes her plunges from the highest one, fully fifteen feet from the water, the only girl or woman who has the nerve to do this. Even most of the boys and men do not tackle it. She not only makes the high dive, but does it with a grace and accuracy of judging distance that is perfect.

CRETE NOTES

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb, Sept. 12.—All contracts have ben let for a new moving picture theater for Crete, to be finished in four months.

Over 200 tickets were sold for the state fair during the week and many also went by auto.

Plans for a Saline county fair to be held in October are working out very nicely. A good interest is being shown in the proposal to revive the fair, as there has not been one held for twenty-five years.

As Robert Warkow was crossing the dam his foot slipped and he fell backward, striking his head on a sharp piece of tin It required ten stitches to close the gash.

Mrs. Perry Talley has gone to St. Paul, Minn, to attend a school of marcelling.

The Crete Woman's club held the first meeting of the season Friday afternoon at the home of its president, Mrs. C. W. Weckbach. It was in the form of a reception to new members, seventy-six coming into the club that day as a result of a membership drive. Two teams made a splendid canvass of the town, one getting thity-seven members and the other thirty-nine. The program was opened with the "How-do-you-do" song, followed by a group of songs by Mrs. Fred Boekel, jr., Mrs Port Johnson accompanist. A reading, "Say I'm Glad to Meet You," by Mrs. R. Jacobson, followed. Reports of various committees given showed that the outlook for the year's work seems most promising and a live interest seemed to be with every member present. There are now 152 members in the club, which doubled itself during the drive.

OWNER OF CUBS BIDS FOR M'GRAW

John McGraw will manage the Chicago Cubs in 1926 and for about four seasons beyond that—according to rumor. According to logic, McGraw will do nothing of the sort—will do nothing except manage his same old Giants in 1926.

Bill Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, wants McGraw and is willing to pay the wily Irish leader almost any sum for his services that is asked. But between Wrigley's desire and Wrigley's realization there is a barrier commonly known as extenuating circumstances, in the form of Charles A. Stoneham, who possesses the Giants, who has McGraw hitched to a contract for at least another season—and who would be most reluctant to part with the greatest asset of his ball club.

Wrigley Willing to Spend.

Wrigley, one of the wealthiest men in balldom, set his heart some years ago upon achieving a pennant for Chicago. "Win the flag—at any cost," was the injunction to his managers. Expenses were never reckoned. Whenever a youthful player was located who looked like a potential star of the big leagues, Wrigley's orders were to "buy him."

But acquisition of the most promising looking group of youngsters possessed by any team in balldom meant nothing. The Cubs have not been other than a mediocre club for many seasons. Individual mechanical power, individual mental equipment—they have meant nothing in so far as team greatness was concerned.

Busy Changing Managers.

It then occurred to Wrigley that the vital fault lay in the management. He demoted Bill Killifer—and appointed Rabbitt Maranville—but without result. He then put George Gibson in Maranville's place. But the result has been just about the same. Mediocre, dismal play by a collection of athletes who, if assembled into a machine, might become one of the mighty powers in balldom.

And so Wrigley, it is said, wants to get McGraw. He feels that a great leader could take his club and, within a single season, weld it into a baseball juggernaut. If that happened, the receipts of the Cubs would increase between $75,000 and $200,000 per annum over what they have been.

All McGraw Could Ask.

McGraw perhaps could have a $50,000 salary per year from Wrigley—and a big stock bonus. He would have an unlimited bankroll to use in buying new players. He would be supreme ruler of the team. All that McGraw might ask would be his merely for the asking. For Wrigley wants a flag winner and undoubtedly he feels that McGraw, of all the men in balldom, could give it to him.

But Stoneham also wants McGraw—and unless he changes his attitude he will keep John McGraw at the helm of the Giants. No man realized more than Stoneham that the difference between a great and money-making Giant team and one that might slip into only the ordinary in team play and in profits is John McGraw.

Contract Runs Another Year.

It is understood that McGraw's contract as leader of the Giants has another year to run. The general idea is that McGraw's annual salary is about $65,000. The figure is wrong—entirely too high. The chances are that McGraw's salary is nearer $25,000 annually than $65,000.

McGraw, together with his wife owns approximately 1,500 shares of the Giant stock. The par is $100, making McGraw's holdings worth $150,000 in a $1,250,000 corporation. The stock has been paying 10 per cent, meaning that McGraw's dividend income has been $15,000 a year.

No Strings on His Stock.

There are no strings attached to McGraw's ownership of the Giant stock. It's his no matter what club he manages—or has a financial interest in. So, from the McGraw viewpoint, it would be a nice situation if he could take the Cub job, because he'd get at least $50,000 salary, at least $50,000 in stock—and still would have the interest from his Giant stock holdings.

But, as matters stand now, Stoneham wishes McGraw to remain and whether the Wrigley offer ever was officially made or whether one will be made, the chances are that 1926 will find McGraw back at the helm of the baseball craft he has steered to many glorious triumphs through more than a generation.

'Masked Terror' Of Nashville Held After Long Hunt

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 12—(I. N. S.)—North Nashville's "masked terror" has been captured.

This was the belief expressed by police here tonight after Henry Horn, negro, was positively identified late tonight as the marauder who broke into two of the twenty-four homes alleged to have been entered by the so-called "terror" since he began his crime career.

The negro was captured tonight. Police had conducted a diligent search for him since he was shot early Saturday morning by a patrolman.

Mrs. J. W. Littrell and Miss Louise Smith, two alleged victims of the attacker, positively identified Horn as their assailant according to police officials.

Sox Have Three Indians.

The Chicago White Sox will have three Indians on the ball team next year, provided "Chief" Bender is retained. They have bought Pitcher McBee of the Little Rock team, an Oklahoma Indian, while they already had "Chuck" Carney, another redskin, playing with the Ardmore team of the Western association.

Walter Johnson of Washington has one more ambition. It is to win the double crown, which in baseball means the leadership in both pitching and hitting. There is a chance for him. The latest statistics give him .447 in hitting, 57 points higher than Speaker's. Among the regular pitchers he is third, with 18 won and six lost.

Connie Mack made some desperate efforts to strengthen his team but it seems as if the horse had already been stolen when the door was locked. He bought Jim Holt, first baseman from Jersey City and Pitcher Harry Smythe from Augusta of the South Atlantic for immediate delivery.

HONOR DR. JEPSON.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 12—(U. P.)—Dr. William Jepson, Sioux City, Ia., was chosen president of the Association of Professional Mens' clubs at the closing session of the association convention here today.

Ah! How caressingly tender has become one Harry Wills; how very thoughtful how kind, how considerate!

Or is it something else

Anyway—

They've wanted him to mingle with Gene Tunney in a ring brawl—wanted to pay him $100,000 which would buy almost a packing house full of those lovely pork chops. But that gentle souled Harry has said:

"No—ho,, a thousand times nix. That guy is too small and I ain't no sort of fellow to pick on little men—not me, ah, no, not lil' Harry Wills."

Bulkier Than Tunney.

Mr. Wills notches 6 feet and 3 inches and beams 215 in quarreling condition. Mr. Tunney is about 6 feet high and now bulks 190 and perhaps will scale around 192 to 195 for his next big fight.

So, it can be seen, that Harry is quite correct; he's two inches loftier than Gene and 25 ponuds heavier. Sweet, isn't it, of Wills not to wish to pick on smaller men but—well, in addition to changes in time ,there seems also to be a change of attitude on the part of Wills.

Wills fought Sam Langford heaven only can remember the exact number of times. And "Thammy" is only about 5 feet 6 inches tall—which means 9 inches shorter than Wills—and "Thammy" also was from 25 to 40 pounds lighter on each occasion than was Wills.

Grabbed at Madden.

Wills was offered a mixup with Bartley Madden. He accepted—without any consideration of the fact that Madden is shorter than Tunney—and lighter than Tunney.

And this same Wills engaged not so long ago in a fist-cuffing affair with Charles Weinert—without any preliminary weeping over the fact that he was called upon to demolish a man smaller and lighter than his dark self.

Then there was Kid Norfolk, a gentleman of color, like Wills. They were matched. Did the kindly soul of Harry Wills prompt him to say, "No, I cannot fight him because he is about 5 inches shorter and 40 pounds lighter." It did not. Wills eagerly accepted that match, just as he did the soft looking Madden and Weinert matches.

Keen for the Easy Ones.

Any perusal of the Wills record proves that he has fought more men smaller and lighter than himself than men of his own size or birrer. For, in addition to Langford, Weinert, Norfolk and Madden, this Wills has given battle to Homer Smith, Jeff Clark, Jack Townsend, Willie Meechan, Gunboat Smith, Denver Mark, Tut Jackson, Clem Johnson and a host more who have been outreached outbulked and outheighted by Wills.

Why, then, does Wills become so considerate for Tunney who is bigger and heavier than a great number of men Wills fought—without any demonstration of consideration over their physical disadvantages?

The answer seems to be simple.

Avoids the Tough Boys.

Wills has so far ducked the Tunney match because he must have some definite notion that Tunney might upset the frijoles—and upset him at the same time. Wills has not since he became a national figure through blatant challenging of Jack Dempsey accepted a single match that looked in any wise dangerous to his future.

Tom Gibbons was willing to spot Wills 40 pounds and about four inches in height and as much in reach—but Wills became deaf along about that time. Jack Renault wore out his voice hurling challenges at Wills and promoters ran themselves bow-legged trying to get Wills to sign up for a match with this Canadian battler.

Godfrey Turned Down.

George Godfrey, the Philadelphia negro, has been trying to get Wills into the same ring with him for nearly two years—without result. For Wills seems to concede that Godfrey is rough and tough — and also DANGEROUS.

In more than three years this man Wills of the alleged ferocious nature, has been challenged about 50 times by men smaller than himself—or men no larger. And out of this group Wills has elected to meet only the following:

List of His Setups.

Clem Johnson, a third-rate negro.

Charlie Weinert, a set-up.

Wills fought those men because they were presumed to be "easy"—because he could take them on without danger to himself. There wasn't a menacing fighter in the lot. Johnson is and was a terrible dub—yet Wills had to use up 12 rounds to finish him. Smith, who was knocked out in a punch by Dempsey in 1918 when Smith was at his best, was an old man of ringdom when he met Wills in 1923—yet Wills had to take two rounds to conclude him.

Madden Stuck 15 Rounds.

Madden weathered 15 rounds with Wills—and wasn't much the worse for the encounter, although Madden was nearly annihilated in 11 some years earlier by Tom Gibbons. Firpo, fat, blabby, a million miles out of condition, went 12 with Wills—and was not much damaged. Norfolk, the midget, lasted two rounds and Weinert, the comebacker, went as far.

"Safety first" seems ot be the Wills rule.

And that by law of his own choosing, seems to be the real reason for his refusal to meet Tunney. He wouldn't say publicly: "I won't fight Tunney because he's too tough"—for that would ruin the one-millionth chance he has for the workout with Dempsey. So he dodges the match with the strange sounding and extremely sickly sounding excuse:

RADIO DIGEST.

"B" Battery Wiring.

When connecting up more than one "B" battery, be sure they are wired correctly. The current in the batteries will buck each other if the negative is connected to the negative and positive to the positive.

The Shorter, the Better.

Both the ground and lead-in wires from the antenna should be run all over the house and near other wires and metal objects without affecting the operation of the receiver.

Test for Phone Cords

To make sure that the cords of the telephone receiver are all right, place the receiver over the ears and touch the two cord tips to the two terminals of the dry battery. If a click is heard in both receivers the cord is all right.

Basket Weave Coils.

The basket weave type of coil is easier to make than the ordinary cylindrical form of coil. The procedure is merely twisting a wire around spokes. The coils are also self-supporting and do not require a large amount of dielectric in their field.

Battery Lore.

It is when the battery is in a discharged or partially discharged condition that the acid attacks the plates and causes the noises that are often mistaken for static. Always keep the electrolyte solution about one-eight or one-fourth inch above the top of the plates.

Radiograms.

E. N. Pickerill, chief radio operator of the U. S. S. Leviathan, is the first man to receive from the Government a first-class license, the highest recognition given a radio operator.

The Government of Denmark has assumed control of all broadcasting activities in that country. Under the new regulations, licenses are necessary for the operation of receiving sets, the fees for which vary according to the power of the set.

C. Francis Jenkins, Washington inventor, announced that successful tests have been made of a "talking movie" radio set. His apparatus transmitted motion pictures to a screen and a simultaneous vocal description of term to a loud speaker on a single wave length.

Beatrice Schools Will Open Monday

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Sept. 12.—The city schools open here Monday morning with a full crops of instructors and teachers, numbering in all nearly one hundred. The new junior high school will be thrown open for the first time since its completion and which cost the district more than $400,000. Superintendent Morton held a teachers meeting here Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to arrange for the opening of the various schools in the city.

FASHIONS UNDER FIRE.

WARSAW, Sept. 12.—"Seminude" fashions are under fire in Poland. The chief rabbi of Poland has issued instructions to rabbis to forbid entrance to Polish synagogues to women wearing low-necked and short dresses.

Care in Placing Tubes.

When placing the tubes in the sockets, be careful how they are handled. Many tubes have been injured throug rough usage. The tubes will not stand the rough treatment given them by many fans. The tips are sometimes broken and thus make poor contacts. Do not take tubs out of the sockets any oftener than is absolutely necessary.

SURGEON SAVES FIGHTER ZIVIC

Knife Performs Miracle In Restoring Ring Ability Of Eastern Boy.

Consider the case of Jack Zivic.

About two years ago Jimmy Bronson of New York who pilots the glove gladiator, gathered the sporting world by its ear and bespoke:

"He's the next lightweight champion!"

It looked that way—for a brief chasm of time. And then Benny Leonard took a look. Ever since then it has not looked that way—for how can a bloke who is not a champion become champion if the champion has dug himself into the cave of retirement—and fighteth not!

Zivic had punched and pounded his way along in one of those "elimination tournament" things which the New York State athletic commission puts on when it cannot get its name into the papers in other ways. That was over a year ago. And Zivic everywhere was acclaimed:

"Here's the man to fight Leonard."

Benny Suddenly Retired.

Right then and there Leonard, who undoubtedly had ogled Zivic doing his stuff, announced that his mama did not want him to associate longer with plug-uglies. So he gathered up his playthings and went into retirement.

Zivic, at the time, was a legitimate lightweight — and WHAT a lightweight! For here was a youth who, after being long noted as one of the fastest and most scientific of the 135-pounders, had suddenly contracted a punch and proceeded to knock over so many of those "tough lulus" that the eastern natives became dizzy counting up the victims.

Knocked Out Lew Tendler.

Knocking out men who never before had played any parts at all in the drama known as "Keesa da Kenvess" has become Zivic's specialty. Lew Tendler, who resisted all the knockled onslaughts of Leonard upon two occasions, was put to sleep by Zivic. The same fate befel Joe Tiplitz, Nate Goldman, Johnny Darcy, Boby Tracey, Archie Walker and lesser lights of the fistic realm who never had been counted out before they met Zivic.

Zivic delivered artistic spankings to Charlie White, Pete Hartley, Ever Hammer, Johnny Ray, Johnny Mendellson, Ray Mitchell, Harry Brown and a large group of others.

Performed Surgical Miracle.

The most remarkable thing about it all is that something like three years ago Zivic was consigned to the fistic scrap heap—and then rescued by a surgical miracle performed by Dr. Wilfred G. Fralick of New York.

Zivic started as an amateur. He starred as a member of the 1920 American Olympic boxing team at Antwerp. Soon after his return he became a professional. His start, was auspicious, but within a few months his right arm began to trouble him. In many of his fights it would jump out of the shoulder socket—and become useless.

Doctors Held Out No Hope.

Many doctors examined it. They declared there was no hope for him—that the socket for the arm was too large for the upper arm bone—or visca versa. Anyway, Zivic's right arm failed him more and more and finally it was concluded that his fighting days were done because he had only one fighting weapon.

Dr. Fralick was consulted as the last resort. He declared—and the statement astonished—that an operation would correct the fault with the arm. That is something no other surgeon had suggested—or thought of. Zivic was willing to take any human chance to recover use of his fighting arm—and Dr. Fralick then performed one of the most difficult and delicate, yet most successful of operations.

Cut Into Arm Socket.

He cut through the right shoulder into the arm socket. In doing so he realized that the severance of a single muscle in that region which is but a net-work of nerves and muscles, might forever ruin the muscular system of Zivic's right arm and shoulder. But not a single muscle was severed during that operation, because Dr. Fralick cut in zig-zag fashion around each.

The surgeon tightened the arm into the socket, put 136 stitches into the incision and then said:

"In a few months that arm of yours will be in absolutely perfect conditio nand you will be able to hit with it as well as any man in the world—and there will be no harmful aftermaths from that operation."

Back in Ring Harness.

Dr. Fralick's prediction came true.

In a few months Zivic was back in fighting harness. Never for a moment since then has his arm ever given him trouble. And then, possessed of two fighting hands and two arms that worked perfectly, he quickily scaled the ladder of the lightweights until none but Leonard barred his way to the top.

Then Benny retired

Afterward Zivic, realizing he could not gain the lightweight crown, did not make an effort to retard his growth. He began to scale upward in the matter of poundage and now he's fighting around 140 and 142.

Now one Jimmy Bronson, who used ot carol "he's the next lightweight champio," still carols the same old tune. But he has changed the word "lightweight" to read "welterweight"—and there are many of the greatest ring experts in the country who join in the chorus with him.

A NEW KIND OF SAFETY—

FOR USED CAR BUYERS.

THE AVERAGE CAR BUYER—When he buys a used car, is simply guessing. It is almost impossible for him to know, merely by looking at a car, what kind of service it will give.

THAT'S WHY—We have signed the Studebaker Dealer's Pledge to the Public on Used Car Sales. Every Certified Used Car sold under this pledge carries with it a 30-day guarantee against faulty parts. Don't get a used car before you look into it. It will save you worry and expense in the long run.

BIG DEMAND FOR NEW MODEL CAR

Retail Sales Each Week Have Been Largest In Company's History.

Sales of the new model Cadillac during the first three weeks following its announcement were 51 per cent higher than those during the first three weeks following the introduction of the V-63 two years ago, and 70 per cent higher than during the corresponding three weeks of 1924. Retail sales each week since the new car's announcement have also been the largest in the company's history.

The new car, with its improved performance, smarter appearance, greater comfort and reduced price is responsible for the sharp upward turn in Cadillac sales, according to Lynn McNaughton, vice-president and general manager of the company.

"While our sales," Mr. McNaughton states, "have greatly increased among owners who habitually buy cars of the highest grade, possibly the most noticeable increase has been among those who formerly purchased lower priced cars, and who, with new values established, see the ultimate economy of buying a Cadillac. The demand has been general all over the United States and there has been a decided increase in export demand for distribution in European markets.

"As Cadillac sales have consistently, during the past eleven years, been greater than the combined sales of all other cars in and above the Cadillac price range," he continues, "this means that we are now making the greatest sales record ever attained by any organization building cars of the highest grade.

"Following the completion of our new foundries and the installation of new machinery, jigs, tools and dies for the production of the new car, we have been working night and day to speed production as rapidly as possible consistently with Cadillac quality."

Long Life Built Into Dodge Bros. Cars Is Popular

Dependability and long life, according to J. H. Markel, local dealer, are largely responsible for the "world wide good will" enjoyed by Dodge Brothers These characteristics are but the natural results of selection of the highest grade materials, of precision in workmanship and of soundness of design.

"The files at the factory," says Mr. Markel, "contains hundreds of letters written voluntarily by enthusiastic owners of Dodge Brothers motor cars which were among the first shipped into different parts of the country and which are still in active service. A large percentage of these has traveled well upward of 200,000 miles.

"As typical examples of these old timers,' car No. 12, the first Dodge Brothers car delivered on the Pacific coast, is reported still in service after over 170,000 miles on all kinds of mountain roads. Car No. 13, the first received in Denver, Colorado, arriving there December 10, 1914, was first used as a demonstrator. It is still giving satisfactory service to its original purchaser.

"The first Dodge Brothers car sold in the state of Arizona was recently traced by the dealer at Phoenix and located in the service of a farmer in the Yuma valley. It now occupies a conspicuous place in that dealer's display room.

"Touring car No. 152, the first sold in Portland, Me., is far from the scrap pile. The original owner, Mr. Jordon, after using it for a number of years as a passenger car, converted it into a 3-4 ton truck to convey garden produce to the Portland markets. The satisfactory service rendered by this ten year old car led Mr. Jordan, when later in need of an additional truck of greater capacity, to buy a Graham Brothers truck, which is powered by Dodge Brothers engine.

"Car No. 136, the veteran of Pittsburg, was traced by the dealer through several changes of ownership to a farm where it was in daily service over rough country roads. In spite of the high valuation placed by the owner, 'Old 136' now occupies a space in the Pittsburg salesroom."

New Ford Models Attract Attention; Are Now On Hand

Curiosity of a lot of people is going to be satisfied this week.

Anyway, indications point in that direction.

Ever since announcement of the improved Ford cars was made just about every man, woman and child in town has been on the alert for a glimpse of the new cars.

A few of the touring cars reached dealers during the last week, but not near enough of them were distributed to satisfy the curiosity of the populace. In the first place, every dealer experienced some difficulty in securing cars—some were only able to get one—and in the second place, after the dealer got the car he had a hard time keeping it—someone wanted to buy it right away.

Some people, however, have been able to get a peep at the new touring cars and everyone of them is firmly convinced that they sure are attractive automobiles.

Local Ford dealers are expecting the coming week will bring them all the new body types, both open and closed. If this transpires, it is certain that the dealer show rooms are going to be the most popular places in town, for everyone is eager to see and inspect all the new Fords.

PAIGE-JEWETT GROWTH GREAT

Original Investment Less Than $100,000—Assets Reach $17,500,000.

The automobile industry abounds with stories of huge sums made during the last several decades. One automobile magnate. Harry M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car company, once refused a block of stock in the Ford Motor company which Mr. subsequently bought and paid a price said to be $30,000,000.

Several years after refusing the chance to buy this stock for some ten or twelve thousand dollars, Jewett saw the mistake he had made.

That was seventeen years ago. The result was the founding of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car company.

Less than $100,000 was invested in the enterprise. The factory was an old plant formerly used for the manufacture of drugs. Three hundred and two cars were built that first year.

Today, the assets of the company have grown to $17,500,000. The stockholders have been paid a fair return on their money and many have made small fortunes through the saving of the many extra shares of stock gained through stock dividends.

The old drug factory was abandoned within a few years. The growth was steady. The present day factory equipment consists of sixteen modern buildings with more than a million square feet of floor space.

Behind this steady growth has been the same organization of men from President Jewett on down. They gained steadily in experience until today the Paige executives stand out as leaders in manufacturing and merchandising.

"We have always had one idea in mind," states Mr. Jewett. "That is 'how can we make them better.' And each year we have made them better. Work like ours always tells in the end. It has steadily built our business during the seventeen years until this year our sales will total about 50,000 Paiges and Jewetts."

Cuts Gasoline Cost to 10 Cents a Gallon

James A. May of 4625 M street, Sioux Falls, S. D., has perfected an amazing new device that is enabling car owners to cut their gasoline used. Many owners have made over 40 miles on a gallon. It also removes carbon, increases motor power and pep, prevents spark plug trouble and overheating. Anyone can install it in five minutes. Mr. May wants agents, and is offering to send one free to one auto owner in each locality. Write him today.—Advertisement.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Brake Lore.

Grease from the transmission and front universal jjoint sometimes covers the hand brakes operating on the propeller shaft. It is a good policy occasionally to burn off the grease by using the hand brake instead of a service brake.

Warm-Weather Parking.

Park the car, if possible, in the shade when stopping along the road to picnic on a hot day. If this cannot be done, it will be wise to raise the hood. This will not only help to preserve the paint, but also a cooler car will be found when starting off again.

Cylinder Grinding.

The most satisfactory way of restoring compression in the cylinders is to have them reground. Greater economy can be obtaned from the engine by this process, especially after the car is two or three years old or has been driven about 35,000 miles. Regrinding cylinders is done by the use of emery or carborundum wheels on a machine designed especially for the work. It requires the service of a high-grade mechanic. Where the proper grade of work is done, the results are even superior to those attained in the new car at the factory.

Proper Adjustment of Brakes.

Brakes should be adjusted every 1,000 miles. Brakes that are not adjusted and equalized properly will rattle, chatter and squeak. The tread on one or more of the tires is soon worn down, the frame of the car is distorted with strain, and the wheels lose their alignment.

Causes of Loss of Compression.

The loss of compression is the most common mechanical trouble causing an engine to lose its power This may be due to gas leaking down past the piston or out around the valves. If the cylinder walls are scored or the pistons are worn, or the rings broken or improperly fitted, it means there will not be a tight seal between the pistons and cylinder walls, with the result that gas leaks down through into the crankcase. If the valves are covered with carbon or pitted or the valve stems or heads are warped then the gas will leak by the valves and an inefficient engine will be the result. Worn or dirty valves can usually be easily remedied by regrinding and if the job is properly done they should be just as efficient as when new. This regrinding is only necessary when they begin to leak.

Underinflation Is Harmful.

Underinflation of a tire per[illegible]pid wear of the edges of the tread, leaving the middle still thick and strong, even though the edges are weakened. It also permits stones, bricks and other obstructions in the roadway to endanger the tire structure on the inside.

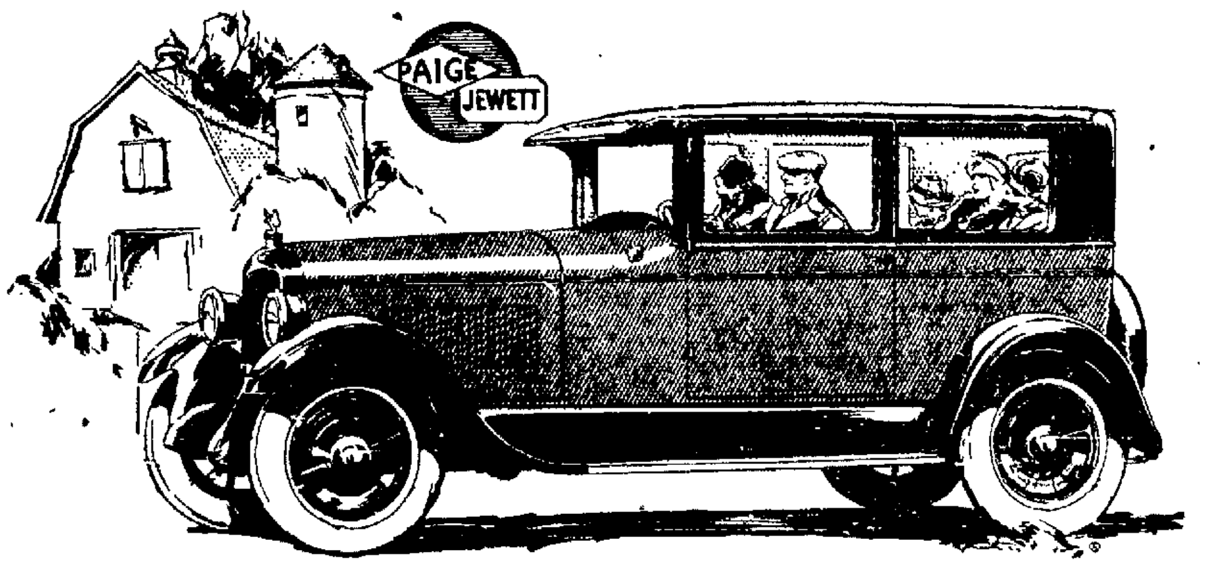
"Never a Car Like This—Never Such Value!"



Improved Jewett Gives Larger Finer Car for Less Money

And no wonder! For in roominess and fine riding quality—in quality of detail—in sheer ability on the road—in value, Jewett Coach leads the field.

Here is roominess like in big sedans—only without their bulk. We recently added more roominess. And added length gives amazing new riding ease. Take any road you find at the speed you like to ride. Jewett Coach will do it restfully.

Never Such Performance!

To drive Jewett Coach is to experience a brand of performance that's utterly new and amazing. Power that pulls the hardest hills on high and carries you along open stretches at 60 and better.

You'll realize that Jewett has put two to three thousand dollar engineering into a car that sells for $1245. That's why Jewett performance is taken for granted wherever motor cars are sold.

And you can expect this kind of performance from Jewett Coach for years without worry of upkeep cost, for it's a sturdy, well-built car throughout. That's why Jewett is worth more than ordinary cars. Because Jewett has been unwilling to sacrifice quality in a single detail.

August Jewett sales this year exceed August, 1924, by 131%, emphatic proof of this car's great new value.

Many Important Improvements

A new air cleaner adds years of service—insures clean air—clean oil—clean cylinders. Greater freedom from carbon, scored cylinders and worn bearings—increased motor life are the results. Light switch is now conveniently at hand on the steering gear. Indirect lighting on the dash eliminates glare. Gear shift and emergency brake levers are moved forward to provide clear floor space in front—and many other improvements. (616-3)

Belmont Woman Wins Long Fight for Home and Independence by Successful Truck Gardening

MRS. ABBOTT'S HOME WHICH IS LARGELY THE WORK OF HER HANDS. PHOTO BY MACDONALD

BY LULU MAE COE.

Her hands are browned with the suns of sixty years The nails are broken and bent They are muscular hands for a woman, with strong fingers and thick palms.

In those hands is written the life of Annie Abbott.

Those hands have washed baby faces and dried baby tears, and they have plastered and floored a house for them They have dressed her babies for their last sleep, and they have guided the plow in the fields. They have taken small stitches in little dresses and fashioned little overalls in the late night, and they have milked cows and cut corn and dug potatoes

They are not idle, today, for hands that have done hard, hurting, unwomanly work with a womanly motive, for more than half a century, can not learn pretty ways of lying loose in one's lap.

Wins in Last Few Years.

Those hands, after working for more than forty years for others, have earned her independence and moderate fortune in the last dozen years.

Uneducated in book learning, Annie Abbott's hands have accomplished tasks that colleges can not teach, that degrees can not offer

For the last twenty years, she has lived a pioneer life in a settled country. In a rich country, broken to the plow and to homes, she has made her way as did the pioneer woman, without a pioneer man's help.

In a country of power farming, she has known only hoes and knives and spades and her strong brown hands

The story of Annie Abbott isn't the story of a woman afraid It isn't the story of men who whine and complain that they have no luck, of soap box orators who proclaim that the poor man is being trod beneath the wheel of the aristocrat, of men who let the storms of nature and the storms of man dumbfound them, who are too timid to put their shoulder to the wheel, and, when they do, shrink from it, as it sinks into the mire and mud of ill fortune.

A Woman Who Dared.

Rather it is the story of a woman who dared. Of a woman who gave her youth and love of pleasure and comfort and beauty, her chance of protection, to conquer. Of a woman who has fought her own battles, who gave twenty-four hours of her day that her children might have an inheritance "some day," that in her age she might have a home."

It is the story of a woman who has worked for others for fifty-four of her sixty years Of a German immigrant girl, long since turned woman, who has fought as men do not have to fight to maintain her home and her family. Of a woman who has borne her children in rooms with leaking ceilings, without doctors, without nurses. Of a woman who has guided four horses day after day through the fields, and received abuse and curses for her pay. Of a woman driven from her home by the brutality of a man.

Back in Germany, it was the ambition of each householder to have his bit of land Annie Abbott has been in this country since a tiny child, but that land-owning inheritance is hers, and until she had some piece of ground that was hers, some roof of her own, she could not know happiness. Man-ruining hours, bitter, back breaking work has brought its reward, more than its reward, for Annie Abbott is moderately wealthy, has fair health and strength, and an unflagging ambition.

Her Home Her Own.

Her little home at 720 Adams street in Belmont is hers, as are few homes, for her own strength went into it. Her cultivated acres are hers, for she has made them. Her hogs and chickens and horses, her cow and the hollyhocks by the fence are hers, for her life has been converted into the coin of the realm to buy them and keep them.

For several years before coming to her present home, Mrs. Abbott lived on rented acreages near Belmont, she and the four children. She was molding her life alone, and that was the beginning of the long upward climb to provide a home for herself and her four boys, one of whom has since died.

When she went to the second place to live, she had a little more than $200, which enabled her to have a few hogs and chickens and to dress and feed the children. It was an excellent place for the children, away from town and with fresh air She raised garden produce, with the help of the oldest boys.

Faith Lightened Tasks.

Sometimes when the day seems very dreary, and life unfair and unjust, it is well to remember Annie Abbott. She has had a lifetime of work, for washing other people's floors and cleeaning other people's silver began when she was only seven, but she has never railed against he fate, she has always believed that "God knows best," and that "As long as I am honest and don't cheat any one," inhuman labor, arudous hours are all for the best.

During the years she lived on the rented places, a day's schedule was only limited by twenty-four hours Rising at dawn, she prepared breakfast and dressed the [illegible] children for school, in the winter Carrying her little baby in her arms, she walked into Lincoln day afte fraternity houses

Night meant no release from work, no comfortable ease in a big chair, no warm dinner upon arrival Weary as she was, carrying the heavy baby, she walked home again to Belmont, prepared such dinner as there was, and if it were summer, she and the boys planted and hoed and dug in the garden until dark

Worked At Night Too.

After the children were in bed her evening work began. Evening after evening the wash tubs came out, or the ironing board, and Mrs Abbott washed far into the night while the little boys slept. Sometimes she did $8 worth of washing in the evening, which the children carried back the next day or evening

The money that was not needed for barest necessities went into more pigs and chickens and seeds But disaster came. The well ran dry, and no other could be dug The hogs sickened and died, and the tiny little fund of money diminished rapidly As a final bitterness, she was forced to leave, because the owner wished to live in the house.

Three grown sons now—a home—thirty-four lots owned—three and one-half acres being paid for—today

And Annie Abbott has done it Out of the ground she has wrested it, out of hogs and chickens and pumpkins and potatoes and corn, she has wrung property valued at more than $9,000, exclusive of the house.

At first, $5 when it could be eked out of washings and cleanings and a few potatoes Then $10, as the first lot began to pay, then a little more—and now $150, $190 or so, when a wagon load of hogs, driven in by Annie Abbott, has gone to market Cave First Home.

With the aid of her oldest boy, then about fourteen, Mrs Abbott dug a cave forty feet long and twenty feet wide on the first little lot on which she later paid the precious $40 They piled limbs and boards and most anything obtainable over it for a proof, and she and the four children lived there through a spring and summer and fall and into the winter. There was an iron bed for the four boys and a one hole stove for cooking and heating—and that was the furniture

"My little boys had to stand up while they ate. We didn't have anything to sit on, and no table"

It was a start, that cave

Washing, cleaning, selling what she could, the next spring Mrs Abbott had a man lay the foundation for her present home and put up the timbers. After walking into town and back, working all day, she came home at night and lathed the house and carried all the mortar used in it, and laid the floors, and set the windows, and put in the woodwork, hours and months of backbreaking work compressed into a few sentences.

The family moved in as soon as the lath was on, and the frost often hung on the walls

Vines Cover House.

Today, the house has four small rooms down stairs, with a kitchen built on, which her oldest son helped Mrs Abbott to build, and three upstairs She has papered the walls and painted a design on the dining room floor to resemble linoleum Vines run over the front of the house and hollyhocks bloom by the fence

But the house and the vines and the flowers don't tell the fate that they hide.

Long before they were there, Mrs. Abbott had acquired 100 head of hogs, and 60 of them were ready to go to market. They sickened and that summer she lost 90 of the 100 That was in those first very hard years, when it was hard to find clothing for four boys and food for their ever hungry mouths

Mrs. Abbott paid her $30 for the first lot on January 2, 1914, and, having purchased it on tax sale, acquired the title last year. The adjoining lot was purchased for the same price, as it was nearly all creek bank and bed. Undeterred, Mrs. Abbott hauled trash and refuse to fill it up, and has a top covering of dirt, so that she now has a side yard, where once was only waste land.

Raises Hogs and Chickens.

Mrs Abbott is now fattening twenty-three hogs for market, and as soon as they are sold and part of the money applied on the ground, she will buy some more to fatten with the young ones she has. She has raised 400 cghickens this summer, and has sold them to the more select boarding houses.

Last year Annie Abbott raled 900 bushel of potatoes and she cut them planted tem all herelf, and dug them in the fall, with her so not carry them into the house for her, after she had plowed the ground. This year, she is only to dig two lots of potatoes, because the frost worked hardship on her and took all the early crops she had planted.

This year, after the early crops were frost bitten, she put in second plantings, and she has six and one-half acres of corn. She figures that she will have sufficient corn for the chickens the two horses the pigs, and with a remainder to sell. Her rising hour in the summer is 3 o'clock, and she is shucking, bundling, and stacking all the corn from these acres

Cass County Girl Wins Championship In Annual State Fair Style Show Contest

These twelve girls made thier dresses and chose the rest of their costume to compete in the first style show ever held at any state fair. They are members of girls' sewing clubs of the agricultural extension service of Nebraska who have had training in making and selecting their own clothes.

Not how much finery they could put on, but how becomingly dressed they could be, was what counted when the twelve best girls of Nebraska club work entered the first annual style show at the recent State Fair. The girls have been taking practical training in the making and choosing their own costume. They made their dresses and chose the shoes, stockings and hat to complete the costume. Cost of dress and of entire costume entered into the selection of the winners.

The preliminary competition was staged Wednesday afternoon in the agricultural extension building at the fair and the final placing of awards came in the evening while the girls appeared on the stage before the crowded grandstand as the feature of boys and girls club night.

Miss Mary Ellen Wiles of Cass county won the championship. She wore a blue pongee dress trimmed in white, which cost $6.30. It was entered as an afternoon costume. Her hose and shoes were black silk and black low heeled slippers. Her entire costume cost $12.80.

Miss Gladys Heilman of Lancaster county placed second wearing a gray tweed dress trimmed in blue. Her dress cost $5.51 and her entire costume $11.51. She wore gray hose and black slippers. Her costume was for street wear.

Miss Virginia Janak of Saunders county was third. She wore a rose linen dress with a small black tie and black patent leather belt. Black cotton hose and black oxfords completed her costume. Her dress cost $3.90 and her entire costume $7.75. It was made for school wear.

Misses Irene Sierk of Dakota county, Frieda Wieckhorst of Otoe county, Mildred Meyers of Red Willow county, Mary Blakely of Johnson count, and Adeline Frederickson of Polk county placed in the order named for the eight premiums offered.

The average cost of the dresses made by the girls was $3.90 and of the whole costume $9.45. Miss McLean of Seward county made a school dress for $1.16 and got her entire costume for $1.51.

The general effect of the costume counted 25 per cent, the appropriatness of the costume to the occasion counted another 25 per cent, the appropriateness of the costume to the wearer another 25 per cent, the workmanship 20 per cent, and the wise expenditure of money 5 per cent.

Miss Rose Shonka of the Lincoln schools who acted as judge said the girls showed their training in choosing materials, colors and the trimmings that suited their particular types of figures and complexions. She thought another outstanding feature of all the costumes was their completeness yet their simplicity and because of this the attractiveness of the girls' costumes.

The winning lady will represent Nebraska in a style show at the annual club congress which is held in connection with the International Livestock exposition, at Chicago each year.

BELMONT WOMAN WINS LONG FIGHT

Running in and out of the corn and over considerable ground of their own are pumpkins and water melons and cantaloupes, some going to market now and some in the future. Mrs. Abbott also raises pie plant, grapes, plums, cherries, tomatoes and the small garden truck for sale. For years and years, she has loaded her spring wagon and gone from door to door, offering her produce. Since the days are a little easier for her, she has not gone from house to house, but has served just regular customers.

Working her four horses in the old days, with the babies asleep under the nearby trees, selling her 'garden truck' from door to door—she is another Selma DeJong, with a far different background.

While she has plowed and weeded —and hoed more than six acres of corn—she has prepared three meals each day. Her son, who is a plasterer and lives at home, comes for his meals, and "he likes to eat," Mrs. Abbott says.

Still Does Work Herself.

Annie Abbott goes into the wholesale houses and hauls home the feed she has to buy for her stock. She cuts grass for the pig. She fixes the fences and puts up the sheds necesary.

She has found time to make endless "crazy" quilts for the beds, and she has made the backs from washed sacks she has gotten from the wholesale houses. She has made caps and overall and socks for the little boys. She has made all the clothes she has had. The most of this work h as been done late at night, as a little change from the routine of feeding pigs and cows, and hoeing corn and potatoes, of weeding melon patches and propping up tomatoes.

And Annie Abbott is happy. She has earned her money honestly. And she has not stopped planning and working. At sixty-one she is as hard a worker as she was at forty. She plans to move the pens to her new acreage, to make a lawn about the house, to 'fix it up' as she has not had time ,and to make a home for my boy."

Peru has had three weeks of vacation afeer having closed a successful summer term during which thirty-one degrees were granted, bringing the total for the year to fifty. Last year were granted eighteen degrees.

A Study of Human Emotions, of People Minus Inhibitions--The State Fair

The state fair.

All that—and something else.

It's a curious place. Men pass by the huge pumpkins and scrubbed potatoes and rosy apples—and stand for long minutes to watch a man hit a tin duck.

They speed by the new style silos and the tractors and the mammoth reapers and binders—and stand open-eyed as the sea foam taffy man whips his pink mass around a stick.

They glance at the Percherons and the cattle judging and cannot be torn from before the man eating snake of India and the fat lady.

When we go to the fair we aren't old and tired and disillusioned. A fair does what a song can't—makes us a chlid again just for tonight. The carnival streak lying so close to the surface but crushed month after month bursts forth when we see the first ballyhoo man and smell the first hot dog.

A fair is a place where we can be natural, for everybody else is being natural, too.

A dignified business man, who wouldn't condescend to gaze upward at a flying circus, stood for ten minutes watching poeple trying to find their way out of the glass house. Another walked aimlessly up and down the midway for a few minutes, then slipped back to give a dime to see 'what cigarettes had done to this man.'

"Well, I'm going over to the horse barn."

"Well, all right, but I do. Goodness, I never saw such a place. The men never want to go where the women do—but then the women dont want t ogo where the men do."

"Fill'em up, fill'em up, fill'em up."

And people generally accept the advice.

And she generally takes a drink.

"Hot pop corn, chewing gum, choc'late bars, pop corn balls. Right this way."

"Bowl a' soup, mister. Have a fine hot bowl of soup—it's gonna rain in just one minute. Fine, hot soup."

A state fair is good for the food purveyors. Even Friday, only one food booth had gone into retirement, and with chill north breezes, the blue-eyed, blue sweatered vendor stood above her red lemonade and called her wares, the pink aproned ice cream sandwich girl tried to entice customers to her stand, offering food as cold as the.

Sorrow, too.

An inadvertent glimpse into the back door of a midway tent. A berouged lady trying to turn the course of very real tears from her very pink cheeks, weeping amidst the spangles and tinseled trappings of her trade.

Another, domestically inclined, did a family washing in a tub on the ground, bending almost over it.

One boy stood by the opening of the glass house, too much glass, too few exits, trying to find his way out. Confusion mirrored on his face! He started forward, to find glass. He leaped backward, more glass. Suddenly he saw the exit at his side. Smile—and the crowd laughed. So did I.

The next day—the same boy, the same confusion, the same sudden exit. The crowd laughed. Not so wise as I—it didn't know he was paid for that.

A huge crowd. Doctors, lawyers, merchants—maybe thieves—farmers clerks, truck drivers all in one huge circle. The doctor leaned close to the browned f ce of a farmer lad. An urchin skurried around the legs of the crowd. Craning necks. Standing on tip toes. The outer disgusted that it couldn't see. Dark looks at the first arrivals. The traffic on the sidewalks going out of its way to avoid the circle—when it didn't add itself to the throng.

"Yes," said a man who has followed fair for many years, "the exhibits draw the crowd. We couldn't have a fair without them. The agricultural displays always have big crowds, and the men like the cattle judging and demonstrations, and the women hang around the women's departments. They make the fair worthwhile.

"But after all, the cattle and canned goods and the autos are what we get at home. These side shows and men selling stuff on the street are different and the people like'em. They learn a lot from the demonstrations, but we don't want to learn all the time."

Purple and blue and crimson balloons—vendor pounding them under one's nose to show great strength while bystanders blink with great rapidity. Remarkable the noise a non-breakable balloon can make. Ten year old proves the lie of their strength, bringing sharp thumb nail in juxtaposition to the balloon. Sudden pop while little girls squeal.

NEBRASKA LOSES MILLION A YEAR THROUGH SMUT

Damage to Wheat Crop Even More Pronounced This Season.

Agricultural Experts Suggest Seed Treatment As Preventative.

Nebraska farmers have lost a million dollars this year because of damage to wheat by smut, the greater part of which is preventable, according to conclusions drawn from reports made by the college of agriculture plant pathology department.

Estimates of damage for 1925 have not yet been sent in, but a former report by the department showed that 2,729,000 bushels were lost because of all wheat diseases, stem rot included. Smut of the two varieties, loose and covered, caused about one-third of this.

The latest report on general conditions this year states:

"Loose smut is rather more common this year owing to favorable conditions for blossom infection last season. The damage done ranges from a trace to 3 per cent.

"Covered or stinking smut is about the same as last year, with infections of a race to 3 per cent over the state. Some fields have a rather high per cent."

Federal Statistician A. E. Anderson also notes that smut is slightly worse this year than usual, but finds on the other hand that his estimaters say the condition of the grain as a whole is good.

"Smut increases by mathematical progression unless favorable weather conditions are experienced or unless steps are taken to check it," observes Prof. Theodore Keisselbach of the college of agriculture.

Through county agents and through the extension department of the university, steps actually have been taken to eliminate the scourage.

Coverd or stinking smut, the most prevalent variety, can be prevented by treating the seed of wheat before it is put in the ground. Loose smut, however, can be combatted only by planting uninfected seed.

Cost of seed treatment is but 10 cents per acre, including material and labor at $5 a day, declares Director H. M. Bainer of the Southwestern Wheat Improvement association.

It is generally known, he says, that stinking smut is sown with the wheat and that good crops cannot be expected from smutty seed.

"The new copper carbon dust method of seed treatment is considered better than any of the old methods," Mr. Bainer continues "Copper carbonate is fine, poisonous dust. In order to prevent smut copper carponate is mixed with the seed so that every kernel is covered with the dust. This dust is used at the rate of 2 to 4 ounces a bushel. It is not advisable to try to trea badly smutted seed."

The treatment must be done in a mixer of some kind, such as an old barrel churn. Even then, the operator must wear a mask or wet handkerchief over nose and mouth, as the dust is poisonous.

Copper carbonate does not injure germination, experiments have determinated, and helps it if anything. Treatment can be given weeks or months before sewing. Two men can treat 25 or 30 bushels of seed an hour.

This method is approved by agricultural college authorities here who say that it has now almost wholly displaced the old way by using formaldehyde.

A Study Of The Human Emotions

Kewpie badges—tying bands with remarkable sentiments about their hats—pleading with corn flake man for sample box—leaning on the fence watching horse shoe tournament—discussing Poland Chinas and Chester Whites—wrangling over Holsteins and Jerseys and Aberdeen Angus—quarrelling good naturedly over barred Plymouth Rocks and Buff Orpingtons.

Women, young, old, and middle aged—exclaiming over the 'dear little dogs' and the tiny ponies—criticizing the displayed needlework—peering at the colorful jars of canned fruit—dragging children away from under cars and horses and tractors and baby beeves and pedestrians and Shetland ponies—eying the apples and potatoes and peaches and plums and thinking those of "John" or "Henry" much better.

Lancaster County Baby Beeves At Fair

Lancaster county boys as a group produced five steers good enough to beat every other county group at the 1925 state fair, in club competition. It is one honor for one boy to have a good calf; it is an ever greater honor for each one of a whole group to have good calves, in the opinion of livestock fans.

The first group of calves included the champion and reserve champion Angus steers of the show. The champion Angus was also the reserve champion or second best steer of the 193 baby beeves entered by the boys and girls. The other calves in the group were the second prize junior Herefords, and the fourth and the eighth prize senior Shorthorns.

"We have been working to win all year," said County Extension Agent Purbaugh, who has charge of the club work in the county. "The boys deserve what they got because they have tried to do their best."

Four of the five calves come from the Waverly Baby Beef club of which G. A. Speidel, Smith-Hughes teacher of Waverly, is the local leader. All the boys but one in his club are in Waverly schools, but only two of them are Smith-Hughes students taking the baby beef project as part of their school training also. This club has held its regular meeting all year since the members started to feed last October. Mr. Speidel and County Extension Agent Purbaugh had one special meeting to start the boys training their calves in the right way and then Mr. Speidel helped each boy individually with the intensive work of fitting just before the fair.

This is the first year that boys around Waverly have fed baby beeves but it will not be the last, they say.

The other calf of the five was fed and shown by Lawrence Schoenleber of the Stevens Creek Baby Beef club east of Bethany. Lawrence has fed a calf for two successive years now. His calf this year topped the senior Angus class and was reserve champion of the Angus show.

These calves were all sold in the public auction sale Tuesday. The two champion Angus brought 22 and 16 cents a pound and sold to the Lincoln Packing Co., for Lincoln trade. This will be home consumption of a Lancaster county product. The five calves averaged 16½ cents per pound.

NO SMOKE OR SOOT—The Sun Oil Burner has an exclusive feature cap which positively prevents burning of raw oil. It forms a vapor gas and air mixture for burning, which means COMPLETE and CLEAN COMBUSTION.

THE METHODS OF THE UNDERWORLD.

A young man in the early twenties was found dead in a room in a deserted roadhouse on the outskirts of St. Louis the other day.

He had been shot several times.

Investigation by the police revealed that he was a gangster, with a record of having been arrested over 100 times and on two occasions facing the most desperate charges. A year ago he was liberated after standing trial for murder.

Over a week ago the body of a New York City "killer" was found in his partially burned automobile. He had been terribly beaten, shot, and while still alive fire was set to his automobile.

In Chicago for over a year now there has been a savage, unrelenting warfare waged by the members of different criminal bands and thugs, in which blood has been freely spilled and a score of lawless lives sacrificed to the grim methods of the underworld. In this strata of society which knows no law but that of violence and force, no one is too powerful to escape the consequences of awakened hatreds and consuming passions. It is an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth and a life for a life. Dion O'Banion, who laughed contemptuously at the law and its duly constituted authorities, who felt so sure and certain of himself and his power, was trapped like a rat and died ingloriously at the hands of one he had offended. Three of five brothers, who made a king's ransom in bootleg liquor, died when the methods it was claimed they had employed were turned upon them.

* * *

Society shudders when these black deeds are uncovered to the light.

Elemental man is not beautiful when he is ruled by lust and greed, and avarice and when his passions are unbridled to kill and destroy.

But society does not concern itself with the methods of the underworld unless those who live within its shadows reach out to menace the property, the lives and the happiness of the millions who believe in law and in order.

The finding of a gangster's body in St. Louis will enter the record as an unsolved mystery of the underworld. It will call for a perfunctory investigation of a few days, after which the police will cease to worry themselves with it. Unless some friend and associate determines to avenge the slaying by matching violence with violence, it will have been forgotten as soon as it was discovered. That will be the history of the New York gangster's case. Chicago police do not trouble themselves with the feuds of the underworld.

These facts are not recalled in a spirit of criticism. When a young man deliberately chooses a life of crime and vice in place of attempting to fill a useful role in a community, he places himself outside of the protection of society. He is an enemy of law and decency. There is a ghastliness and a horribleness to the methods of the underworld but it seems to have a part in the eternal order of things. A misspent life ends in ruin and destruction. That is the rule of the universe and in the savagery of the underworld its triumph is many times made more speedily certain although the methods which establish it are criminal and lawless.

HOME INSURANCE COMPANIES.

Few of Nebraska's citizens who have not been in direct contact with the insurance business in one or more of its numerous branches realize what a great factor it has become in the commercial life of the state. Likewise, it is probably known to very few residents of Lincoln that this city holds a position of pre-eminence and leadership in the insurance field, which is becoming more marked with each passing year.

In the Cornhusker state last year, as exhibited by the published report of the state insurance bureau, the total income of all companies and organizations operating under its supervision was more than $42,500,000. This was equivalent to $29 for each man, woman and child living within the boundaries of Nebraska. This showing embraces both domestic and non-resident corporations.

One of the gratifying features of the report is the large volume of business being done by home companies furnishing life insurance. A generation ago, this form of insurance was left almost entirely to New York and European concerns. It is only during the last quarter century that Nebraska companies have become formidable competitors for a share of this business. They have achieved notable progress and are making steady gains on their outside rivals to such an extent that the time may not be far distant when they will be carrying a majority of the life risks in this state.

In 1924 there were an even dozen stock life companies organized under the laws of Nebraska, which collected premiums in that year totalling $4,236,856 on policies issued to people living in Nebraska. Some of them also had a large amount of business in other states.

Six of the Nebraska companies referred to have their headquarters in Lincoln. Their combined premium income reached $2,832,134—about 61 per cent of the entire receipts for all 12. One Lincoln concern alone took in over a million and a half dollars of premiums.

There is also one mutual life insurance company in Lincoln, doing a large business in the state, not included in the foregoing. In Nebraska premium collections during 1924 aggregated over $387,000. Counting it in with the others, the total income of the seven Lincoln concerns was upwards of $3,200,000.

Such a valuable asset as these companies constitute in the business life of the community cannot be overlooked. They are rendering service to Lincoln and Nebraska in several distinct ways. First, they provide protection for the dependents of those who take out policies. Second, they retain within the state large sums of money which otherwise would be going to distant points. Third, this money is available for loans to Nebraska farmers and real estate owners and helps to keep down interest rates to the borrowers. Fourth, the home companies give employment to many people and thus contribute to the maintenance of Nebraska homes. Fifth, they pay large sums in taxes and thereby assist in meeting the expense of state and local governmental activities.

The footing which Lincoln has secured in the life insurance world will be strengthened as time goes on. Her companies are reaching out into wider territory and their expanding business will increase the city's importance and prestige as an insurance center. The present year will make a considerable advance over 1924. This is one avenue of commercial activity in which the possibilities of the future are almost boundless.

PRESIDENT COBBEY OF COTNER.

It is tragic, indeed, when a great and a good man is called in the midst of a magnificent undertaking.

Such is the case in the untimely death of President Charles E. Cobbey, of Cotner university, who died Friday evening following an illness of brief duration, the result of overwork. Mr. Cobbey was a very young man for the large responsibilities which he had been carrying. At the age of 37, he was called upon to accept the presidency of Cotner college. He was 40 at the time of his death.

It is hardly necessary to review the fine results that he had attained.

President Cobbey brought to Cotner a personality which makes for success. He possessed to an unusual degree a magnetic personality which enabled him to attract and inspire young men and young women. He was warming and heartening, abounding in enthusiasm for real accomplishment, and able to transmit to those associated with him in his work the same degree of solicitude for the welfare and progress of those entrusted to his care.

There have been men at the head of these western schools and colleges with more brilliant mental attainments. But there have been none who brought to their work a greater degree of consecration and devotion to the task of developing splendid young specimens of manhood and womanhood than President Cobbey. In a remarkable degree he succeeded in enlisting the confidence and faith of the student body and the faculty alike.

President Cobbey was a type of educator sadly needed at this time. He had a fine conception of the responsibilities which rest upon those who direct the classroom life in the schools and colleges of America. "Education is the process of developing life," he declared in the course of a letter addressed to a member of the faculty of Cotner only a little over a month ago. "If our educational principles are wrong, we mar the life that comes to us to receive good. That thought is sobering. A group of new students are coming. They must not be disappointed. We have spoken of Cotner as a glorious school, and we, you and I, must make it glorious ....The attendance will probably be the largest but that fact may make it the greatest year of failure. We must make it the greatest year in efficiency and spiritual power."

That, we submit, is a fine vision of the educator's goal. In the mad rush for numbers, many educators have forgotten the individual. President Cobbey was one who understood and appreciated the real factors in human development.

IT'S ALL BEEN DONE BEFORE.

Verily the preacher spoke truthfully when he said "There is no new thing under the sun." For decades western people have been boasting of the advances they have made in business methods and of the vast fortunes which have been piled up by some of them, but for over 200 years the wealth of the Mitsui family of merchants in Japan has been a household word in the Orient and in the middle of the last century it amounted to more than twenty million dollars. Since then its growth has continued.

It is not the size nor the antiquity of the Mitsui fortune, however, which entitles it to particular attention, but the manner in which it was acquired, preserved and augmented. The founder of the Mitsui family was Hachirobei, who was very, very poor at the age of fourteen, but who died in 1692 as the richest merchant of the far east. He is said by Benoit Mechin, a French writer, to have been the first man to use the system of fixed prices and the payment in kind, as well as in cash.

Henry Ford and others who are pointed to as model modern employers had little on this Oriental who died more than a century before this nation was born, for Hachirobei promised never to dismiss an employe who did his work satisfactorily and to give a pension to his family after his death. He introduced profit sharing among partners and employes of the house and it took nearly 300 years for this system to be suggested among business men of the western world. There has not been a strike nor an interruption of work in the Mitsui establishment since the beginning of the eighteenth century.

Hachirobei was a real business man and it may surprise some people to learn that he was the first to introduce the double system of accounting. The books of the establishment, which have been preserved in the family museum since 1700, show that he used the check system of payment among the various offices of the firm, and, finally, he was among the earliest of advertisers. In the rainy season the firm gave each passerby an umbrella gratuitously, but on each umbrella all the world which happened to be within seeing distance might read the word, "Mitsui."

Shortly before his death Hachirobei became banker to the emperor of Japan and ever since that time the family has occupied that position. Later the family was among the first to trade with the merchants of the west and to appreciate the value of technical knowledge and progress. It opened mines in Asia, recognizing the fact that silk and rice must to a very great extent be replaced by iron and oil in commerce.

By reason of the system adopted by Hachirobei the Mitsui family is virtually a close corporation, in which there can be no division of capital. All power is vested in the oldest son alone and he is responsible to the rest of the family for the development of business matters. All are required to live as well-to-do people, but not as wealthy ones, the principle prevailing in the family being that one does not truly own wealth, but is merely allowed to live upon the interest thereof.

So are we constantly reminded that "The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done."

THE MONTH OF AUGUST IN NEBRASKA.

In many sections of Nebraska, the people will recall August of 1925 with real gratitude. There was a time when its approach on the calendar brought dread but for the last three years Old Sol has been robbed of his terrors during that period. The heat and discomfort of the blazing summer sun gave way to cool delightful weather during practically the entire month in 1923, '24 and '25.

But there is another and better reason for recalling the August of 1925. Wheat had been a most disappointing crop, especially in the eastern Nebraska counties, when the returns were in from July threshing crews. Oats had suffered sharply as a result of the extreme heat of early July and the protracted drouth which extended throughout the month. Alfalfa was short and hay was none too promising. The largest acreage of corn ever planted in this state had gotten away to a good start and had made remarkable progress but had come to the critical stage in the closing days of July and the first of August. Then came the rains. The precipitation was above normal. It covered most every county in Nebraska and it was copious. Ordinarily a dry July foreshadows a destructive August. But in the month of favorable weather, corn prospects increased over the government estimates prepared at the first of August by 13,000,000 bushels.

In the face of the abnormal acreage, the federal crop statistician would concede Nebraska but a crop of 195,680,000 bushels in the early part of August. His latest report indicates a yield of 209,105,000 bushels. An ideal month unexpectedly placed an additional $10,000,000 in the pockets of Nebraska farmers, if the present price of corn is considered. But it did more than that. If it had not been for the cool, rainy weather in August, this state would have faced a practical failure of the corn crop except for those counties in the extreme southeastern section. August gave Nebraska potatoes the badly needed moisture. It revived the pasture and meadows and added hundreds of thousands of tons to the hay yield.

Nebraska agriculture can be very thankful that August of 1925 did not run true to form.

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well, all I know is what I read in the papers. Babe Ruth saved the papers the last couple of weeks from going to press with nothing but ads. He went out in and in again quicker than any public character we ever had. One day everybody was for shooting him. Now he is just a "big boy that has never grown up." A great deal was made in the papers about his crying and repenting. I tell you that was the $5,000 fine that did that. I don't blame him for trying to cry the managers out of that fine. I would weep on their necks too. I would kiss John McGraw for $5,000.

I am glad that fining system is not in vogue on the stage. Should Mr. Ziegfeld fine me for not being in a humorous condition, I would hate to have to go to him and embrace him to get the fine remitted. But when all is said and done you let the old Babe start knocking home runs every day, and people will flock in and call him a hero and the managers won't care if he carries a bottle of gin to the home plate with him, drinks it, and knocks a home run with the empty bottle. A home run a day will keep the scandal away.

Well, the old Commonwealth of these United States did pretty well financially last month. Belgium come over and made arrangements to settle an old claim that we were just about to charge off as a bad debt on our income tax. I think it is to be paid in 64 years. Not a great deal of nourishment to be derived by us boys here now from a settlement like that. Of course, in 64 years we will have a half dozen other wars, and the claims on this first one will be outlawed. A contract drawn now will be as out of fashion in 64 years as our old original constitution of these United States is today. They will be using something else for money by then.

Mr. Ford says we will soon have synthetic milk, maybe we will have synthetic money. Synthetic gin certainly started something in this country. I got some debts I would kinder like to ease off for 64 years, I would even compromise with my creditors on a 50 year basis. But, mind you, I am not criticising Andy Mellon for his basis of settlement with Belgium. Belgium is just an unfortunate country geographically. No country has it in for Belgium personally. They just like to use her grounds to fight on. Why they don't fight on their own grounds nobody knows. But it just seems that they draw up a contract for a war and the place is always understood. There is just a kinder after thought as they leave each other, "I will meet you in Belgium." It's the Gettysburg of Europe. It's really not a country, it's ust Military Highway.

If I was theBeublims I would rent it to 'em and move out till they got through with it, then come back and get it in shape for the next war. They have 33 years to get it in shape for France and Germany to fight. They fight on schedule every 40 years. Then, in between, they can let England and France have it, then Russia and France It would be no trouble to keep it booked up all the time. They would probably even get the Balkan business. I bet they would lige to have new battle ground just for a change. And those Ruffians from Morocco! Maybe France could find them if they contracted to meet them in Belgium.

France's Debt Co., comes over here next. They have never said anything about paying before. They have waited 7 years to translate their hard luck story into English. Their plea is that the harvest crop of tourists has not reached the expected yield. The numbers have been beyond expectation but the shakedown per person, has been very low. There have been American tourists who ventured into Europe this past summer, who really should not have gone beyond Lake Chautauqua. Where tourists used to carry a letter of credit when leaving America; they are now carrying lunch boxes. Drinks no longer interest an American in Europe; they are too mild. Americans are going there nowadays to look and France can't figure out any way to keep 'em from looking without paying. So France argues, "If you don't pay it to us we can't pay it to you."

I would suggest that they put in hot dog stands. Coney Island got rich off 'em out of the same kind of people. That is France's only salvation. I would rather own the hot dog privilege than to own the Louvre.

When these foreign nations get all through promising to settle with us in 60 or 80 years, why maybe the cattlemen and farmers of this contry can go to Mr. Mellon and the secretary of agriculture and get the same liberal terms to pay for their homesteaded land, and their grazing taxes on government land. Yes, you let one ask for 64 years time and now he will be escorted to an asylum by a federal officer. Cattlemen made the country, but it takes a politician to spoil it.

Europe can come here with a high hat and glycerine tears, and tell of its proverty and hard luck (which they themselves were responsible for). And they go home with a 60 year furlough, take their ready cash and build battleships and aeroplanes with it.

Let the old cowman come in and show them his accumulation of a lifetime (which is mortgages) and show 'em the price of beef on the hoof, and what happens?

Not only what happens, but what did happen: They raised the tax on him for grazing herds. That's the 64-year Furlough he got. They said they were forest reserve and his cattle might eat up the trees.

Or the widow or mother of a soldier who lost his life in same war those nations are asking mercy about—will they give her 64 years to dig up her little taxes? It's wonderful to be lenient, but let's get lenient near home.

It wouldn't be so bad if they liked us, but everybody knows that those countries have no more use for us than Hearst has for Al Smith.

And speaking of these two gentlemen reminds me of a primary election we are having here in the old town in a few days to see who runs on the democratic ticket for mayor. Mr. Hearst and Mr. Smith are having the fight, and the two poor birds who are running, Walker and Hyland are the goats. The two men that are fighting are not running, and the two who are running don't know what it's all about. they are just going for the ride.

Smith accused Hylan of conspiring with the klan. If Hylan did do so, that is one thing that a politician did that you couldn't say he did for political purposes—not in New York City.

The republicans have finally found a fellow to run too. It's Mr. Waterman, the man that makes our fountain pens. They say he is a fine man. He may make a good mayor. But he has a life's work in front of him if he will only stop those things from leaking. All three candidates are running on the same platform, "The Five Cent Fare."

Any man that can say five cents can get nominated. If I was going to run, my platform would be the subway should pay you to ride on it.

I don't see why they don't have Al Smith for mayor. Of course he is governor, but he could hold both jobs. He could run this town in the evenings. And, come to think of it, that is when it needs running. Everybody is asleep here all day.

BACK TO WORK

Everybody's Doing It—But This Is to Instigate a Movement to the Contrary.

"The Great Novelist always rose at four and had a romp among his bulls till five."

This is the time of year when everybody is getting back to work. The schools are opening again and the children are beginning to study. The business man has had his vacation and put in his ten days in the Maine wilderness at Upagainstit. The young lady stenographer who won the prize trip to Europe on a a vote of the whole of her home town, is back from Vienna. And pretty soon the higher colleges will open and the students will be working at their football six hours a day.

In short we are all back again on the job and the time is appropriate for a little discussion o fthe Work Question in general.

Now it seems to me that this "work" idea is being carried too far. The thing is becoming a habit and our unhappy human race is forgetting what we are here for.

The Presidential Way.

A good deal of the blame lies, I think, with the great people of the world—I mean the distinguished people in the high positions. Whenever you read of kings, presidents, great scientists, great inventors, you find that they work all the time. Here, for example, is an account of the way the president of the United States—any president of the United States, from George Washington—is supposed to begin his day.

"The president is an early riser. He is always out of bed at five, is dressed at five minutes past, drinks a cup of coffee and is at his desk at half after five where he remains for three hours. At eighty-thirty he reads the papers and then goes back under his desk till eleven o'clock."

That example is surely enough to stop everybody from wanting to be a president. But as a matter of fact it is just as bad, or even werse, to be a king or an emperor. One would surely suppose that anybody who had risen so high as to be an emperor would want to quit altogether. Not a bit of it. Emperors, by all accounts, have a perfect rage for work.

The Imperial A. M. Dash

Nowadays there are not many emperors left, but if you take any account of any of the emperors that there were in the days before th war, you find that thir intimate life was carried on after this fashion:—

"The emperor"—so it was said of the most conspicuous of them—"rises at four and at once changes his uniform twice, drinks a dipper of coffee, and is at his desk. He frequently answers over a hundred dispatches, many of which are so important as to involve European peace and war, before five o clock in the morning, dropping his answers down a letter chute at his side. His correspondence finished, the emperor drinks more coffee, changes his trousers twice, and takes his morning ride at full sped, returning at six in time to chop wood, light the fire in the palace and cook the porridge. After which he changes his trousers, reads the papers and settles down to the work of the day."

Or turn to another side of life. Many people would suppose that the life of a successful novelist must be one of delightful ease. Apparently it is not. A successful novelist is bitten with the same wild desire to work that affects a president and an emperor. I noticed recently an account of the most successful of British novelists of today which, read, as nearly as I can recall it, about as follows:—

Looping the Literary Loop.

"Mr. W—, whom we interviewed at his country place in Sussex, is a perfect dynamo of energy. Although it was as yet five o'clock in the morning and we were still a quarter of a mile from the house, he stuck his head out of an upper window and roared, 'Come along!' Delighted to see you! Been waiting for you an hour!' ing for you an hour½"

"He assured us that he always rose at four and went out and had a romp among his bulls from four to five. 'And when do you do your writing?' we asked. 'Mostly between three and four in the morning, though I generally feel pretty keen around midnight,' he answered.

Mr. W— plays as hard as he works. He challenged us to a game of tennis at which he beat us easily three love sets. He is a keen golfer and enjoys walking; never does less than his twnty-five miles a day. In the preparation of his books his energy is enormous. He told us that in the making of his latest novel 'Dora Lapwing' he found it necessary to read through the entire Encyclopedia Brittanica. In leaving him we realized that in our day the life of a novelist is a singularly arduous one."

Worse than all, and more surprising than all, this work craze seems to have spread to most unlikely places.

Hustle Hits the South Seas.

One would surely think that the South Sea Islands stood for a scene of languorous rest where nothing stirred save the faint breezes among the fronds of the palm trees, while the purling waves broke in soft murmurs on the golden sand. At least that is the idea I always had of the place. Yet listen to this, taken from one of the very latest of the new South Sea Island books called "Six Days in Pingo:"

"Early though was our arrival at the wharf at Pingo, my wife and I were at once carried by the natives in a rick to the Bung of the headchief or Yam. We were told that the Yam had left orders that he wished to see us on the very moment of our arrival. We found the Yam already up and at work on the spacious piazza of his bung.

"He is a man of commanding appearances and was dressed in an enormous pancake hat with half a red jacket and a soda water bottle on a wire around his waist. He was busily engaged in working on a typewriter which he can work, so he told us, either with his hands or his feet, making as much noise either way. The chief is a man of European culture, having four books and a radio apparatus which he uses for cooking. He is a man of intense energy. When not cooking on his radio or eating his books, he likes nothing beter than to throw boomerangs in all directions among his subjects.

"The Yam is a man of intense religious conviction and sacrifices one or two of his subjects every week. When I spoke to him of the mission of conversion on which my wife and I had come to Pingo, the Yam said that if I would sell my wife he would convert me a hundred Pinganos that morning."

Only too clearly somebody had brought work and energy and dynamic restlessness into the quiet life of this Yam, and spoilt it.

And so it goes all over the world. Everywhere we have brought the sordid slavery of work. In the quiet depths of the tropical forest where the native used to lie dreaming among the crocodiles, in the snows of the arctic where once the Eskimo sat giggling in his igloo, in all the lost corners of the world we have introduced our mad passion for work.

Illustrious Industry.

Quite as mad as any of the cases above is the lot of a scientist or an inventor. Compare the following little extracts describing the daily habits of one or two of the most illustrious of them:—

"Thomas A. Stedison never sleeps. It is his custom to stand up all night and work. If drowsiness threatens to overcome him, he shuts one eye. If tired, he stands on one leg. By this means Mr. Stedison claims that he gets over 99 per cent of efficiency out of himself."

"Mr. Sparconi never eats. If hunger begins to affect him, he has a bowl of hot onion soup placed in the room next to him. When his work is over, the great inventor looks at a beefsteak fixedly till his working power is restored."

Or—lumping a few others together—

"Henry Pord never sits down."
"Floyd Gorge never laughs."
"M. Moincaire never coughs."

Cannot They Have a Heart?

All through the whole scale, there appears the same terrible record of effort and abstinence and efficiency and work. The thing has gone too far. How much more comfortable this old world would be if we were assured that the President never got up till ten o'clock, and generally went fishing till noon; if we understood that Sparconi played penochle every morning and that Stedison could hardly keep awake after dinner. That would give the rest of us a chance.

As it is, we are being distorted out of our natural selves by the terrible example of the strenuous people. Can we do something about it? Let us get back to the first principles. The only time to work is when you have to. The time to quit is when you want to. Eat all you can pay for. Sleep till someone steps on you. Never think till you have to.

The inculcation of a few ideas like these would make the world a happier place. Come let us make a lazy winter of it.

Discoveries In Humans

Joseph Schenck Saw Chaplin in Vaudeville and Steered Him Into First Screen Job.

Comedian, Then Making $50 a week, hesitated about taking jump to $150 salary from Mack Sennett.

Chaplain wished to draw $40 in advance.

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

Fifteen years ago, in a popular priced theatre in an Ohio city, I witnessed a bit of exceedingly clever pantomiming by a young and practically unknown English vaudeville artist.

Somehow, however, he didn't score as heavily as he deserved. Midwest theatergoers of the type then present knew little of the pantomimist's art. Without the aid of rough and pointedly spoken words they could not fully appreciate the slapstick comedy which was provided by the young fellows vehicle, "A Night in an English Music Hall."

Two or three years went by. Passing a Wilson Avenue picture house, in Chicago, my attention was caught by placards announcing the screen appearance of Charley Chaplin in "The Champion." Friends had declared Chaplin to be screamingly funny. This seemed a good chance to find if the statement were true.

It was—completely so. Throughout the film the audience rocked with laughter. But, most interesting fact to me, I discovered that Charley Chaplin was none other than the sprightly Britisher whose pantomime had so impressed me that earlier day in Ohio.

The Charlie Chaplin of "The Champion" already was a national favorite, on the road to world-wide fame and great riches, and recognition as a perfect and inimitable artist. The Charlie Chaplin of "A Night in an English Music Hall" was obscure and not fully appreciated, and rated lower as an entertainer by the particular public he served than perhaps a dozen burlesque comedians of the time.

What drama of life linked the unheralded vaudevillian with the genius of the screen?

Joseph M. Schenck, whose promience in the amusement world has been earned by his own varied activities, plus the fact he is the husband of Norma Talmadge, "riscovered" Charlie Chaplin and was instrumental in his transfer from the vaudeville stage to the screen.

Schenck, as general manager of the Marcus Loew chain of vadeville and picture theatres, booked "A Night in an English Music Hall" for his houses. And when the act came to the Loew theatre in Philadelphia he got his first glimpse of Chaplin.

Mack Sennett's one-reel comedies were included in the Loew programs. Schenck realized instantly that Chaplin would fit into the Sennett productions to perfection.

"Think I have discovered man who will be great knockabout screen comedian for you," he said.

That was easy. "A Night in an English Music Hall" was to leave shortly for the west and in due time would have his chance.

It was in 1913, when stage salaries were far lower than today, and you would think that when Sennett, seeing Chaplin and being cinvinced, offered him $150 a week he would have accepted immediately. But Charley, who, then as well as now, was more interested in his art than his pay, was doubtful.

Prolonged debates between the comedian and his manager, Alfred Reeves, followed. Chaplin, in vaudeville, was getting $50 a week. Reeves advised him to make the jump to motion pictures and $150 a week. Finally Charley agreed to do so.

Alfred Reeves, by the way was the brother of Billy Reeves, an English pantomime artist who came over about the same time as Chaplin.

In stage patomime they showed about equal ability, although Billy Reeves went higher in the American theatre than did Chaplin, advancing, in fact, to the cast of the Ziegfeld Follies.

But strangely enough, when Reeves also went into the pictures his art did not progress, while Chaplin had no sooner had a good look at himself on the screen than his natural genius reacted. He developed pantomiming to new standards of excellence.

He realized two things:

First, that while on the stage every moment and every gesture must be broadly accented in order that the audience in the rear seats and the galleries may get the meaning, the camera catches the most dilicate shadings and renders them plainly visible in every part of the theatre.

Secondly, that since all comedy in the motion pictures of that day was excessively broad and palpable the actor who could get effects by gentler methods would stand out inevitably by mere contrast.

Charles E. Moyer, now of New York, tells me that when Chaplin came to America from England — where he had taken to the stage by reason of the fact that his father, Charles, Sr., and his older brother, Sydney, were already on it—he played his first engagement in the Orpheum theatre at Rading, Pa.

Moyer was manager of the theatre and he says that during the week Chaplin wished to draw $40 in advance. Moyer refused because the sum represented the young man's whole salary at that time.

Now Chaplin can write his check for a million and his associates say that if he cared to produce more pictures he could make it for twenty-five times that amount.

Here and There

(Kansas City Star.)

In making her will the late Mrs. Morgan showed appreciation of the possibilities that attend all human fortunes. She left a considerable part of her property to her children, "feeling that if through unforeseen circumstances my husband should be in need, they will share with him."

Mr. Morgan is thus secured against the accidents that sometimes occur in thebanking business. Just now his bank seems to be flourishing, but you never can tell. He's been lending a good deal of money on European paper, and recently it was rumored he was in a combination that was trying to corner all the diamonds in the world. There is something sufficiently Napoleonic—which is to say of a speculative nature—about these enterprises, to call to mind that Letizia, the emperor's mother, also had worries about the possibilities of "unforeseen circumstances" and had a habit that greatly irritated her son of tucking away coin in safe hiding places, somewhat after the manner of a magpie. When remonstrated with she retorted wisely that the time might come when Napoleon would have reason to be glad of her forethought.

Radio Digest

When Using a Metal Panel.

The use of a metal panel that is grounded avoids the necessity for separate shielding Great care must be taken in mounting instruments so that they will not short circuit through metal

Worth Remembering.

Disconnect both the aerial and ground wires from the set during a thunderstorm and then connect them in such a way that any atmospheric electricity collecting in the aerial will pass off harmlessly into the ground

A Battery Connector.

Phone tips and phone-tip jacks will make a battery connector that will save many minutes of sorting the wires Use the jacks in place of binding posts on the terminal board and fasten the tips on another terminal board of the same size in such a way the tips will insert nicely in the jacks The tips are soldered to the battery leads

The Faulty Set.

Open circuits constitute one of the defects most commonly found in radio receivers This defect is denoted by a deadness in the phones, which persists, although all parts of the equipment have been examined and appear to be all right. Opens may occur in the battery circuits, the primary or secondary inductances, the tickler circuit ,or in the variable condensers These circuits may be tested for continuity by connecting one side of the circuit tester to one terminal of the circuit to be tested and touching the second terminal with the other side The absence of a 'click' in the phones will denote an open in that circuit When opens occur in variable condenser circuits, they are usually due to a high-resistance contact which develops on the surface of the condenser plates, due to oxidization, and making what is equivalent to an open circuit

Importance of Perfect Contacts.

Poor contact will make the set noisy and will keep out distant stations The contact should be perfect from the far end of the aerial right through the set to the ground There are two general types of contacts used in variometers and condensers, as well as some of the other apparatus The first and most common of these is the wipe, or friction, contact, and the second is called the "pig-tailed' contact The wipe contact will be all right as long as the place is kept clean and there is no dust or soldering flux that can work into it On the other hand, the least little dirt may hold the contacts apart, and when this happens the set will not only be full of peculiar little clicks but it will also be impossible for extremely weak signals to get through at all Some variometers have a contact between the shaft and a brass bearing plate, which is apt to cause trouble, and the only cure is to solder a piece of wire to the end of the shaft and then direct to the rest of the set If this is done the wire should be stranded or flexible and stops arranged on the variometer so that it will not turn too far around and break the wire The same thing holds for the movable plates of a variable condenser, which frequently cause more trouble than the variometer They should also have a piece of wire soldered to them This is called the pig tail, because it usually has a couple of twists in it like the tail of a pig

Because of the shrinkage all guys should be made of rope

Every connection of an aerial will help to increase the volume, if soldered

An indoor aerial may be used on all local stations and on many out of town ones

A dry-cell battery loses some of its capacity while it is standing unused on the shelf or between periods of service

It is better to connect the ground wire to the water pipe before it reaches the water meter, if possible for there is considerable resistance in the meters

A crystal can be securely held in its cup by mixing a small quantity of mercury or quicksilver with a piece of ordinary tinfoil to the consistency of a thick paste

The Theatres

(Advertisement.)

The Comedy Sensation of the Year, "The Show-Off," Comes to the Orpheum Friday and Saturday.

"The Show Off" has been booked by the management of the Orpheum theater as the first dramatic attraction of the current season, and this hilarious three-act comedy will be presented by a notable group of players on Friday and Saturday, September 18 and 19, with a matinee on Saturday. George Kelly's fine comedy has enjoyed a splendid vogue in New York City where it achieved a run of more than six hundred performances, and since then has been received with acclaim in the large metropolitan centers of America. In the company which comes to Lincoln from return engagements in St. Paul and Minneapolis, will be found Hobart Cavanaugh in the title role of "The Show Off," Aubrey Piper by name; Miss Jessie Busley as the much perturbed mother-in-law of the "Sap" who has married her pretty daughter Amy, and many other players of note including Maude Franklin, Madge Christie, Nell McFee, Jack Gilchrist, Charles Bloomer, W. F. Granger and Charles Sugah-Turner. As every theater-goer knows, "The Show Off" is a vapid youth whose pretensions to fame are laughable, for he poses as a railroad magnate, whereas he is but a freight clerk; he looks at Rolls-Royces; talks about $50,000 insurance policies, and lives in two rooms over a barber shop. There is an underlying basis of truth in "The Show Off" which drives home many a thought of one's own foibles and frailties.

Here is the season's screen spectacle—"Hell's Highroad." A master production from the hand of the screen's master genius—a creation from the great creator of screen symphonies—DeMille. A gripping story of life and love—an avalanche of dramatic sequences thundering onward to a vivid and unexpected climax. Here, again, is a great star—in her greatest role—portraying the vibrant emotions of a woman's love with a forceful intensity and subtle delicacy that awes and overwhelms. Lavishly luxurious and scintillating with humor and pathos. The supporting cast, Edmund Burns, Robert Edson, Julia Faye, and Helene Sullivan are DeMille picked. "The Sky Jumper," a new Van Bibber comedy with Earle Foxe; "The Golden Gift," a beautiful topical subject in natural colors and visualized world's news. On the stage, The Royal Venetian Five, a quintet of instrumentalists and vocalists, Lyric concert orchestra, Earnest Harrison, director, and Mrs. May M. Mills, playing the Wurlitzer, will play a brilliant and interpretative musical program.

The Royal Venetian Five Added Attraction at the Lyric This Week.

An impressive and colorful musical festival of songs and instrumental numbers will be the contribution of entertainment promised by the Royal Venetian Five. Operatic numbers in vocal, violin, saxophone and guitar interpretations, are to be given exclusively. The act will introduce a melange of high class musical selections which will brand the offering as far above par.

The Record Breaking Laughing Success, "Charley's Aunt," Will Play a Return Engagement at the Colonial This Week.

The greatest feature farce shown on the screen, the biggest prize of the season, "Charley's Aunt," will be presented at the Colonial this week. If you have seen "Charley's Aunt" you will want to see it again, if you have never seen it be sure and go this week and enjoy the best comedy of the year. "Lion Love," a new comedy concoction that will create roars of laughter; "A Mysterious Case," a new Bray cartoon, and News Weekly completes the big program. Extra Thursday, Friday and Saturday, "A Mission of Hate," the seventh story of "Play Ball."

A splendid program of vaudeville offerings will be presented at the Liberty the first half of this week. Nathanson's Entertainers, ten versatile and talented men, have an attractive offering of singing, dancing, and music; "Bungalow Brides," presented by Jean Waters & company, is a fast, breezy little comedy of present times with tuneful songs and peppy dances woven into a story. Miss Jean Waters, one of vaudeville's cleverest comediennes, is supported by a clever cast of well known artists; Joe Shriner and Billy Fitzsimmons in a new comedy diversion, "The Newsdealer," are sure to create continuous laughter; the dainty Stuart Sisters in fun and songs; The Shattucks presenting a unique novelty, "The Flower Shop;" tabloid drama, comedy and news pictures nad Babich and his orchestra rounds out what should prove to be a wonderful evening's entertainment. Coming the last half of the week, Ernest Evans, the popular dance star with an unequalled aggregation of talented beauties in his new production, "Ripples of 1925," and a fine supporting program.

Manager Garmna feels confident that the attractions to be presented at the above theaters this week will receive the hearty approval of all who appreciate the better class of shows. "The Show Off" coming to the Orpheum Friday and Saturday, has been praised by the critics everywhere; at the Lyric, Cecil B. DeMille presents his first production of the year, "Hell's Highroad," starring Leatrice Joy; the headline attractions at the Liberty, Nathanson's Ten Entertainers, the first half, and Ernest Evans and Company the last half, are both feature Orpheum circuit offerings; at the Colonial "Charley's Aunt," is the crowning laugh creator of the season.

Answers to Movie Fan:

Dear Movie Editor—Are scenarios wanted at the studios? Well, I'm going to write one for my own pleasure and if I like it well enough, I'll give some of them a try.

Will you please give me a complete description and the studios the following are with? May McAvoy, Richard Dix, Ben Lyon, Olive Brook, Zasu Pitts, Betty Bronson, Adolph Menjou, Alice Terry, Leatrice Joy. Is there anyone in the movies who is long legged, red headed, boyish and handsome? Is there a girl who is a little plumper than plump, is short, young, happy looking and blowsy?

Do you think that Olive Brock's eyes and May McAvoy's eyes look alike? Who do you consider the most beautiful actress: the handsomest actor? How is Menjou pronounced There is a piece in a movie magazine sometime ago that told about Adolph and another villain being screen rivals but the best friends off the screen. Who is the other man? I have forgotten his name and the movie magazine I read it in was not mine so I do not have the source of my information.

I think this ought to be enough for this time, don't you? Thanking you in advance, I am "FRIEND HAZEL."

So many of the studios employ their own scenario writers that it's a rather difficult proposition for an amateur to break in with a scenario. They found that they could go through thousands of manuscripts and only find a few that would be at all suitable for the movies. Another thing, a story by a well known scenario writer, or author has more prestige when it's filmed than from an unknown person. The powers that be in the movies have learned that in scenarios as with everything else the best is the cheapest in the long run.

If you feel the urge to write, why don't you try a short story? You would have a better chance in having accepted by a magazine, and then you could sell the screen rights to th emovies, providing you reserved that privilege in marketing the story.

May McAvoy is four feet and eleven inches tall and has dark hair and blue eyes. She weighs 94 pounds. She is with Warner Brothers. Richard Dix is six feet tall, weighs 178 and has dark hair and eyes. He is with Lasky. Ben Lyon is an inch shorter than Dick, and he only weighs 160. His eyes are very dark blue and he has brown hair. Clive Brook is about Ben's height, and he weighs 170. They are both at First National at present. He has gray hair and dark eyes. Miss Pitts is five feet six inches tall and weighs 115. She has brown hair and blue eyes. She is at Universal. Betty Bronson has blue eyes and brown hair, also. She is five feet tall and weighs 100 pounds.

Mr. Menjou has dark hair and blue eyes. He is five feet ten inches tall and weighs 150. Pronounce his name as though it were "Monjew," or if you can give the "Men" the French nasal sound do so, because that's the way it's pronounced. The "J" is soft. Betty and Adolph are with Lasky.

Alice Terry has auburn hair and gray eyes. She is five feet and one inch tall and weighs 115. Leatrice Joy's hair and eyes are both dark. She is five feet three inches tall and weighs 125 and is a DeMille star.

There are not many girls in the movies that are any plumper than plump unless they are comediennes, because if they are they have to "take it off." There was a little girl on the M-G-M lot ,called Kewpie, that would answer your description. She was an "extra" and nobody knew her last name. And Clara Bow might become that way if she thought it would be more profitable to "put it on." There are several others who would be delighted to put the plump on if it didn't mean living on pineapple and lamb chops for a month to regain their sylph-like figures. You know the camera really emphasizes the size of the player. Of course Mary Miles Minter is a little "plumper than plump." That's why she is not playing her sweet young girl parts any more.

Wesley Barry is becoming quite long legged and more hondsome as he grows older. Would he do for the boy?

I never noticed that Clive Brook and May McAvoy resembled each other about the eyes. I'll watch for the resemblance next time I see either of them. May and Jacqueline Logan are very similar in appearance.

I think Lew Cody is the "other man" in the story no doubt. Both Menjou and Mr. Cody play sophisticated "man about town" roles on the screen. Mr. Cody is a little more the type off screen than is his rival in wickedness. Mr. Menjou drives about Hollywood in a Ford sedan all dolled up with the latest trimmings. He has a wife and stepson, and somehow you don't associate the Ford sedan, the wife and stepson with the polished ladies' man of the screen.

Dear Movie Editor—I am writing you for the first time. I read your columns every Sunday, but have not seen the addresses of some of my favorite stars. Will you please give me the addresses of the following: Hellen Sedgwick, William Desmond, Hoot Gibson, Ruth Roland, Mae McAvoy, Lillian Rich, Helen Chadwick, Marjorie Daw, George Hackathorne, Myrtle Stedman, Douglas MacLean and Constance Bennett?

Are Lillian Rich and Irene related? Thanking you, Yours truly L. M. C., Fairbury, Neb.

Address Miss Sedgewick, Mr. Desmond, Mr. Gibson and Mae McAvoy all at the Warner studio, Hollywood, Calif. Lillian Rich is under contract to Cecil B. DeMille, Culver City, Calif. Ruth Roland would get letters sent in care of her own company, Hollywood, Calif. George Hackenthorne is with Malden Film Corporation, New Bedford, Mass. Address Helene at 4428 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif., and Miss Daw at 6609 St. Frances Court, Los Angeles.

'PAREE' CHARMS WITH ITS FRANK NUDITY, OPINION

BY BRETT PAGE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. — When advance reports on "Gay Paree," the new Lemaire-Shubert revue, floated in from the outskirts of Manhattan, proclaming it "better than 'Artists and Models,'" I fancied that the prophets had erred on the side of optimism. It is more pleasant, therefore, to amend my cynicism by announcing a public and personal repentance; for "Gay Paree," in spite of its penny-in-the slot title, is indeed the most hoarsely mirthful of the new season's carnivals.

It may be my own strongly colored bias, but any ficst containing Miss Winnie Lightner, "Chic" Sale, Billy B. Van and George Lemaire cannot be whollytepid, and when these tested entertainers work with such plastic materials as at present, well, the fireside, the slippers and the works of Sir John Lubbock will have to mourn me in vain.

Miss Lightner, lured away heaven knows how from Geore White's annual Scandals, is in positively grand form. The loudest of our warbling clowns, she emits noises which have both melody and boiler factor magnetism. When, attired in garments that suggested nothing so much as cycloramas from the Hippodrome, she sang "Wide Pants Willie," my joy was stintless, and her "Give Me the Rain," the climax of which found her immersed by Eddie Conrad (with bucket) was as absurd a bit of foolery as has ever been devised.

Charlot Plan Followed.

The Charlot plan of short sketches has been admiringly followed by Mr. Shubert, and with success. Particularly happy in interpreting these interludes is Mr. Van, while valiant "feeding" is applied by Mr. Lemaire. The best of the satires is that on the Florida land boom.

Some impresario of the show has seen to it that there is no unnecessary dressing, with the result that the average of coolness among the performers must be considerably higher than that of the casr customers. At last, the nudity is frankly and beautifully handled and none but the most rigid Puritan could complain.

Of the spectacular features of "Gay Paree" I cannot speak authoritatively since these rich tableaux and "art" visions impress me fleetingly as mere chromolithographs that pass in the night. No matter how un-Paree the revue at the Shubert may be adjudged, it is beyond, doubt,, gay.

Miss Helen MacKellar, who came a cropper with "A Good Bad Woman" during the dry-cleaning hysteria in New York last season, is again at the task of portraying a brawny daughter of the soil. Her current vehicle is "The Mad Turtle," which give her opportunities for some high-geared emoting. Myself, I prefer the star in the satin savagery of "The Masked Woman," and the like, but tastes in this town are varied. It may be that her impersonation of awoman oddly like Amy in "They Knew What They Wanted" will charm the populace Elliott Lester is the author.

Very French, Very Funny.

"Oh! Mamma," a very French farce, bows back to Broadway attention Alice Brady, missing since "Zander, the Great." Here is a lively and articulate affair with enough sugar to mitigate the spicy moments. The adaptors are the veteran actor, Wilton Lackaye, famous these many years for his pungent witticisms, and Harry Wagstaff Gribble, author of the enchanting "March Hares,," "The Outrageous Mr. Palmer" and various musical comedy libretti. Miss Brady's individual performance is interesting, but rough-shod, and if her—to me—overrated reputation is to continue, at blood-heat, she should cultivate some of the repose of her pretty step-mother and some of the Irish fire of her father.

Those who reveled quietly in the sedate humors of "Elizabeth's" "The Enchanted April" must be told that the dramatization of that charming novel pays ample respect to the original. Rarely have I seen a more complete fidelity to an author's intent, technique and characters. But, alas! the truth remains that it is rather a meandering little play.

The cast is superb. There is Alison Skipworth, who will go down to posterity as a result of "The Swan" and "The Torch-Bearers;" there is Helen Gahagan, happily rescued from "The Sapphire Ring;" there is Merle Maddern, late of "In The Next Room" and "Expressing Willie;" there is Elizabeth Risdon, the beautiful and gifted. And finally there is Herbert Yost, whose explosion at the hands of a bathroom heater enlivens the proceedings.

Another Convert.—Upon the conclusion of his season in "The Firebrand," the New York stage success, Joseph Schildkraut will retire from the legitimate stage in favor of the movies. He has signed a long term contract with Cecil S. De Mille whereby he will work exclusively under that banner. Mr. Schildkraut recently played a featured role in "The Road to Yesterday," for Mr. DeMille, while on his vacation after a year in "The Firebrand" on Broadway. It is expected that the play will run several months yet. Mr. Schildkraut will be remembered by motion picture fans for his work in "The Two Orphans."

Likes Color Pictures—Olive Borden has nothing to fear in color photography, in fact her beauty depends a great deal on her color and she gets a chance to prove it in the new Tom Mix picture, "The Yankee Senor." An entire Spanish sequence is being filmed in color, and Miss Borden, attired entirely in black, is said to present a most striking appearance in the scene. She will be remembered as one of the Wampas Baby Stars of last year.

Want New Marys—Universal has started a campaign to find new Mary Pickfords and future male stars for the screen. Fourteen girls, all comparatively unknown to the screen, have been signed up for the stock company and will be groomed as future stars. Raymond Keane was picked from the extra ranks and given the leading juvenile role in Dimitri Buchowetzki's new production, "The Midnight Sun." George Lewis is another newcomer who was given his first important role in "His People." Several other young men have been added to the stock company.

Dear Movie Editor—I have never written to you before, but have read your answers for a long time, and feel that it is my turn to ask a few "?'s".

Will you please give me the cast for "So Big," "Desert Flower" "The Ten Commandments," "The Sea Hawk," "The Covered Wagon" and "Flaming Youth?"

Perhaps you have printed these, but I have missed them

Thanking you for your trouble and your always good information,—JUST PAT, Davenport, Neb

You are my first fan from Davenport, Pat, and your letter was most beautifully written, or rather printed.

I think most of the casts you name have been published at one time or another, but since you have missed them, I'll glady give them again.

Dear Movie Editor—Can you give me the name of a film actress born in Du Chien, Wis ; has dark brown hair, has been married, divorced and re-married; has one child? Can it be Lottie Pickford. Please publish answer in next Sunday's Star—"CLAY"

I know now why my ears have been burning so much of late, Clay You have been very much "put out" with me for not answering your letter sooner, haven't you? You have righteous cause for indignation, too, because your letter is dated way back in July, but it must have done considerable detouring enroute, at least it just reached my desk

Sounds a little like a cross-word puzzle It could be any number of stars, but it migh the Barbara Bedford She was born in Prairie Du Chien and she is the only actress in my catalog that admits the fact.

Dear Movie Editor—How old is Jack Hoxie Is he married and if so to whom? Has he got any children and are they girls? I hope so Are they in the movies or on the stage? How old are they and what color hair and eyes have they?

Have you any pictures of movie stars I hope so I hope to see my letter in print soon FRIEDA

Jack Hoxie was born in 1888 He is married to Marin Sais, a former leading lady in pictures I'll ask Jack about his family the next time I see him It keeps me so busy keeping up with the marriages and divorces among the players that I don't even attempt to keep up with the children.

I have no pictures at present. If you would like one of Mr. Hoxie, write to him at 1325 N. Hobart Blvd. Hollywood, Calif. and he will send you one. Don't neglect to enclose postage.

Dear Movie Editor—I would like to know what has become of Agnes Ayres and Wanda Hawley. I have not seen them for a long time. How old are they and what nationality is Agnes Ayres' husband?

Is "The Story Without a Name" the last picture Agnes Ayres has played in? I don't think it has been to Lincoln yet. Is Wanda Hawley married?

I think Greta Nissen is just darling. I saw her in "In the Name of Love." What is her next picture?

Was Gloria Swanson ever married to Wallace Beery?

How many times has she been married and to whom? Does she have any children and by what husband? How old is Gloria and Pola Negri

Are Gilda Gray and Lita Grey actresses? Gilda Gray is the famous shimmy queen isn't she? What is Lita Grey noted for except being Mrs Charlie Chaplin I have never seen her play in pictures.

What nationality are the Talmadges? I have heard they are Jewish. What nationality is Bebe Daniels and Gloria Swanson?

I just love Betty Compson and Colleen Moore, don't you? What actress do you like best? Heap Big Thanks, H. B. T.

I notice that your letter, too, hesitated along the way.

"American Pluck" and "Stop Flirting" are the titles of Wanda Hawley's latest releases Wanda has accepted the latter literally, too. She recently married for the second time She was born in 1897 and Agnes is a year older. Agnes, too, has her second husband. His name is Reachi, and he is a Mexican by birth. Agnes made "The Awful Truth" for Producers Distributing Company, and now she is suing them for a considerable sum of money because they neglected to give her enough publicity to keep her before the public. She says it interfered with her popularity. Miss Ayres is one player who recognizes the value of publicity

Greta Nissen is a charming girl. I met her personally when she was making "In the Name of Love" and it was easy to see why Mr. De Mille picked her for a member of his company. Her latest picture is "The Wanderer."

Wallace Beery was Gloria Swanson's first husband, and she has gone a little higher each time until now she has married a marquis He is her third husband Herbert Sanborne was the second and the father of her little daughter. Gloria also has an adopted son Gloria was born in 1893, and Pola Negri is twenty-seven.

Yes, Gilda is the shimmy queen, who is now about to become a motion picture player. Lita started as a player in Charlie Chaplin's "The Gold Rush," but when she became Mrs. Charles Chaplin her husband found another leading lady in Georgia Hale, and destroyed all of the scenes in which his wife had appeared She is now famous as the mother of the Chaplin heir.

The Talmadges, Bebe Daniels and Gloria Swanson are all American born

I like Betty Compson in some pictures, but not in all of them Colleen Moore is one of my favorites, too I have so many that I like I couldn't possible name the one I liked best of all Jetta Goudal is a very versatile and talented player and I never miss seeing her, and I enjoy Norma and Constance Talmadge, Leatrice Joy, Norma Shearer, and of course Mary Pickford Corinne Griffiths appeals to me too, in fact there are so many that I enjoy that I could go on indefinitely telling you about them were it not for the pile of fans' letters facing me clamoring for answers

Dear Movie Editor—I won't beat around the bush but will start right in I would like the age, whether married or single and addresses of the following actors and actresses that is, if there are not too many.—Greta Nissen, Joyce Compton, Buck Jones, Clara Norris, Edmund Lowe, Dorothy Seastrom, Katherine Grant, Richard Talmadge, Lena Basquette, Ruth Mix, Dolores Costello, Helen Costello, Dorothy Knapp, Yvonne Chappel, Natalie Kingston, Beryl Halley, Flo Kennedy, Yvonne Gray.

How many names would you like from each writer?

I have heard there is an essay contest some studio is putting on, and the subjects are "What the Movies Mean to Me" and "What the Movies Mean to My Community." Would you please give me the particulars of the contest?

I'll pull up anchor and leave before I make the letter so long that you will send it to Davy Jones' locker—RUDOLPH.

That's right, Rudolph, Jump in. The water's fine after you once make the plunge. There's no particular number of names that I require from writers. I tr yto answer any and all questions asked within reason. As a courtesy to the other fans, however, I would suggest that especially when asking for descriptions and addresses, the writers would put the soft pedal on as much as possible They take up space and are of little interest to the majority of fans.

Greta Nissen receives her letters at the Lasky studio, 1520 Vine street Hollywood Cal. She is in her early twenties and single, and so is Joyce Compton. Address her in care of First National, United Studios, Hollywood. Buck Jones is married and thirty-eight, Address him at Fox Studio, Hollywood, Calif. Edmund Lowe could be reached at the same place He was born in 1897 and just married Lilyan Tashman.

Dorothy Seastrom is single, early twenties and gets letters at Goldwyn Studio, Culver City, Cal. Mr Talmadge was born in 1898 and there is a Mrs Talmadge. Address him at Truart Film Corp, Hollywood, Calif.

Miss Grant is twenty-two and at Hal Roach Studio, Culver City. She is single, and so are Leona Basquette, who is eighteen and lives at 1323 Orange Drive, Hollywood, Cal. Ruth Mix who is just sixteen and is with Ward Lascelle Productions, Hollywood, and Dolores and Helen Costello who are also in their late 'teens and are connected with Warner Brother, Holywood, Calif. Quite a flapper collection, Rudy The rest of your list are just out of the extra class, and float around so much it's hard to locate them. If you will tell me the pictures in which you have seen them play, I'll try to find them for you

There usually is a contest of some kind being put on by a motion picture magazine or paper or studio I don't happen to have the facts about the one you mention, but I'll be glad to write in and get them if you can give me the name of the studio. I have had no publicity about it from the various companies whose press agents have me on their mailing list.

Dear Movie Editor—I like your mail very much, and would like to know the following: How old is Norma Talmadge and how tall is she? Is she married and if so to whom?

How old is James Kirkwood? How tall is he and color eyes has he? What is his latest picture? Is his hair light or dark and is he light or dark complexioned? How many times has he been married and who is his wife now?

As my letter is getting long, I must close. Thanking you in advance, KATIE from Lincoln.

Norma Talmadge was born in Niagara Falls, N. Y., twenty-eight years ago. She is five feet two inches tall. Her husband is Joseph Schenck, who produces her pictures.

James Kirkwood was born in 1883 with sandy hair and blue eyes so he would be of medium complexion He has just completed "That Royal Girl." Lila Lee is his second wife. James was born in Grand Rapids, Mich , and Richard first arrived in this world at St Paul, Minn. Address Mr Kirkwood at the Paramount Studio, Pierce Ave. and 6th St., L. I., New York. Richard is at the Lasky Studio, 1520 Vine St., Hollywood, and so is Florence Vidor. Mary Pickford has her own studios on Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.

There are still a number of letters before me that will have to be held over until next week. Among those that I have opened are Frank's, one from Lloyd Hughes, Movie Fan, Crete, Bonnie, Floris, Real Movie Fan, B. and P. and so on down the line. If your letter doesn't appear today, just be patient. The Movie Editor.

Stars After Opening—"The Pony Express," James Cruze's latest masterpiece, had its world premier in San Francisco last Friday. It is the story of California during the days just preceding the Civil War. Among the stars who attended the opening were Kathlyn Williams, Neil Hamilton, Billie Dove, Jack Holt Mr and Mrs Noah Beery Mary Brian, William Collier, Jr, and Mr. and Mrs. Warner Baxter.

Minerva's Mail

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

Is the Dowdiness of the Middle Aged Excusable? One Reader Says They Have Earned the Right to Indifference To Personal Appearance After a Life of Toil. Minerva Believes There Is No Justification In Either a Physical or Mental Slump — Divorce On Selfish Grounds Is Never Justified —,Happiness Is Not Gained Through Such Gratification—A Discussion of the "Simmons" Case.

Beauty And Usefulness.

Is beauty skin deep? A lure and a decoy given to youth by Nature for, shall we say breeding purposes, to be neglected and forgotten when marriage and maturity have been attained?

Is it fickle and light minded, a "waste of precious time" for a woman to make the most of the beauty given her and strive to remain lovely to look upon all through her life?

The efficient machines on the farm are not allowed to get rusty and lopsided but are kept shiny and clean and in good trim. Our soldiers are taught neatness and cleanliness and trimness and polish as a cult. They would soon lose morale if they let down physically.

And so—not only to keep he husband's love (though that is a worthwhile pursuit) but to keep her own self respect, her balance and self confidence, her control, her morale, should the busiest of busy women never permit herself to go slack.

The wise wife does not underestimate the value of a fresh, dainty dress, clear skin, well groomed hair and hands and neatly shod feet as permanent husband-holders. She does not flatter herself that anything worth while (even a husband's everlasting love and admiration) may be secured without some personal effort. The husband may know the intrinsic goodness and worthiness of his wife, but if she is sloppy and unattractive exteriorally, he may well be expected to feast his eyes elsewhere.

Oh there is nothing frivolous and light and fickle about the preachment that women should be eternally vigilant as to their personal appearance. But "Ardent," who loves the dainty loveliness of a fleecy cloud, scoffs at that masterpiece of God—the loveliness of woman.

But let her speak for herself. And I would surely love to hear what others have to say on the subject.

Dear Minerva: Well, now you've "gone and done and did it," haven't you? Siding in with the naughty "You Tell 'Em" who "wants to hand a package to some of the righteous, critical, middle-aged women," "dear well-meaning things" who offend against the traditions of the beauty specialists by "letting themselves go," and "take no pains with their beauty culture," and "don't keep their figures trim," and don't keep their hair and hands nice looking, and are "mostly dowdy, sloppy sights," yesterday, today, and forever, so hellup me gracious. Sounds like the awe struck voice of the girl who would faint dead away if she saw a man or woman at work in a field bare-headed and barefooted, but would rhapsodize like a gushing debutante about the beauty of nature if she saw the statue of a nude figure, or if she saw a modern mermaid disporting on the beach in bathing attire. "Culture," you know, condones the most flagrant exhibition that can greet the eye if it wears a bathing suit or a fig leaf or a slender draping ivy, but a bare footed madonna of the field would furnish a shock quite unforgettable. Likewise, "culture" has been known to walk past a woodland violet without seeing it, only to go into ecstacies over the beauty of artificial flowers in some art exhibit.

"You Tell 'Em's" letter brought to my mind the constant advice of all the Annie Lauries, and Dorothy Dix'es, and Cousin Marions about women retaining their husband's love by always appearing in fresh, clean, dainty dresses, and with hair marcelled, and baby vamp make-up. And I lifted up mine eyes to the everlasting hills, and if they weren't laughing it wasn't because they didn't want to. I think the crickets and kaydids must be be laughing about it this lovely starry night, judging by the din they are making in the breeze-caressed grass.

It's too bad, "You Tell 'Em," that from the moment a woman draws her first wailing breath at birth until the moment she closes her eyes in the last long sleep she is the target of criticism, isn't it?

Husband came in from his day's work this evening with a three day's growth of beard on his face, and calmly proceeded to remove one-twentieth of an inch of dust by a vigorous application of soap and water. Thanks to the fuss of Madam Grundy has always made about it being the duty of women to always try to gratify the eye of the liege lord and master, it never occurred to him to agonize a moment over the fearful prospect that he might lose my love if he permitted me to be affronted by the horrible spectre of dust and grim and sweat He never seemed to think for one solitary moment that therer might be danger that my wifely affection might die the death of a rag baby or soar off on the "wings of the morning" to fasten upon some sleck, suave, smooth, white-collared Valentino.

Now, your letter revives all the old Annie Laurie advice. Do you suppose that his husbandly love would have gone down to zero if he hadn't found the clay tenement that houses my soul encased in a pink dresses with three frilly ruffles on each side? Do you suppose his fancy would have wandered off into proscribed territory? Should his love have waned because my nose was not powdered, my hair was not elegantly marcelled, my hands were not perfumed and manicured, my eye-brows were not penciled, my checks were not flushed with Djer-Kiss bloom and my lips were not blood red with lipstick?

It seems to me women waste too much precious time on the subject of appearance and it doesn't revet their husband's love with steel bands either. If a man is such a befuddled human peanut that he can be faithful to a woman only as long as she presents the bloom of the rose to his eye, and the elusive fragrance of Dralle's lily-of-the-valley to his nostrils, we might as well prepare at once to put into operation a lethal gas chamber from which all women of forty or over could be sent off into dreamless oblivion. What say you, Minerva? Are you for it, knowing that your hour would come? If a man's fancy is of such evanescent character, isn't it a case of "good riddance" when it dies? Love that can only be held by a semblance of youth and beauty is a pretty brittle thing for a woman to pin her fath to. She might as well sail out to sea in a canoe built of rotten lumber, and try to keep it afloat by managing the oar with one hand while she bails out the water with the other.

This is something I've been wanting to say for a long time, and as it is one phase of the subject of appearance brought up by "You Tell 'Em's" letter, I thought I would get it out of my system. Its time women began a campaign to terrorize men into the thought that they might lose wife's love if they didn't keep their trousers creased, their girth from increasing into a semblance to that of Santa Clause, their heads from becoming bald, their brows from becoming seamed with wrinkles, their chins from developing the sag due to age, etc. For, though it may sound like treason or sacrilege or some other awful thing, it may be suggested that men are not prone to remain gay young Lochinvars or Adonises. The spectre of old age hangs over their heads like the sword of Damocles, the same as in the case of the women.

Way, way back in the inner recesses of my mind, whenever I see a girl or woman whose appearance warrants the suspicion that she spends more time in the beauty parlors, or in reading some Madam Clare's advice on "How to keep young and beautiful," or "How to resemble a Parisian fashion model" than she spends in reading her Bible, there flashes a remembrance of the One who offended the Pharisees and transgressed the tradition of the elders by "eating with unwashed hands," and who, to the criticism of the Pharisees, retorted: "Ye hypocrites, ye make make clean the outside of the cup and the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess. Ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones and of all uncleannss." And sometimes, when I behold the flaunting red and white and orange that rivals the painted glory of the befeathered aborigines of America, I wonder whether they are trying to imitat the ignorant savage or the circus clown.

It's terribly mean of me to insinuate such a thing, but some of the fuss that is made about the iniquities of the painted darlings with the Djer-Kiss complexions and complexes arises from the knowledge that the "culture" and beauty is all on the surface, like a veneer, and is no indication whatever of de luxe brains. Indeed, it is all too frequently an indication of the lack of them.

Sh, sh, Minerva, don't you know it isn't modest to talk about corsets in public, and right out loud, at that? If it was, I am quite sure, there are disciples of Bernarr McFadden in our midst who would immediately rise to their feet to protest that they were unhealthy objects, binding and cramp-the vital organs and doing unlimited harm. At least that is what he preached in "Physical Culture" twenty-two years ago. But it seems he has never been able to get those who possess a superfluity of avoirdupois to agree with him long enough to cause them to cease wearing them.

"You Tell 'Em," let's not agitate our souls too greatly over th dowdiness of the middle aged, Haven't they earned the right to indifference to styleafter a life of toil? There is still a world of truth in the old adage that clothes don't make the man; and the once famed Hetty Green, who at one time said to be the richest woman in the world, was noted for her dowdiness and utter scorn of appearance. She wore the same old hat year after year until it was rusty. Besides, the tendency of the times to wear just as little as possible without incurring the danger of arrest is such that one of our modern prophetesses has said that she would not be surprised if the women of the next generation shaved their heads, wore breech-cloths, beads and bracelets, with bare legs and silver sandals. I think she should have added, "and gold rings in their noses and anklets of tinkling bells.—ARDENT.

A. Not by way of having the last word, but to answer a few points more concerning the above letter, which will be better understood after the reading of the letter, am I returning to the subject.

I believe there is no more excuse for a woman's slumping into physical carelessness than there is that she let down mentally. The woman the man who gets the most out of life is she or he who puts the most into it, who continues developing and growth all through life.

The campaign suggested ironically for men might not be amiss. The average modern woman of forty and above is better groomed than is the man of like age. Women have gone in for health measures and self improvement intensively. Let us have fewer protruding stomachs and stoop shoulders and careless clothes among the men. An ounce of prevention is worth the pound of cure.

My ideal of womanhood is certainy not of the woman with a veneer only skin deep. Nor is it of the woman whose beauty and graciousness of soul and mind are hidden under shapeless garments, sloppy fat and leathery, uncared for skin.

You say that the woman who has reached middle age after a life of toil has earned the right of indifference to personal appearance. Certainly this is not a reward for labor that the average woman covets.

Clinging to a semblance of youth is not the creed for women that preach. But advancing a gracious, lovely exterior, a blossoming into womanhood and ripening into old age in the loveliest possible way.

Oh I know women a-plenty who have lived full, useful lives, raised large families who are beautiful lovlier in fact than their own immature undeveloped flapper daughters.

A Selfish Reason.

Dear Minerva: A very dear friend of mine in whom I am much interested is confronted by a big problem. She asked my advice and some questions which I cannot answer. I thought of you and knew you would give us some sort of satisfaction.

About seven years ago she was engaged to marry a certain young man. Because of her age, the distance she would have to be from home and his personal appearance (not handsome) her mother objected.

My friend loved him and I am sure would have been true to him for a few years longer but he being sincere and sympathetic didn't want to do anything that would grieve her mother. He married another girl, thinking he would in time forget my girl friend and she him, but didn't happen as he had planned.

A couple of weeks ago a friend of his wrote her that this boy was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. He told this friend of this affair. He still loves my girl friend and cannot forget her.

Since she found this out she worries for she doesn't know what to do. She still loves him and he loves her more than ever though they haven't seen or heard anything of each other for so many years.

The boy who wrote to my girl friend said they weren't ongenial that he never ared anything about his wife.

It seems a shame that under these conditions something can't be done. I don't know what advice to give. As I see it, she loves him and he loves her, and both lives will be ruined if they can't be man and wife. She thought of divorce. Do you think under these conditions that he would have grounds for divorce?

He does not know that she is still unmarried and loves him as of old.

Thanking you and anxiously awaiting an early reply, I am, Very truly yours,—A. V. A.

A. Happiness is not gained through selfish gratification of our desires, not even so impelling a desire as love.

As I see the problem you describe, the wife of the man who is now hankering for an old-time love is the innocent victim and she is the one who should not be made unhappy. Your friend and the man who is reprehented as still loving her though married to another, had their opportunity and let it slip by. The man sought another wife, and whatever his motives were in so doing, his allegiance is to her.

The girl he left behind when he married another would be wickedly foolish to re-open the old wounds and to enter into any plot to dethrone the wife in her own favor.

Such selfishness could not pave the way to permanent happiness. The whole idea is fantastic. The man has no grounds for divorce. The girl is taking the second-hand account of his cherished love, which is never reliable. And he has forfeited his right to love her by marrying another girl.

Upon Capital Punishment.

Dear Minerva: Most of us have moments when we feel confused and bewildered by the many apparent incongruities and inconsistencies in the conduct of the people about us, and when we feel inclined to agree with George M. Cohan that "life's a funny proposition, after all."

I find myself in this mood after contemplating the wave of horror and disgust which seem to have swept over this community because of the execution of Mr. Simmons, and the powerful movement for the abolishment of capital punishment which seems likely to come from it. That Simmons was guilty of murder no one familiar with the facts can doubt. Whether he was guilty or not, it appears to be generally admitted that he was a no-account hobo and bootlegger whose absence from the community will be no distinct or irreparable loss. Yet he has become a martyr and a hero to thousands of quite law-abiding and respectable people, and bids fair shortly to be canonized as a saint, while the victim of his murderous hammer lies in an unknown grave with the reputation of having been a worthless bootlegger clinging to his name.

But this is one of the milder incongruities of the case. The worshippers of Simmons seem to consider the state which took his life as a sort of vile and hideous monster for doing so. "Thou shalt not kill," is the Divine law which should govern the state, even in its dealings with bootleggers and murders, according to these good people. I do not say that they are wrong—I am opposed to capital punishment myself—but why this tremendous burst of pious sentiment over a wretched bootlegger and probable murderer, one tiny and rotten speck in the great sea of humanity, when only the other day the Christian nations of the world butchered ten million innocent men merely because they were too stupid and too well disciplined to object?

At that time I do not recall that many people turned to God's Word see what He said about killing. The people who to-day are ardently championing the cause of convicted murderers were not then filling the newspapers with burning letters and editorials against a nation slaying innocent men in wholesale lots and by every devilish method fiendish ingenuity could devise. Readers of the Scriptures seemed to be all on the other side and found nothing incomparable between the Ten Commandments and the waging of a successful war. Indeed, our nation made it a part of its official military program that all its citizens should cease their activities for a minute each day and pray to God—not for forgiveness of our sins—but for a "speedy victory over our enemies." Where was a voice raised in protest then?

But it seems to me that those who see so much evidence of brutality and callousness in a society which tolerates capital punishment are guilty of still greater inconsistencies. Our government spends yearly millions of dollars building forts, battleships, airships and other instruments of war for future killing. Thousands of men are being constantly trained for it. There is no use trying to palliate or sugar-coat the fact that battleships are built and soldiers are trained for the one and only purpose of taking human life.

Every so-called Christian nation spends hundreds of millions of dollars for this purpose annually. So do most of the heathen nations on a smaller scale. And the men we propose to kill, and the men all these nations propose to kill are innocent men, good and useful men, not outlaws and murderers who have justly forfeited their right to a place on the planet, but men whose lives are a benefit to all humanity and who help to make the world a better place in which to live, men whose only crime is that they are too stupidly loyal to the politicians who presume to lead them.

Why not marshall this fine flow of sentiment on behalf of Simmons and his kind into an effort to save the lives of innocent men? Why not strive to make our country, at least, a really Christian country, to see that no innocent blood shall stain our fair flag before we become so squeamish about the blood of murderers? Why not try to apply the Ten Commandments to a few cases where they are really needed; to the improvement of our relations with the other peoples of the world, before we condemn the state for violating them against one who first violated them himself? Why strain at the gnat while we continue to swallow the camel? It seems to me that we are all out of focus.—EX—A. E. F.

AN OPERATION AVOIDED

Do you know that many of the common ailments of women produce symptoms similar to those for which operations are necessary? If you are suffering from inflammation, pains, swellings, bearing-down feeling with backache, and if you are run-down and in a weakened condition, an operation may be avoided.

Gay Colors of Fall Flowers To Dominate Backgrounds of Weddings During September

It is September. Soon the maples will begin to vie with the coloring of the vivid marigolds. There will be yellow and red galore in the gardens, as if the flowers were reflecting the lights of an early autumn sunset. The soft winds of an Indian summer will soon be here, bringing with them a wealth of thick petaled chrysanthemums and vain asters, which are to be used for backgrounds at many early fall weddings.

Already the September brides have chosen their attendants and made plans for their wedding day There will be simple and elaborate ceremonices at high noon and rosy candleglow; there will be dainty little flower girls, and other attendants in flimsy frocks in all of the rich shades of this season's coloring.

Among the foremost of early prominent weddings, is that of Miss Donna Gustin, whose marriage to S. Ross Taggart will take place Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock

The marriage of Miss Helen Black to Elmer Henkle, jr., will be an event of October 7, and will take place at the home of Miss Black's

Lincoln Woman, in Europe, Writes Of Visit to Apache Den in Paris

Visiting the celebrated Louvre, traveling on sight-seeing busses and in cars to the most interesting places, glimpsing gay bits of the real Paris night life, talking with artists great and small and meeting fascinating people is just a part of the thrill which Mr. and Mrs. Ted Cowell, who left Lincoln nearly two months ago for a year's stay in Europe, are experiencing.

In a letter to Lincoln relatives Mrs Cowell tells of some of the especially interesting bits of Paris which she has seen so far.

"We went through the Louvre today. I can't tell you about it because I get so excited I can't write. All of th originals of Angelo Raphael, Corot, daVinci, Van Ddke and many other old masters are there. The Mona Lisa, Crucifixion, the Madonnas and everything I ever wondered about in the books I have read, hang there. We bought a small print to bring home.

"Before I forget I must tell you that we only will be here for a few days. Ted will play at a big theater in Budapest, Hungary, for several months. Then we will spend the rest of the time on the Riviera called the most beautiful spot in the world. In going to Hungary we go through Germany, Switzerland Czecho-Slovakia, and some other places the names of which I have forgotten. Can you imagine anything more wonderful?

"We have met some very fine people here. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Van Dyck, (Mr. Van Dyck is a partner of Mr. Arnold's) and Hal Sherman and his wife, who are Americans. Mr. Sherman is a wonderful star and danced all last year in the Music Box Review in New York City. He has been at the largest theater in London, and is here visiting Paris. The Van Dycks own a large theater here and have a beautiful apartment. They had us over for dinner one evening One night they took us over to the Latin quarters where all of the artists live. We met one painter and etcher who did quite a fine sketch of me and gave it to me He is one of these starving souls who lives in an attic and eats dry bread crusts

At Apache Den.

That same night we all went to an Apache den The place was called Le Lofin Agile, which translated literally means "the rabbit agile' but in English 'The Jumping Rabbit.' We went in a little door down into the basement and then up three steps into a room packed with French men and women. The man who served us had a red shirt on, yellow trousers, a big wide belt with a long knife stuck down the back. They sang and played steel guitars and a woman sang and told jokes, which of course, we could not understand. After each number some one would yell out something, and then they would all clap together like a college cheer, like this 1-2-3—1-2-3—1-2-3, and then with longer pauses at the last Then the leader would say something else and they would all 'Ah——h', like that. It was certainly funny

"We had lunch about 3 a. m., at the 'Dome' where all of the artists hang out. The Lotin Agile was the most interesting though Before we went in we had to go down an alley let down a little bar and on in through the back door. There they were with scarfs around their necks, caps pulled down over the backs of their heads, long hair, cigarets hanging out of their mouths, and shuffling around to the tune of an old accordian and a banjo. We were very meek and didn't 'pipe' up once. The next place was fifteen miles from there, and the taxi fare over there and back for six of us was $1.75. Can you imagine it?"

Country Club and Eastridge Affairs Quiet

Even though groups of vacationers have been arriving home from time to time, the week-end festivities at the Eastridge and Country clubs were rather quiet. The largest party at the Country club was given by Mr. and Mrs. Max V. Beghtol who entertained thirty-seven at dinner. Baskets of garden flowers were used on the one large table. The guests spent the evening dancing.

At the club, also, was a Dutch treat party including Mr. and Mrs. C. L Carper, Mr. and Mrs. J. H Johnson, Mr. and Mrs F H. Deuermyer, and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wood Mr. and Mrs. Mark H. Tilton entertained Mr. and Mrs. C C Quiggle and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Stoddard as dinner guests An informal evening was spent at the club. Mr and Mrs. Don Stewart had a table for eight guests. Garden flowers were used as a center, and there was dancing afterwards. Another party of eight including Mr. and Mrs. J. H Strayer, Mr. and Mrs. A W. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McKelvie, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tupper. A no host party for ten had reservations made by Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Bumstead.

At Eastridge, Dr. and Mrs. Czar C. Johnson entertained the largest party. Covers for twenty were arranged at one table where yellow and lavender asters were used as a center. The evening was spent with bridge.

A no host party of six at Eastridge included Mr. and Mrs W. A. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hadley and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hadley. Mr. and Mrs. George Brown had a table for five, including only the members of the immediate family.

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Albrecht of Arcadia, La., who arrived in Lincoln the fore part of last week, Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Albrecht entertained at dinner for twelve A motif of lavender and pink was featured in the decorations, which were carried out in roses and asters with pink tapers in crystal holders surrounding the center piece. The guest list included besides the honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Albrecht, Mr and Mrs. G E Albrecht, George and Ida May Albrecht, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Vasey of Beatrice.

At a table for four were Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Chevalier and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. D. Kinsey.

Miss McPhee Quits Post This Fall As Pan-Hellenic Head

In behalf of the Women's Pan-Hellenic association of the University of Nebraska Miss Elinor Pickard and Miss Laura Whelpley have presented Miss Marguerite McPhee, outgoing president of the organization, with a beautiful picture and a set of resolutions of appreciation, as an expression of the feeling toward her of the student members after her nine years of service in gneral, the policy of the association, during her administration, has been to minimize the publicity given to the social affairs of women's fraternities, to give the students as much control as possible in a co-operative organization made up of students and faculty, and to do away as far as possible with lines of demarcation between members of sororities and non-members of sororities. This seemed to her the better attitude in a state-supported institution. For instance no exclusive "pan-Hellenic parties" were given during her chairmanship.

Other positions taken by the association under her leadership were the reduction of expense for parties; the protection of the girls from undue exploitation in "drives," both local and on the campus; the refusal to join in "beauty contests"; vindication of the scholarship of the members, which has been higher than that of the men's organizations or of women who are non-members; and, last, a decision to do away with the escort of fresmen by upperclassmen during registration week parties.

During her administration, also, the organization took a stand against the low-grade type of humor prevailing in the student publication. Miss McPhee tried to resign two years ago, as chairman of the Pan-Hellenic association, but remained in office at the wish of the university authorities.

With the opening of the school year Mrs R. N. Westover assumes the duties of chairman of the association.

BRIDES and brides-to-be still hold the center of the social stage, with here and there an occasional prominent guest either as an honoree or a sharer of honors. This week there are several interesting engagement announcements, among them that of Miss Helen Black, whose marriage to Elmer Henkle, jr., will take place Wednesday, October 7, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Pace Woods, 2444 Ryons street.

Another prominent Lincoln girl whose marriage will take place Wednesday evening at the home of her parents, is Miss Donna Gustin, whose engagement to S. Ross Taggart of Omaha is announced today.

Mrs. Orville A. Andrews, jr., before her marriage, Friday September 4, was Miss Vera Alber of Denver. Mr. Andrews is especially popular in university circles, having had a prominent part in practically every Kosmet club play since he entered school, and has been active in many local theatricals as well. He is a member of Acacia fraternity.

Announcement is made today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Louise Lesh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lesh, 814 South Fourteenth street, to Joy T. Berquist of Lexington, Neb.

Mrs. Harold Walt of Los Angeles, is a guest of Lincoln relatives. Mrs. Walt before her marriage was Miss Nelle Wood. She attended the University of Nebraska and is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Mrs. George Hargreaves, before her marriage Saturday September 5, Miss Jewel Hurlburt of Cedar Rapids. Ia. She is a former student of Nebraska university. Mr. Hargreaves is a graduate of the college of pharmacy, and is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Nebraska Educator Works In a Famous Play School

Thre hundred youngsters, tow heads and coal heads and carrot heads, serious eyes and dreamy eyes and mischievous eyes, lanky-legged older boys and plump little maids, with freckles and without them, pug noses, busy scampering feet, anxious hands, but three hundred little minds all as busy and important as three hundred honey bees — this was the group of children which attended the play school the last summer on the campus of the University of California at a point which overlooked the white caps of the Pacific.

Six University of Nebraska graduates, several of Lincoln, had the privilege of assisting in this unique outdoor and noted play school. Miss Clara O. Wilson, head of the kindergarten-primary education at the University of Nebraska, was director of the kindergarten in the play school in the mornings and gave a course of lectures on kindergarten-primary edcation in the afternoons in Berkeley. The other five Nebraskans who assisted were the Misses Margaret Stidworthy, Betty Raymond, Carol Aylsworth, Miriam Gilligan and Margaret Wattles.

The school was started twelve years ago under the direction of Dr. Daisy Hetherington, the only organization of its kind to live over a period of more than two or three years. The class is gathered together for the six weeks' course every summer and is a demonstration school for the students enrolled in classes in education at Berkeley, Miss Wilson explained. Leading child educators from all over the country congregate to teach, youngsters under twelve years of age.

"These youngsters are an unusual group of very brilliant children and they reqired a different type of handling," Miss Wilson said.

Music was a special feature of the play school this summer. Miss Margaret Stidworthy, now of the University of Nebraska, taught music during the summer session.

To show the unusual personalities of these children Miss Wilson cited the instance of a 4-year-old child who was telling of her father, "My papa is in Switzerland, but you understand, Miss Wilson, he is just there temporarily."

From Many Places.

To show how these youngsters came from other states and even other countries, Miss Wilson spoke of a little Dutch girl who is a daughter of a member of the Dutch council and a small boy whose father is the vice consul of Portugal.

Some of these boys and girls were thinking on questions which many older people probably have never considered she said. One little boy of 4-years from Portugal, surprised Miss Wilson with, "Miss Wilson why do children come down the slide? Why does anything come down when you let go?" Miss Wilson explained to him that the ground on which they were playing was part of the big earth, and that inside of the earth is something which pulls very hard, that if this something did not pull, that we would all fly off.

After that I ran," laughed Miss Wilson.

Interpretative dancing was emphasized in the school. Miss Margaret Wattles, the pianist, improvised much of the music used. Children made up their own rhymes and then acted them out. Children were never told how to do things, but were encouraged to develop their own ideas. Miss Wilson recalled one little 4-year-old girl, who when she first heard the "Spring Song," said, "I'll tell you what that music makes me think of, it makes me think of fairies dancing before a queen seated in a bed of pansies."

One tiny lass, among a group of other children who were dancing, said, "I am going to be the smallest fairy; I'm going to live in the sweetheart rose."

"In California there is unbounded opportunity for children to love and understand all about flowers," Miss Wilson declared.

One day, on looking out over the Pacific, a small boy spoke up, "Where I live we can see the Atlantic."

A small Chicagoan, not to be surpassed, returned in a firm tone of voice "That isn't anything, we have an ocean of our own; we call it Lake Michigan."

Making a Horse.

A group of tiny youngsters were busy making a head for a saw-horse, but the head just wouldn't stay on. First they tried a piece of cardboard and fastened it on a stick with a string, but it was of no avail. Then a discussion arose of just how to make a head stay on a horse, for it was agreed all horses had to have heads, even if they were only made of wood During the conversation one youngster, who proved that bits of wisdom are assimilated at an early age, bespoke his belief concerning God's greatness Finally a practical-minded boy suggested tying a piece of wood on a stick to serve as a head and neck for the newly created horse And this was done. The children decided that only God can make a horse with a head that stays on

The children made saddles of padded cushions and persisted in calling the saddles "seats," the instructor said, in explaining their lack of information about horses, since the era of the automobile is at hand.

"One day a member of the group decided that the horses must be fed," Miss Wilson recalled. "I asked the children what we would feed them. One replied 'spinach.' Another suggested 'cabbage.'"

"There were groups of children who used hammers and saws at work benches, making toys of every description, while other groups carved animals and later painted them in bright colors," Miss Wilson added.

Took Turns.

She told of one interesting discussion that came up in the play period. A boy had monopolized the slide and insted on taking as many turns as he could get. The other children, realizing the unfairness of the situation, began to discuss the problem of whether it was best to take as many slides as they could get, or to wait their turn and be sure of a slide. The children made their own decision finally, she said, on deciding that to take turns was best.

"Every effort is made to have the children use large movements in their work; finesse of composition and detail is avoided in the kindergarten stage," stated the speaker.

"Around the corner of California field, under the deep shade of trees, the boys and girls from three to five years of age come for play. This is the kindergarten group, under the direction of Miss Clara O. Wilson, head of the department of kindergarten instruction at the University of Nebraska and one of the foremost educators in the country in pre-primary work. Teaching fun-loving youngsters how to play may seem an unnecessary undertaking to most parents. But to those whose children are learning to develop originality, to express themselves in their play, to contribute constructive ideas to group discussions and to make things with their own hands, the school is a great success."

Miss Betty Raymond and Miss Margaret Wattles gave individual intelligence tests and the results showed the children to be a very superior group.

New York Show Hats Are Startlingly New Novel Effects by Famous Creators to Be Displayed Locally.

Sternberg's has purchased copies of the models shown at the fall and winter fashion show of the retail millinery association of America.

This show was recently held at the Hotel Astor in New York before a tremendous delegation of milliners from all over the country. The models shown are said to have aroused considerable enthusiasm for their extremely novel effects.

It seems there is no limit to the creative ability of American style designers. More and more are American millinery creations becoming recognized as authoritative sources of authentic fashions, and at the private sale where the originals were purchased, it is said that the Fashion Hat company of New York paid a record price.

Bruck Weiss presents the turquoise shade of green in a turban that has a brim of felt. The brim, however, of this new model comes to a point on the left side and extends across the crown of the hat graduating smaller and smaller as it goes along. The crown of brocaded silver ribbon passes clean thru the brim and ends in a series of side loops draped charmingly to the right. Two gorgeous rhinestone pins complete the ensemble.

Tappe presents the new version of the soft crown scoop velvet. The crown piece is draped with rows and rows of moired ribbon in contrast and for trimming there are the new large feathered flowers of lacquered bronze and green. The flowers are placed on the brim so that when worn they nestle charmingly in the side of the neck.

Arnold gives us the lure of lace set most exquisitely into the brim and crown of a velvet hat of wood brown. This entire ensemble strikes a note of formal elegance that seems to be a development of the fall season. The exquisite way in which the lines of this hat are brought out is very pleasing and so is the intricate fine workmanship that combines these materials so effectively.

Jay Thorpe presents the extreme type of large felt for formal wear, the entire trimming being a [illegible] edged draped silk scarf. The effect evidently being to give just that note of careful carelessness.—Advertisement.

There are at present forty-one active chapters in Nebraska of which the largest is the Deborah Avery chapter of Lincoln with 280 members, Mrs. Walter S. Whitten, regent. This chapter was organized in May, 1896, at the home of Mrs. S. B. Pound. The second largest chapter in Nebraska is the Omaha chapter, which was organized in October of 1896. At present Omaha chapter has 257 members and Mrs. John J. Foster is regent. Major Isaac Sadler chapter of Omaha was organized in March, 1911, and now numbers 196 members. ALTRUSA CLUB HEARS MISS GOLDENA DENNY.

Altrusa met Friday evening at Le Petit Gourmet to hear Miss Goldena Denny, who has been here from Seattle for a visit with her family. Miss Denny is in the home economics department of the University of Washington and has made a reputation as an authority on textiles. She is the author of a handbook called "Fabrics and How to Know Them," used in merchandising establishments. Miss Denny described the work of her department in co-operation with Seattle stores and the Better Business bureau, in the interests of truth in advertising. The work of the textile laboratory for the stores has grown to such an extent that one of the leading firms gives a fellowship each year to a graduate student, who carries on the testing in connection with her studies. While composition of fabrics is the subject of most of the tests, they are frequently made to determine strength of material and quality of dye, Miss Denny said, and often a merchant will use a laboratory report in his newspaper advertising and window cards. Textile courses are required of students in the interior decorating classes and also of all business administration students specializing in retail business.

Miss Denny's enumeration of new occupations for women that have grown out of home economics training, was especialrly interesting to the club. These included institutional management, laboratory technicians, specialized demonstration, costume designers, dieticians, and nutrition work for physicians and hospitals. Altrusa will meet Monday evening, September 28, when Miss Rose Shonka, president, will name the committee for the year.

M'COOK TEACHER

Miss Ruth Fell, who leaves Wednesday for McCook, to teach in the Junior high school. Miss Fell, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fell, 1127-F street, was graduated from the University with the class of 1925.

Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs to Convene in Scottsbluff

The annual convention of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs will be held October 20, 21 and 22 in Scottsbluff. This is the first time the extreme western part of the state has been hostess to the club women, and they are planning to entertain not only women from all parts of the state, but from Colorado and Wyoming as well. Invitations have been extended to club members from these states who live within driving distance.

Respect for the law will be the keynote of the meeting, according to Mrs. Pearl C. Perryman of Broken Bow, state president. The affair is to be conducted in a "get-acquainted" atmosphere, and every delegate will be instructed to wear her name upon her badge, and to speak to her fellow delegates without further introduction. Loyalty to the state will be stressed and a campaign for use of Nebraska made products launched. An exhibit of Nebraska artists work will be in place with pottery, brass and other handcraft produced by Nebraska artisians.

Poet laureates of three states will read from their own poems before the assembly. John G. Niehardt, the Nebraska laureate, will read selections from his song of the Indian Wars. Mrs. L. A. Miss Robbins Vacations In Music Colony

Spending lazy hours on the lake, rowing, fishing or swimming, or making interesting climbs, with an occasional hunt in the Adirondack mountains, and then searching the attractive, winding paths of the forests nearby for delightful discoveries is a most satisfactory way to spend the "after-working" hours of the summer. It is in such a manner that Miss Edith Lucille Robbins spent the summer months at Seagle colony, Sakroon lake, N. Y.

"During the past twelve years," Miss Robbins said, "it has been my aim to spend each August 'playtime' in environments that are unique in experience and charm. Certain vacations, unusual in their routine and thrill, must naturally hold the memory with special lure. I shall always love my six weeks as a member of the Wenatchee forest rangers' camp in the Blue mountains of Washington, my vacation with the family of Madame Laferriere on an old French estate near Quebec, the retreat to Lake Pokegama near the source of the Mississippi river; but my summer this year was a combination of professional study, recreation and of unusual inspiration.

"The Seagle Music colony is as unique in its location as it is in its personnel. The colony is situated in the heart of the Adriondacks, where thousands of acres of government land border the six hundred acres of Seagle colony.

"There are no dull days or evenings. Work is the spirit of the whole place. Classes, individual and grouped, demand the best from each pupil. So interested does each singer become in his grasp of the song ideal that one hears all day the phrase that appeals to the special singer.

"Once each week the students appeared in recital. For social gatherings there were the ,barbecues, corn roasts, masquerades, and informal parties.

Before the war Mr. Seagle had selected grounds in Sussex county, England, for his music school. The war shifted his ideals to the United States. He has refused to return to Europe to take charge of the DeReszke School for Singers at Nice and Paris, feeling that his vision is now for the music lovers of America."

The executive board of the Wesleyan alumni association met last week to make plans for the event. The others to follow are the athletic banquet after the football season, the Pan-Wesleyan banquet in March and the alumni dinner during commencement week.

The honor system of study used by a number of universities in the east will be started this fall at Nebraska Wesleyan. Under this plan juniors and seniors may receive the outline of work from the head of the department and then pursue their study in whatever way they wish. They need not report for class room work. At the end of two years the honor student will be subjected to an oral examination which must be satisfactory before a degree is granted. This honor system will be used by Dr C. J. Shirk, head of the department of botany, starting this year. At present the system is an experiment and will not be employed by any other department at Wesleyan The Iowa state college at Ames is the only other school west of the Mississippi which has used the honor method of work among its advanced students

Indications are that the college of fine arts will have the largest registration in its history, according to Dean Parvin Witte. This year there will be seven candidates for the B. F. A. degree. At no time since the college was organized five years ago have there been more than two candidates. The afternoon musicals open to the public will commence in October. The expression recitals will come at a later date. The university will continue its Lincoln studio this year.

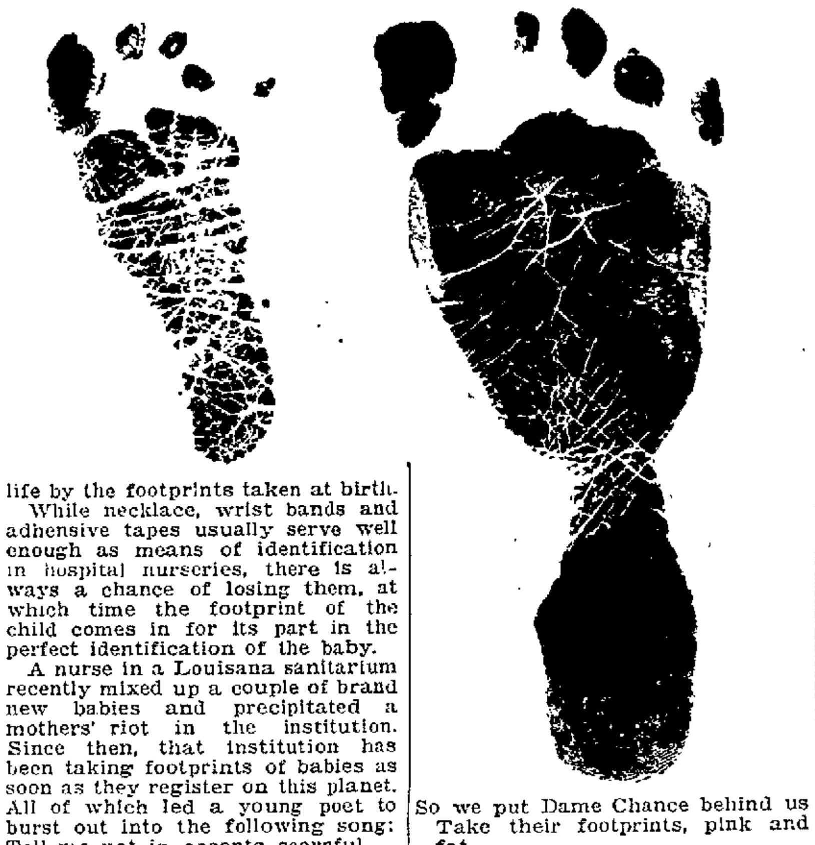
No Chance of "Mixing Babies" When Footprints Taken In Hospitals Here



Ten years ago there would have been little chance of "mixing babies" in a hospital here, because most of Lincoln's infants were born at home. Today, with the increase in the number born in the city and consequently in the hospitals, ways and means of indentification have become serious matters.

For instance, two boys were born in Chicago's largest maternity hospital three weeks ago. Both were rush cases and because of the immense number of babies born daily in that hospital, as quite often happens, the two children were born at the same time in the same room. In the excitement which follows such occurences, the youngsters were mixed by an attending nurse who was ordered to take them from the room and care for them. It happened that one baby was of one racial type while the other was of another. The distinct difference in types afforded means for straightening out the difficulty but otherwise there might have been a sreious mistake.

This is only an example of what the modern city hospital runs up against in emergencies. Every baby born now in that particular Chicago hospital and in most hospitals in that city, has its footprint taken before it leaves the room in which it was born.

For the past six years, Dr. A. J. Coats, a Lincoln physician has used a finger print outfit to identify new born babies. The method is being used more and more as it is the most perfect means of identification known. The lines in a child's foot never change as the accompanying photograph shows.

If kidnaped or lost, the child may always be identified in later life by the footprints taken at birth.

While necklace, wrist bands and adhensive tapes usually serve well enough as means of identification in hospital nurseries, there is always a chance of losing them, at which time the footprint of the child comes in for its part in the perfect identification of the baby.

A nurse in a Louisana sanitarium recently mixed up a couple of brand new babies and precipitated a mothers' riot in the institution. Since then, that institution has been taking footprints of babies as soon as they register on this planet. All of which led a young poet to burst out into the following song:

Tell me not in accents scornful
 Babies always look the same
As a nurse, when feeling cornful
 Mixes 'em despite their name.
Lines of infants, then remind us
 We can pull a bone at that
So we put Dame Chance behind us
 Take their footprints, pink and fat.
Footprints, that perhaps, some mothers
 Seeing may be satisfied,
As no one is like another
 And the kid's identified.

University Notes

From fifty to seventy-five applications for work were received every day last week at the office of the University Y. M. C. A. student employment secretary. The bureau of educational research and the state department of public instruction have organized a battery of tests for this purpose. It is hoped that the survey will show what to eliminate and what to emphasize in the course of study.

Shulte, of the University of Nebraska, has been made in a supplement to the University Extenson News. More state fair visitors have been through the University of Nebraska museum this year than ever before, according to those in charge. Several new exhibits have been placed in the museum this summer and more will be added soon. Preparations are also being made to place several interesting pieces that are now in storage on display when the new building is completed.

E. T. Grether, '22, has been appointed assistant professor of advertising and sales management in the faculty of college of business administration. He will conduct courses this semester in marketing, advertising and sales management. Mr. Grether, who represented Nebraska in intercollegiate debate with Iowa in 1921, was instructor in economics at the University of California in 1923-1925.

Several national educational leaders have already been secured for addresses at the annual meetings of district No. 1 of the Nebraska State Teachers association to be held in Lincoln November 4 to 7. Among those who will be on the program are: Dr. M. S. Pittman, rural education specialist, Michigan State Normal school, Ypsilanti; Dr. Chas H. Judd, University of Chicago; Dr. E. S. Hartwell, superintendent of city schools at Buffalo, N. Y.; Dr. Albert S. Cook, Maryland state superintendent; Dr. A. H. Edgerton, University of Wisconsin;! Miss Rose Phillips, supervisor of the Platoon school, Detroit; and Dr. E. S. Fretwell, Columbia university. Special musical numbers and entertainment features will be arranged by H. O. Ferguson and Adrian Newens.

Gilbert H. Doane has assumed his duties as university librarian. Immediately following his graduation from Colgate university, he was appointed librarian at the Naval Training school at Newport, R. I., where he served two years. He has since been assistant librarian at the University of Arizona and at the University of Michigan.

The 1925 state numeral roll of high school athletes as published in the University Extension News shows that DuBois won the team banner with a score of 62.5 per cent; Dewitt, 48.3; Brady, 47.6; Cambridge, 46; Bridgeport, 45; Ansley, 39.5; Danbury, 32. The total numerals this year was 548, compared to 389 in 1924.

G. W. Rosenlof, '22, will leave for New York City Monday to take graduate work at Columbia university while on a year's leave of absence from the faculty of Teachers college. Last week he spoke at the Chase county teachers institute at Imperial and the Knox county institute at Center.

Prof. T. T. Bullock has been instrumental in placing many gradates of the college of business administration in responsible positions with large companies during the past summer. He now has more openings listed for the better men than it is possible to fill. Trusts and banking companies in Nebraska have employed many graduates.

R. D. Moritz, former school superintendent at Seward, who took charge of the placement bureau of Teachers college on September 1, reports that many requests are being received daily at his office for teachers in schools in Nebraska. Most of the vacancies have been caused by late withdrawals.

The fourth annual home course Nebraska high school cross country run will be held October 19 to 21, according to a announcement sent to high school athletic coaches by the university extension division. Individual and team championships wil be determined.

MODERN EVE

THE SHOPPER

As Autumn comes dancing in, the old sparkle returns to the eyes of youth, the spirit of gladness permeates the world. Our thoughts turn to new suits, new dresses, new drapes and new furniture. The books are dusted and replaced in convenient corners, the radio is "hooked up," new records are purchased for the phonograph and the world takes on the spirit of "The Dance of the Winds." Youth is tripping forth in all its glory.

The college girls and boys are back and the rush parties are filling the calendar. This means new party dresses for the girls, suits for the boys, flowers and candy for everybody. What lovelier season could be given to us than the bright; cool, mellow lovely autumn!

LADY OF THE EVENING.

One can be more or less subdued in the daytime, but at night, oo-la-la, one must be brilliant! The eyes must dance and the lips must part in a crimson red from pearly white teeth. Even the reddest of lips are paled by bright lights. But a touch of Quinlan lipstick transforms the indifferent looking lips into cupid's bows. It comes in a little blue and gold case, the lid snaps open and shut and by a simple turn of the lower rim the lipstick emerges from the case. The same simple turn takes the stick back into the case. This stick will be found at the Sun Drug Company where the Quinlan exquisite toiletries are sold. Every girl should have a Quinlan lipstick to be sure she is right in the evening. There are two shades, light and dark.

PAINTED VAMPS.

Painted vamps — now, now, not what you think at all. Not girls! Shoes! They are expensive and exclusive and only a few will wear them. But the very latest in ultra-smart shoes, pumps, dancing slippers, mules, walking shoes are now to be found at Magee's. The most unusual, the most artistic and the finest makes have been wisely considered in the fall display of footwear. If you want shoes of beauty in cut, combination and colors, go to Magee's. They have them.

IF YOU ARE POPULAR.

If you are a popular girl, whether in business or in school or at home, you know the tragedy of last minute invitations that find you with straight locks. You want to accept the invitation and you want to look well, of course, but it is too late to get a marcel. That makes the evening a total wreck.

All the tragic stories you may have heard about permanent waves are turned to fairy tales by Mr. Champe at the Terminal Hairdressing Parlor, second floor Terminal building. Mr. Champe has expert operators working under his personal supervision who chart the head, give the flat wind with the Nestle Lanoil solution and the Nestle machine. They turn out perfect waves.

Permanent waves need care the same as naturally curly hair. They need the comb and brush. They need water and plenty of it. Some of the dry hair needs oil. But with a perfect permanent, anything is possible if attention is given the hair. To get up in the morning and with a few strokes of the comb be tidy, or by giving five minutes care to your hair in the evening find yourself ready for a ball, is a joy no girl has experienced except those who have permanent waves. Mr. Champe is giving these permanents for $10 for a limited period, and he will teach you how to care for your hair after the wave. Open evenings to accommodate business girls. Some are making arrangements to pay in installments. See Mr. Champe, maybe he can help you.

LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS.

All who know the language of flowers will be particularly interested in the rich, mellow, lovely blossoms at the Lincoln Floral Company, 1231 N street. They speak the language of the soul and that is why cut flowers, autumn bouquets, floral designs and center pieces are given as expressions of love, of sympathy and good cheer. The most beautiful sentiments are most delicately and subtly expressed through flowers. There are none lovelier anywhere than you will find at the Lincoln Floral Co., 1231 N street. B5363.

What does the red rose say?

A SUPERFINE POWDER BASE.

A chemist, a cosmetician and a woman of superior intellect, Kathleen Mary Quinlan is never satisfied with less than a super product when it comes to her own toiletries. Realizing the harm that so many of the vanishing creams do, knowing that they encourage blackheads, produce coarse skin and large pores, Miss Quinlan determined to give her clients something that would be a perfect powder base and that would refine the skin. This determination finally brought her the formula that was used in the preparation of a cream for a French princess nearly a hundred years ago—It is "Mist of Dawn." It comes in a dainty blue jar, lasts a long, long time because it takes such a speck, and is the perfect dressing for the skin, particularly for evening. You will find "Mist of Dawn" at the Sun Drug Company.

Carelessness in dress, in the care of the skin, the eyes and shoes, is a true barometer of character. Be careful. Be neat. Be wise.

DO WE COUNT OUR BLESSINGS

Through storms, through floods, through drouths, through heat and cold, through crowds and through cyclones the Roberts Sanitary Dairy maintains the same even, perfect service at the same low price. If you are a Roberts customer you know that you are going to have milk delivered at almost the same minute every day, that it will be fresh and cold when it comes; that the certified milk for baby is always just right. It takes the most scientific and modern methods to be able to give such service and we should count Roberts service among our blessings.

YOUR RUSH PARTY FROCK.

Of course you are going to have a pretty new frock for the rush parties and, after looking at pretty dresses, I know you will want one of those silk crepe, or georgettes, or combination affairs that you find at Ben Simon & Sons. They are individual. One for every type of girl whether she is tall or short, slender or plump. These lovely, filmy creations are priced as low as $17.50 and they look like Paris models. There are expert fitters to make the necessary alterations and if you tell them the frock is for a rush party they will give you special service.

IS IT A HAAG?

Is the washing machine you contemplate buying a Haag Vertex? If it is you are getting a lifetime of service and a beautiful piece of home equipment. Numbered among the many advantages of the Haag, it does not injure the finest of fabrics. It is compact, taking up but a small space and carries fifty to sixty pounds of clothes per hour, or an ordinary family washing. The Haag is easy to clean, easy to operate, almost silent, casters on the feet so that it is easily moved from one place to the other. The Haag means a freedom of wash day worries. It makes it possible to wash out the soiled clothes in a fresh house dress and go about the other household duties while the machine is doing the "heavy." You will find that "life preserver" at the Lincoln Electric Company on M street, between 12th and 13th.

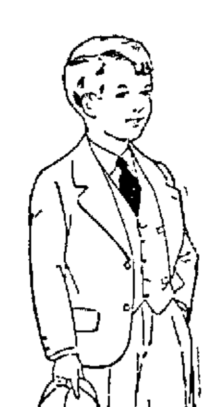
You will, quite likely, be wearing leopards and lions and lizards painted on your velvet gowns this fall and winter—since they are doing just that in Paris right now.

BEAUTIFUL EYES.

Eye strain fatigues the entire body, brings on headaches and stomach disorders. That is why students should be very careful to have their glasses properly fitted. At the Dunlap Optical Co., 122 No. 12th street, there are experts to test the eyes and fit the glasses. They have one of the best plants for grinding lenses in the United States, and Mr. Dunlap's personal, careful supervision has convinced particular people that they are sure of the proper correction. "It's better to be safe than sorry," so go to Dunlap's and be safe.

A BOY AND HIS LONGIES

What happier picture could we wish to see than the little boys and their longies. There is no thrill in a life time like the one Sonny Boy gets when he dons his first long trousers. Would you deny your son this thrill? The sparkle in his eyes and the smile on his face will many times repay you for the trouble. At Ben Simon & Sons there are corduroy longies and wool longies the kind a boy can hardly wear out. There are full suits of mannish materials made just like Dad's. There are extra trousers to be worn with bright, novelty sweaters. Then the stitched little round hat that tops the outfit to perfection is so strongly made that the boy can hardly get it out of shape. Small string ties, bow ties, blouses and sheik belts match and harmonize whether the suit be dark blue, powder blue, brown, tan or gray. Take your son to Simons.



Tom Thumb—Junior Sheik.

MEET HIM AT THE SUGAR BOWL.

This is the week that Walter Johnson becomes host to the college students at the Sugar Bowl, 1552 O street. The juniors, the sophomores and the seniors all know Walter Johnson and the freshmen will soon learn how satisfactory it is to meet at the Sugar Bowl and buy their school supplies, their kodaks, films and accessories from the boy with the broad smile. Mr. Johnson had received a new supply of Moore's non-leakable fountain pens, just the thing for students who carry pens. These pens come in all shapes, sizes and styles from the tiny affair that Miss Co-ed carries in her vanity bag to the huge affair that the Lions of the campus carry in their pockets. The Moore refill pencils also are ready for school. Meet your friends at the Sugar Bowl.

BANISH THE BLACKHEADS.

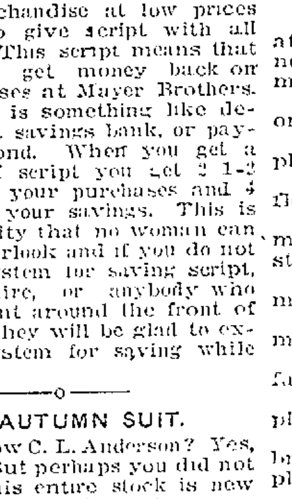
A leathery, or sallow or blotchy skin is a sign of carelessness. The proper care will improve any skin one hundred per cent. Get a jar of Pattie's tan cream, a jar of complexion (cleansing) cream and a bottle of special astringent, use them regularly, and improve your appearance in a few treatments. By following directions you can correct skin disorders, bleach and remove freckles, blackheads, lighten lines and banish pimples. Mme. Pattie's toiletries are now to be found at the beauty parlor, second floor at Ben Simon & Sons.

Men and boys have remade their complexions with Pattie's special astringent used after shaving and after washing.

REDUCING CORSET DEMONSTRATION

Does your flesh annoy you? Does it spoil the lines of your dresses? Is your corset uncomfortable and altogether unsatisfactory? The Cameo reducing, supporting, self-adjusting corset has bene scientifically designed to relieve the problems of obesity. The Cameo models have three outstanding features which become at once self-evident to the wearer. It reduces in the particular spots that need reduction, the laces give with the movements of the body, the corset assists and protects both contour and physique. There are short, light boned and low topped models for small women. The firmly boned, longer models for stout women carry out the same idea of ease and comfort along with reduction. The heavy woman's athletic corset is built on easy lines with reinforcement for reducing hips and thighs, top lines very low with elastic insets across the diaphragm to keep the front line smooth.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Miss Hazel Stephens, expert corsetierre will demonstrate and fit the Cameo corsets at Gold & Company, third floor. It will be wise to phone for appointments and thus insure prompt service.



A new idea in a reducing corset.

GET THE CASH.

It takes super-merchandising ability to be able to present high quality merchandise at low prices and then to give script with all purchases. This script means that you actually get money back on your purchases at Mayer Brothers. The system is something like depositing in a savings bank, or paying on a bond. When you get a book full of script you get 2 1-2 per cent on your purchases and 4 per cent on your savings. This is an opportunity that no woman can afford to overlook and if you do not know the system for saving script, ask Mr. Shire, or anybody who looks pleasant around the front of the store. They will be glad to explain the system for saving while spending.

THE AUTUMN SUIT.

Do you know C. L. Anderson? Yes, of course. But perhaps you did not know that his entire stock is new every six months. Or perhaps you did not know that his shelves are filled with the most beautiful materials that ever came from the mills. They are different, better and no more expensive. Mr. Anderson does expert tailoring, can advise you as to how your husband, father, brother or sweetheart should dress this fall. And we all know that the women have the first and last words in the selection of men's clothes.

TWO RECORD DANCES.

The two latest dance records have not only unusual time but they have distinction in—shall we say, vibration? "Angry" by Ted Lewis and his band is a musical interpretation of the 1925-26 spirit to the nth degree. It inspires new steps. It is the kind of a Columbia record that young folks want when they love life, love the world, love laughter and when they are so sparkling that they must dance to the rhythm of swiftly vibrating youth. Every boy should give his favorite girl the new "Angry" record, for it is at her home that he will dance and play.

"Alone at Last" is a new Brunswick record, dance music, with unusual melody. It is the kind of record one wants when in love, or when in a sweetly pensive mood. Jazz, yes, but the predominating theme is a dreamy, haunting melody carried mainly by saxephones. Carl Fenton's orchestra plays it, with a vocal refrain. This is the record a boy gives to the girl he likes best. Stop at Schmoller & Muellers, 1220 O street and get them while they are the rage.

COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS.

Students have you seen the new Kampus Compact? U. of N. with pennant decoration in scarlet and cream, the high school pennant in red and black, with fine powder and rouge are now displayed in the window at George Brothers on N street. The single compacts are $1 and the doubles are $1.50. Every girl student will want to carry a Kampus Kompact this year.

THE IMPORTANCE OF HOSE.

There was a time when women wore cotton and lisle hose of black and thought they were dressed. But not now! Women's hosiery is one of the most important industries in the world. Hose must match, or harmonize; they must be just the right texture for the gowns and wraps with which they are worn; they must be sheer and they must be strong. They must be full-fashioned to fit the ankle. For the girl who rolls her hose, they must be silk tops so that they roll neatly; for the girl who wears supporters the hose must have a lisle top with a runner protector. All of these things are to be considered in selecting perfect hose—and the perfect hose, in shade, style, weave and texture are to be found at Magee's. The autumn shades are wonderful and the prices are just right.

A woman is not well dressed unless her hose are right in color, contrast, fit and texture.

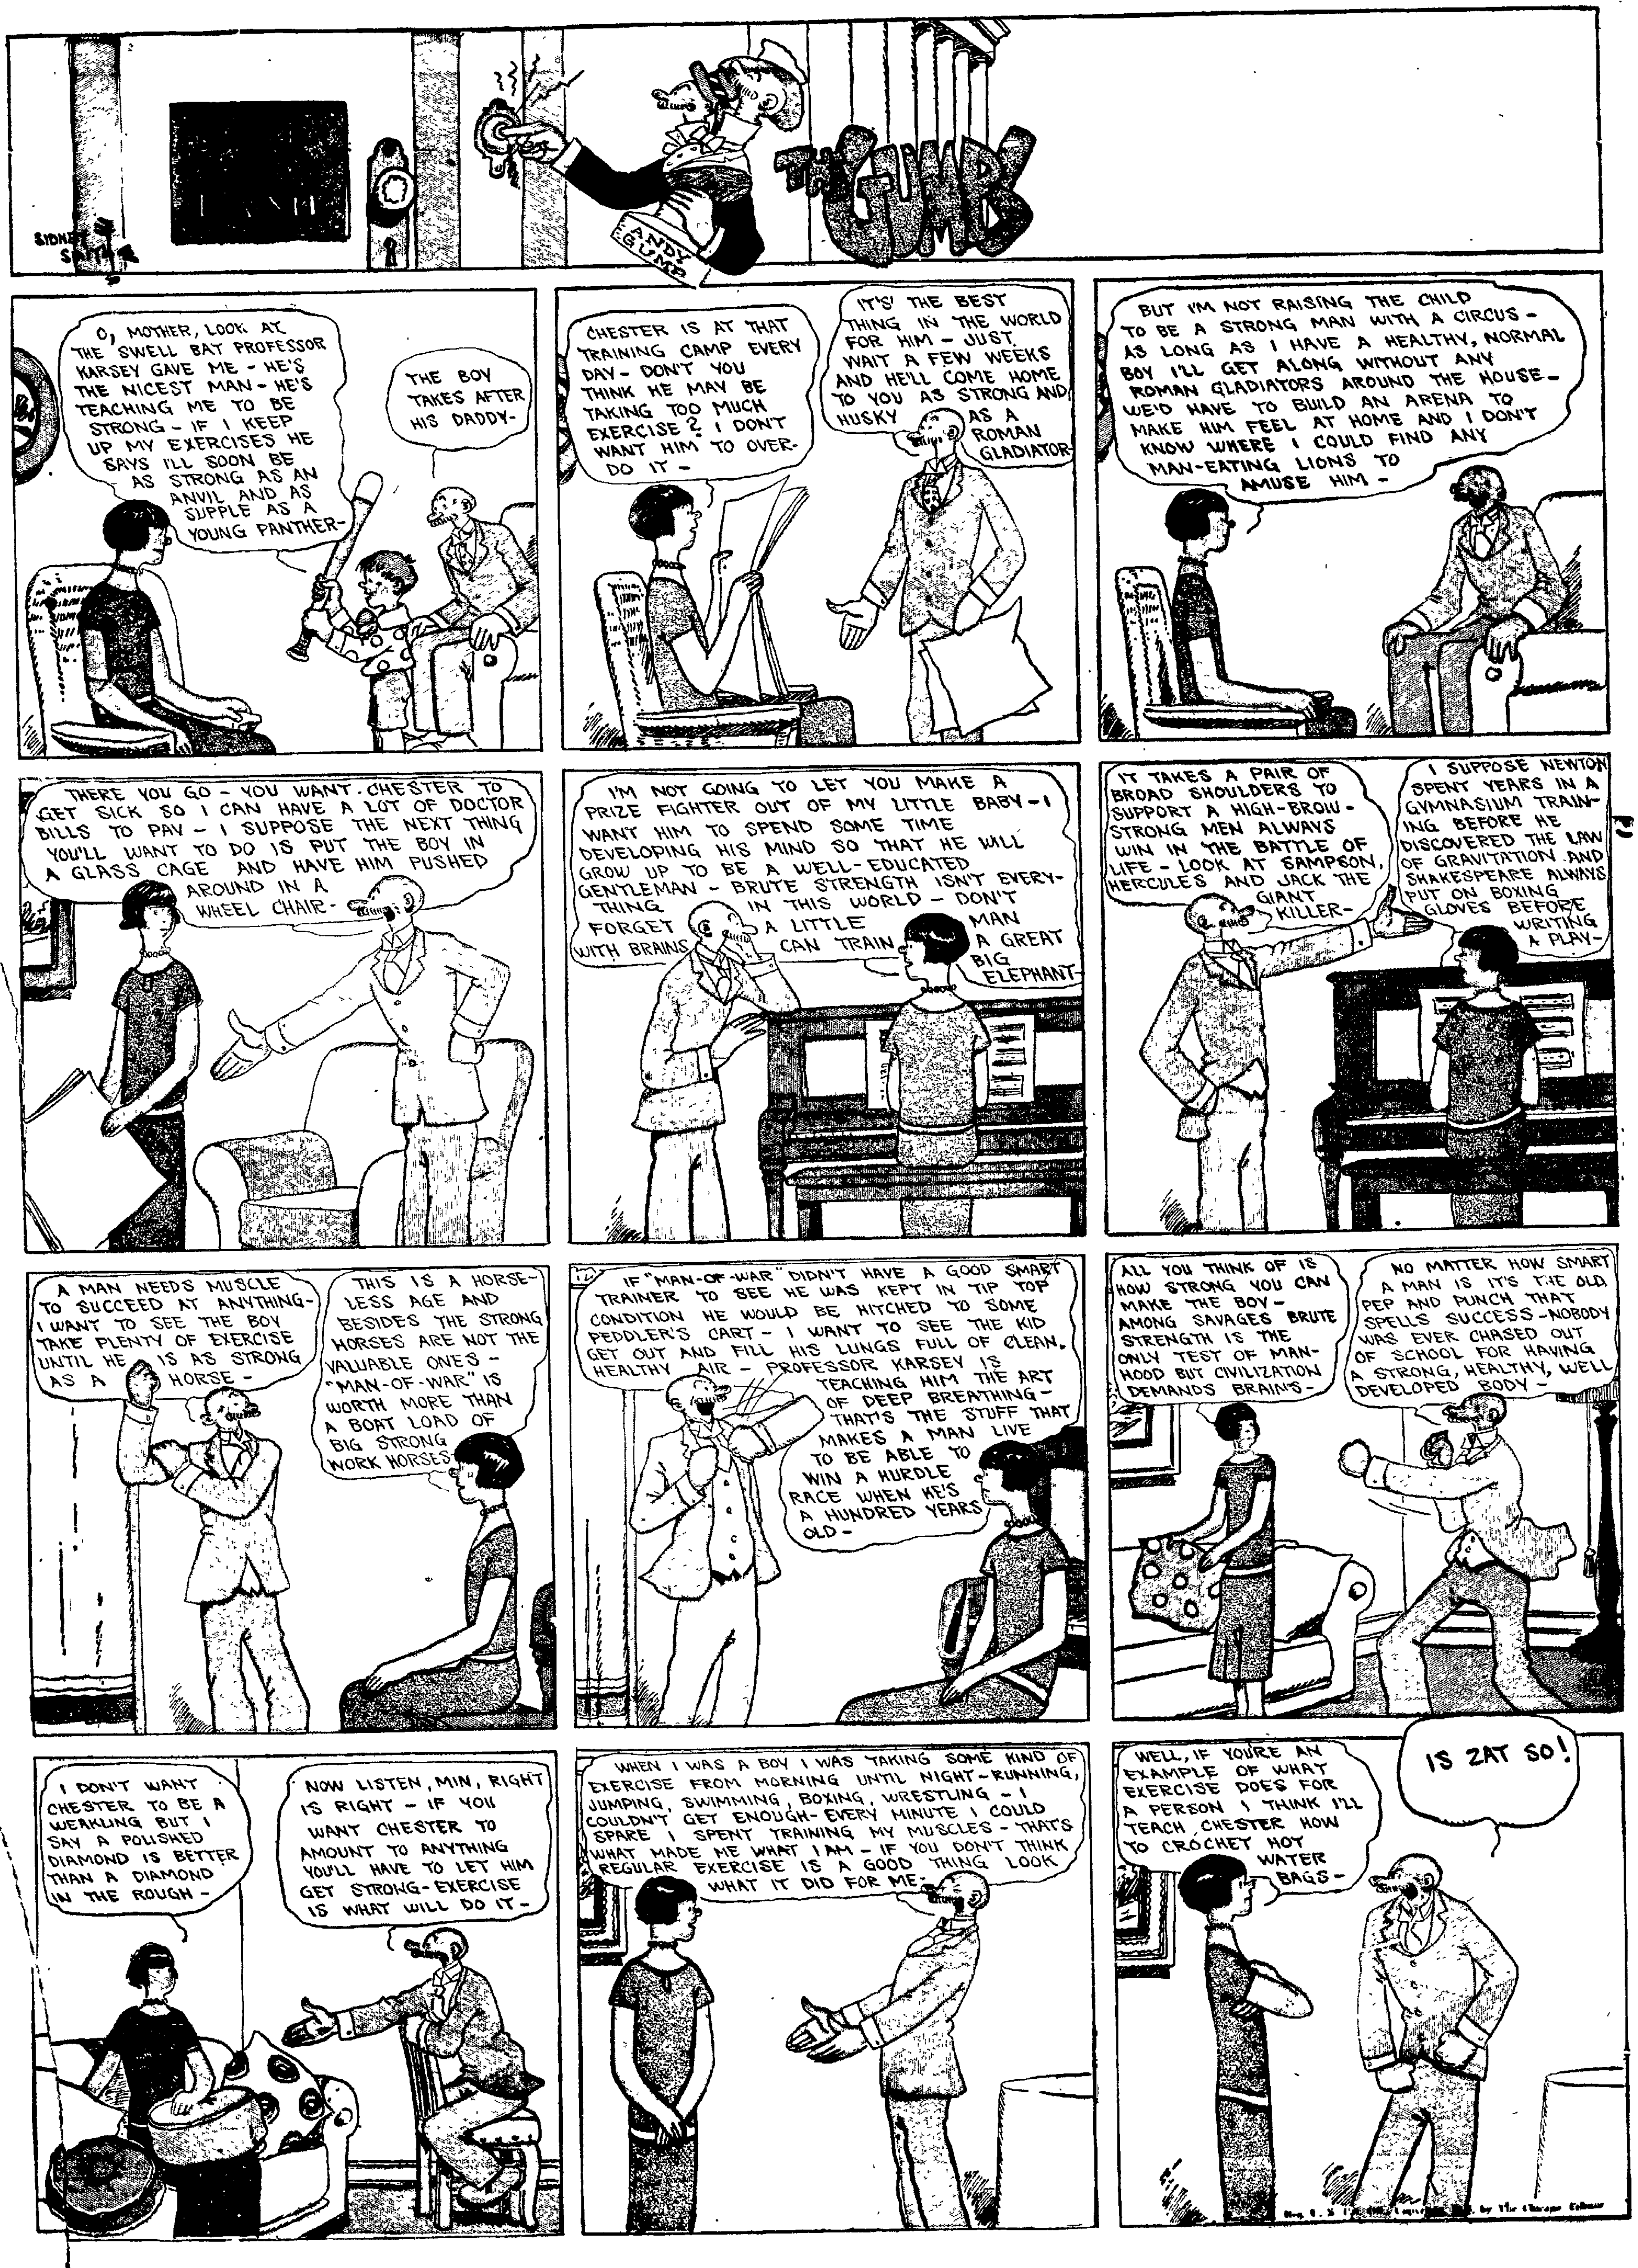
An Early French Debt Agreement Seems Likely



SIDNEY SMITH
THE GUMPS
ANDY GUMP
O, MOTHER, LOOK AT THE SWELL BAT PROFESSOR KARSEY GAVE ME - HE'S THE NICEST MAN - HE'S TEACHING ME TO BE STRONG - IF I KEEP UP MY EXERCISES HE SAYS I'LL SOON BE AS STRONG AS AN ANVIL AND AS SUPPLE AS A YOUNG PANTHER-
THE BOY TAKES AFTER HIS DADDY-
CHESTER IS AT THAT TRAINING CAMP EVERY DAY - DON'T YOU THINK HE MAY BE TAKING TOO MUCH EXERCISE? I DON'T WANT HIM TO OVER-DO IT -
IT'S THE BEST THING IN THE WORLD FOR HIM - JUST WAIT A FEW WEEKS AND HE'LL COME HOME TO YOU AS STRONG AND HUSKY AS A ROMAN GLADIATOR-
BUT I'M NOT RAISING THE CHILD TO BE A STRONG MAN WITH A CIRCUS - AS LONG AS I HAVE A HEALTHY, NORMAL BOY I'LL GET ALONG WITHOUT ANY ROMAN GLADIATORS AROUND THE HOUSE - WE'D HAVE TO BUILD AN ARENA TO MAKE HIM FEEL AT HOME AND I DON'T KNOW WHERE I COULD FIND ANY MAN-EATING LIONS TO AMUSE HIM -
THERE YOU GO - YOU WANT CHESTER TO GET SICK SO I CAN HAVE A LOT OF DOCTOR BILLS TO PAY - I SUPPOSE THE NEXT THING YOU'LL WANT TO DO IS PUT THE BOY IN A GLASS CAGE AND HAVE HIM PUSHED AROUND IN A WHEEL CHAIR-
I'M NOT GOING TO LET YOU MAKE A PRIZE FIGHTER OUT OF MY LITTLE BABY - I WANT HIM TO SPEND SOME TIME DEVELOPING HIS MIND SO THAT HE WILL GROW UP TO BE A WELL-EDUCATED GENTLEMAN - BRUTE STRENGTH ISN'T EVERYTHING IN THIS WORLD - DON'T FORGET A LITTLE MAN WITH BRAINS CAN TRAIN A GREAT BIG ELEPHANT-
IT TAKES A PAIR OF BROAD SHOULDERS TO SUPPORT A HIGH-BROW - STRONG MEN ALWAYS WIN IN THE BATTLE OF LIFE - LOOK AT SAMPSON, HERCULES AND JACK THE GIANT KILLER-
I SUPPOSE NEWTON SPENT YEARS IN A GYMNASIUM TRAINING BEFORE HE DISCOVERED THE LAW OF GRAVITATION AND SHAKESPEARE ALWAYS PUT ON BOXING GLOVES BEFORE WRITING A PLAY-
A MAN NEEDS MUSCLE TO SUCCEED AT ANYTHING - I WANT TO SEE THE BOY TAKE PLENTY OF EXERCISE UNTIL HE IS AS STRONG AS A HORSE -
THIS IS A HORSELESS AGE AND BESIDES THE STRONG HORSES ARE NOT THE VALUABLE ONES - "MAN-OF-WAR" IS WORTH MORE THAN A BOAT LOAD OF BIG STRONG WORK HORSES-
IF "MAN-OF-WAR" DIDN'T HAVE A GOOD SMART TRAINER TO SEE HE WAS KEPT IN TIP TOP CONDITION HE WOULD BE HITCHED TO SOME PEDDLER'S CART - I WANT TO SEE THE KID GET OUT AND FILL HIS LUNGS FULL OF CLEAN, HEALTHY AIR - PROFESSOR KARSEY IS TEACHING HIM THE ART OF DEEP BREATHING - THAT'S THE STUFF THAT MAKES A MAN LIVE TO BE ABLE TO WIN A HURDLE RACE WHEN HE'S A HUNDRED YEARS OLD -
ALL YOU THINK OF IS HOW STRONG YOU CAN MAKE THE BOY - AMONG SAVAGES BRUTE STRENGTH IS THE ONLY TEST OF MANHOOD BUT CIVILIZATION DEMANDS BRAINS-
NO MATTER HOW SMART A MAN IS IT'S THE OLD PEP AND PUNCH THAT SPELLS SUCCESS - NOBODY WAS EVER CHASED OUT OF SCHOOL FOR HAVING A STRONG, HEALTHY, WELL DEVELOPED BODY -
I DON'T WANT CHESTER TO BE A WEAKLING BUT I SAY A POLISHED DIAMOND IS BETTER THAN A DIAMOND IN THE ROUGH -
NOW LISTEN, MIN, RIGHT IS RIGHT - IF YOU WANT CHESTER TO AMOUNT TO ANYTHING YOU'LL HAVE TO LET HIM GET STRONG - EXERCISE IS WHAT WILL DO IT -
WHEN I WAS A BOY I WAS TAKING SOME KIND OF EXERCISE FROM MORNING UNTIL NIGHT - RUNNING, JUMPING, SWIMMING, BOXING, WRESTLING - I COULDN'T GET ENOUGH - EVERY MINUTE I COULD SPARE I SPENT TRAINING MY MUSCLES - THAT'S WHAT MADE ME WHAT I AM - IF YOU DON'T THINK REGULAR EXERCISE IS A GOOD THING LOOK WHAT IT DID FOR ME-
WELL, IF YOU'RE AN EXAMPLE OF WHAT EXERCISE DOES FOR A PERSON I THINK I'LL TEACH CHESTER HOW TO CROCHET HOT WATER BAGS-
